SUNGKIANG FALLS, CHEKIANG TROOPS ARE IN RETREAT

Believed That Chekiang Defenders of Shanghai Will Be Forced to Withdraw From Hwangtu-Liuno Front
—Aircraft Over Shanhaikwan

SHANGHAI, Oct. 7. (By the Associated Press.)—Capture of Sungkiang, a city 22 miles by rail southwest of here, by the combined armies of Fukien, Kiangsu and Anh Wei provinces were threatened late tonight.

Unconfirmed despatches from Fukien sources said the city already had fallen.

The Kiangsu forces, by travelling down the Whangpu river, pushing through the Chekiang defenses, almost encircling the walls of Sungkiang.

Late tonight the Chekiang fighters were reported on the defense, trying to keep the invaders from cutting the railway line between Sungkiang and Shanghai.

SHANGHAI, Oct. 7. (By the Associated Press.)—Sungkiang, 22 miles southwest of this city, has been captured by Gen. Sun Shuang-Pun, military governor of Fukien, and the Chekiang troops are retreating on Sungkiang, nine miles from Shanghai, according to Fukien advices.

It is believed this may compel the Chekiang defenders of Shanghai to withdraw from the Hwangtu-Liuno front.

TWO JOINT MURDER INDICTMENTS AGAINST POISON PLOTTERS

State's Attorney to Ask Jefferson County Grand Jury to Return Joint Murder Indictments Against Lawrence M. Hight and Mrs. Sweeten

MOUNT VERNON, Ill., Oct. 7. State's Attorney F. G. Thompson announced today that he would ask the Jefferson county grand jury when it convened Monday to return two joint murder indictments against Lawrence M. Hight, former Indiana clergyman, and Mrs. Elsie Sweeten, confessed poison plotter.

Hight and Mrs. Sweeten confessed they killed their mates so they could marry.

"Both deaths were due to a conspiracy entered into by Hight and Mrs. Sweeten," said the prosecutor. "The law recognizes no distinction between a man and a woman in such a case. There is no other course for the state to pursue, except to ask for a joint indictment for murder in each killing."

If joint indictments are returned, he said, he expected Attorney R. E. Smith of Benton, retained to represent Mrs. Sweeten, would seek a separate trial.

ALLEGED RUM-RUNNER IS FINED $200

Louis Penegoulakos of Moody street, the alleged automobile rum-runner who was arrested yesterday noon by Officers John J. Leakey and William F. Lison of the liquor squad, was found guilty of illegal keeping in district court this morning and was fined $200.

Penegoulakos' arrest was accomplished after a sensational motor chase through Chelmsford and Lowell. His car, laden with 235 gallons of Belgian alcohol, was brought to a stop when Officer Lison shot a bullet through one of the tires.

JUDGE PICKMAN HOLDS INQUEST HEARINGS

Two inquest were held before Judge Pickman in the court of second sessions this morning. They concerned the death of Ephiege Gandy, who was killed by a truck driven by Henry Arsenault in West Sixth street on Sept. 21, and the death of John P. Hartley, who was electrocuted while at work in the Waterside mill about a month ago.

Margin By Which Ball Games Are Won and Lost

The score was tied, 3 to 3, when the Washington team went to bat in the last half of the ninth inning of the second game of the world series. Judge walked and reached second on Bluge's sacrifice. Peckinpaugh hit to left field and in this picture you see the ball (arrow) just a foot or two from Hank Gowdy's glove and Judge with the winning run just about the same distance away. Judge was safe, and Washington won the game. A fraction of a second more speed for the ball and the game might have gone the other way.

New Polo Grounds Attendance Record Expected, As Giants and Senators Meet in Fourth Game

POLO GROUNDS, NEW YORK, Oct. 7. (By the Associated Press.)—Fair weather greeted the New York Giants and the Washington Senators for the fourth game of the series here today. The promise of a bigger crowd than yesterday, when 47,608 attended, was evident when the field opened at 10 o'clock.

Speculation was rampant as to whom Manager Harris would send to the mound today in an endeavor to even up the series with the Giants and make another game in Washington a sure thing.

Harris indicated that George Mogridge would be the Washington selection, but it is known that Mogridge has a sore arm and may not be used.

It is almost certain that John McGraw will start Virgil Barnes today as most of his array of relief talent was used yesterday.

The series now stands two games to one for the Giants.

Two more victories are necessary for the Giants to win the honors, while the Senators must win three more.

BOY FATALLY INJURED BY AUTOMOBILE

Fatally injured when struck by an automobile in Vinal square, North Chelmsford, at 10:15 this morning, five-year-old John Kidder of Tyngsboro road, North Chelmsford, died at the Lowell Corporation hospital shortly before 11 o'clock.

The driver of the machine which struck the boy, Wilfred H. Phaneuf of 122 Concord street, Nashua, N. H., rushed the injured lad to the hospital, and then reported the accident to the local police. Officer William Gookin of the North Chelmsford department was notified and Phaneuf was held in $2000 for his appearance in court tomorrow morning.

According to the report of the accident, Phaneuf was driving a closed car towards this city at a slow rate of speed and when passing through Vinal square, the Kidder boy stepped out from behind a parked car directly in the path of Phaneuf's machine. The boy was struck and thrown to the street by the front end of the machine.

CHIEF SAUNDERS DEPLORES BREAK IN FIRE DEPARTMENT MORALE

Orders Four Privates Suspended For Period of Three Days For Alleged Absence From Duty and Quarters Without Proper Leave—Intimates Shakeup

Chief Edward P. Saunders of the fire department today expressed himself as very much concerned over recent reports of breaks in the morale of the department, occasioned by privates absconding themselves from duty without proper leave and intimating that when the new Oakland house is opened, probably within a week, there will be a shake-up of men and officers in the history of the department.

Suspension of four Centralville firemen for a period of three days for alleged neglect of duty was announced today by the chief, who sent the men disciplinary letters advising them of his disciplinary action and setting forth their right to demand a public hearing before the city council if they so desire.

Notice of the four suspensions follows a report by District Chief D. H. Crowley, detailed by Chief Saunders to investigate alleged lack of attention to duty on the night of Sept. 26. The men involved are attached to Truck 4 and Hose 12, both housed in West Sixth street. It was reported to the chief that when Box 77 was sounded at 11:20 o'clock on the night of Sept. 26, the four firemen in question were not at their posts and a search by company officers found them out of quarters. District Chief Crowley made an immediate investigation, but when he reached the engine house the four men were in quarters and in bed.

Chief Saunders deplored the break in fire department morale and intimates a shakeup of men and officers in the history of the department.

RULES AGAINST ILLINOIS R. R.

Judge Stough Hands Down Decision in Case in Controversy 16 Years

OTTAWA, Ill., Oct. 7.—In a decision in circuit court today, Judge S. C. Stough decided that the Illinois Central railroad should pay hundreds of thousands of dollars in state taxes in controversy for sixteen years. He held that in accounting many millions of dollars were credited to lines of the company south of the Ohio river and west of the Mississippi river instead of to the charter lines of the company, which under state law were to pay seven per cent taxes on earnings in Illinois in perpetuity for early grants of right of way.

The revenue and accounting of the railroad company for 1905 and 1906 was the direct issue, the years since being subject to the finding applicable to those years.

WALSH CHEERED AT AUDITORIUM

U. S. Senator Talks to 2500 at Evening Meeting, Rapping Republican Record

United States Senator David I. Walsh wound up a whirlwind campaign tour of Greater Lowell last night when he addressed a crowd of 2500 persons at the Memorial Auditorium, making his fifth speech of the day and his best one. James E. Markham, president of the Lowell Walsh club, presided at the meeting. Last night's crowd brought the total number of persons who heard the junior senator during his one-day visit here up to the 3000 mark. Besides last night's crowd, the senator had spoken at 10 other meetings.

FINED FOR SPEEDING ON PRINCETON BOULEVARD

When the new Princeton boulevard was opened to traffic about two weeks ago, Acting Superintendent of Police Hugh Downey instructed officers to enforce the speed laws there. This morning in district court, Motorcycle Officer Andrew Hunter complained of two motorists whom he arrested for traveling at a speed of more than 40 miles per hour. The defendants, Narville Richards and William J. O'Hara, were found guilty by Judge Enright and fined $25 each.

GOVERNOR SMITH WILL NOT SPEAK HERE

Gov. Alfred H. Smith of New York positively will not speak in Lowell in furtherance of the democratic ticket. It was authoritatively stated this morning by no less a personage than the governor himself. Last night Gov. Smith talked at Manchester, N. H., and tonight he talks in Boston. Yesterday afternoon Chalmers was in Lowell.

Walsh Cheered

At Auditorium

night's talk and his speech at noon from the city hall steps the senator also spoke at North Billerica and North Chelmsford in the late afternoon and at C.M.A.C. hall in the early evening. He held a reception at the American House from 2 to 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Other speakers at last night's meeting were John E. Swift, candidate for attorney general, and Humphrey O'Sullivan, candidate for congressman. The meeting was originally scheduled to be held in Liberty hall but the crowd was so great the hall proved too small and the main hall was pressed into service.

Mr. Swift, the nominee for attorney general, opening speaker at the rally last night. He attacked the insurance interests of the state, quoting freely from now famous recent letter of Motor Vehicle Registrar Frank J. Goodwin, himself a republican, and exposing as well the overcapitalization of Massachusetts textile industries. He stressed the necessity of electing the national ticket, urging that the nation needs someone else other than a sphinx in the White House.

He praised Hon. David I. Walsh for his record made at Washington, stating that "Sen. Walsh on his record deserves the vote of every man and woman in Massachusetts. Any one with a spark of the American spirit of fair play and justice will reward him. Industrious, ever ready to answer or take a stand on any question he is rubber stamp. Send him back to Washington with a plurality of 100,000 and let the nation point to him and say 'There stands Walsh of Massachusetts, his state has said Well Done, Good and Faithful Servant.' His responsiveness to the senator met with pronounced applause.

Mr. Swift ended his speech with an emphatic declaration that there is no room for the Ku Klux Klan in Massachusetts and a strong appeal for the endorsement of the entire democratic ticket.

Candidate for Congress
Humphrey O'Sullivan, candidate for congress from this district, was the next speaker called. Mr. O'Sullivan opened with an endorsement for John W. Davis, "the pride of the American bar," referred feelingly to the candidacy of the preceding speaker and briefly eulogized the cause of Sen. David I. Walsh.

"If there is any man in America I owe an obligation to it is the candidate for re-election as United States senator," said Mr. O'Sullivan, telling of how Sen. Walsh when a candidate for lieutenant governor twelve years ago spent much of his time in furthering Mr. O'Sullivan's fight for election to congress from this district.

It was at this juncture that Senator Walsh, escorted by former Mayors Dennis J. Murphy and James B. Casey took his place upon the platform. The pause rose as one person to welcome him and he was given a great demonstration of the popularity which is his and the esteem in which he is held here.

Sen. Walsh had just arrived from the C.M.A.C. hall where he addressed a large rally presided over by Edgar Lambert.

Mr. O'Sullivan, continuing with his speech, praised James M. Curley, mayor of Boston and candidate for gov-producer, and of course that is the only way they can solve the problem of making the farmer in the west get more for his dollar than the mechanic in the east.

"Now, then, if the farmer in the northwest has a problem, what becomes of the working masses in the east? What becomes of the working masses in Lowell? What becomes of the farmers of this district and why is it that their dollar isn't given any consideration in this purchasing power? Well, the solution of that question is that you have no representation in congress to look after the interests of labor in Lowell and no one to look after the interests of the farmers in this district.

"Every operative and every farmer in New England should both the republican party and let it be known to the country that the textile business is slipping, that under the most favored tariff conditions they are unable to keep their plants running or pay normal wages to their employees. Let the farmer of New England tell the country that he also wants a dollar that will buy more, that it is unfair to ask him to buy his seeds and fertilizers and other farm necessities at retail and sell his products at wholesale.

"Someone should see to it that the farmers around here should be provided with a system of co-operative marketing, and if our present representative in congress isn't enough interested in the labor conditions and the farm conditions of this district someone should be found who would study the situation and find the solution.

"When business goes bad with the mills the first thing thought of is cut the wages. Why not give the operative a look-in at what constitutes the over-head charges in these establishments? Why not give the operatives or their representatives a chance to look at the books and introduce the help of an efficiency expert, and see if there are not some items in the over-head charges that are out of all proportion to the service rendered. If we are to have co-operations in big business and contentment, a square deal and justice to the employees is necessary. I will take up other phases of this industrial situation as my campaign progresses."

Senator Walsh Introduced

In introducing Senator Walsh, Mr. Markham was brief and to the point. The audience rose to greet the senator and once the cheers had subsided he launched into a vigorous speech, urging support of the national and state tickets and then referring at length to his record as a member of the United States senate.

"In opening I would first say a few words of appreciation of the efforts of the men who organized here to advance my candidacy," said Senator Walsh in starting. "Proud indeed am I that my record of achievement prompted them to voluntarily hand themselves together to support me. I am pleased to come here and speak under their auspices. I have been 12 years now in public life. Long and trying years they have been. I have grown old in your service. The gray hairs are beginning to come. I have come back to you today with a greater confidence than ever in the spirit of appreciation of the people of Massachusetts and more than ever are my feelings mingled with gratitude to you and pride in you.

"Your lieutenant governor, your governor, your senator! (Applause.) Not a living man in Massachusetts other than myself that you have bestowed these honors upon—not even my distinguished senior colleague. Neither he nor my predecessor had the distinction and the honor which was mine—that of serving as governor of the old Bay State.

"In the past I always came with a short record to place before you. Now after five years in the senate I am here again, pleading for or begging votes from no one, defying my enemies, be they political or personal, to find one act in my long stewardship that can be construed as or savor of betrayal of the trust with which you honored me. I challenge anyone to say that day in and day out my effort has been to bring a little more cheer and sunshine into the lives of those to whom I am indebted for my office.

"I come back to you with unstained hands, champion of the proper people and the proper principles. Because I have fought your battles I know that on Nov. 4 you will fight my battles. I know that you will send me back." (Prolonged applause.)

"Let me at this time make clear my advances in the coming election lest there might be some misconception. I am for Davis for president, one of the most brilliant men ever nominated by a political party. We have not had a democratic governor since I left the office in 1916. It is time for another one. I sincerely hope that the aggressively brilliant, capable mayor of Boston is elected to that office. For lieutenant governor, Cummings. For attorney general, Swift—you have just continued to Page Six

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Oct. 7.—The Huntington Ministerial association today adopted a resolution forbidding its members to marry any person who has been divorced, except on scriptural grounds and then only the innocent party. The association has a membership of 50 ministers, representing many denominations.

The resolution was adopted after the Rev. Dr. S. Roger Taylor, pastor of Trinity Episcopal church, had declared that divorces in Cabell county, of which Huntington is a part, numbered 30 per cent of the number of marriage licenses granted.

Car Company on Air For Safety

By N.E.A. Service
NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—A broadcasting station has been erected here to spread safety education to radio fans.

The United Avenue Railway system of this city, which is concerned with safety for car riders, automobilists and pedestrians, is the pioneer.

Station WEDJ is the first powerful radio broadcasting station to be owned and operated by a street railway company. It has just been opened officially to the executive offices and trolley barns here, for the wireless dissemination of safety advice intermingled with high grade concert programs.

At present, however, WEDJ's programs are purely entertaining. It is a little later that H. A. Bruno, program director and announcer, plans to include talks of general educative interest and instructions on safety and the prevention of accidents.

The station operates on 500 watts and a wavelength of 223 meters. This comparatively low wavelength for broadcasting necessitates extreme care in tuning, so as not to pass through the carrier wave without detecting it.

"We intend to present the very best programs obtainable," Bruno explains. "In addition to the general public we are also reaching many of our three thousand employees and their families."

Program announcements are posted in all the car barns and in the company's street cars.

Two new features for radio broadcasting will be inaugurated from this station. One is a radio airplane travelogue to be broadcast every Tuesday and Friday evening between 7 and 9 o'clock. The other is a review of the current photoplays, and a weekly review of the week's new plays.

The correct time will also be announced every 15 minutes during the programs.

GRANGE IS AGAINST DAYLIGHT SAVING

Daylight saving was voted down three to one at a straw poll taken last night at the regular meeting of District Grange. Following the vote, Luther A. Root and Harry M. Fox were chosen as a committee to oppose the passage of the daylight saving referendum at the state election.

At the opening of the meeting, Chairman Sam G. Pillsbury drew the charter in honor of three deceased members, Mattie Fletcher, John A. Weinbeck and Raymond Eastman. Routine business was transacted and upon its completion the first degree was conferred upon eight candidates by the grange officers, headed by Master Harry L. Peavey. The second degree was also conferred upon a number of candidates, the grange degree team, headed by Isaac Park, being in charge of this ritual.

Menus for Family Tested by SISTER MARY

Breakfast—Cantaloupe, ready-to-serve cereal, thin cream, browned hash, tomato sauce, corn bread, butter, honey, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—Southern vegetable stew, toasted corn bread, celery, fig graham pudding, milk, tea.

Dinner—Breaded veal cutlets, lamb chops for young children, mashed potatoes, sautéed oyster plant, cabbage and apple salad, whole wheat bread, butter, floating island with peaches, milk, coffee.

Veal is not desirable for young children, so lamb chops are suggested. Fresh sliced tomatoes might be served with the hash. If convenient, however, canned tomatoes well seasoned with butter, salt, sugar and a dash of pepper may be stewed until thick and smooth in the menu planned.

Children of four years love a saucy heart and may be allowed to enjoy one if frequently admonished to "chew it up fine."

SOUTHERN VEGETABLE STEW
One large sweet potato, 1 medium sized onion, 1 large green pepper, 1 1/2 cups shredded string beans, 4 large tomatoes, 6 cups boiling water, 4 tablespoons bacon fat or butter, 1 tablespoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon pepper, 2 teaspoons sugar.

Melt butter or bacon fat in soup kettle. Add onion peeled and minced, tomatoes seeded and chise from popper and mince. Add to onion and cook over a low fire for five minutes. Pare sweet potato and cut in small dice. Add to onion and pepper with beans and water and cook half an hour. Add tomatoes, okra pods cut in slices, salt, pepper and sugar and cook 20 minutes. If the stew becomes too dry add more water. Serve in soup plates.

SCALLOPED OYSTER PLANT
Three cups cooked oyster plant, 6 tablespoons butter, 1/2 cup milk, 2 teaspoons salt, 1/2 teaspoon pepper, bread crumbs.

Rub the oyster plant through a colander. Add half the butter, milk, salt and pepper. Mix well and put in a buttered baking dish. Melt remaining butter, add coarse crumbs and stir until crumbs are well coated. Sprinkle top of prepared oyster plant with crumbs and bake 15 minutes in a hot oven.

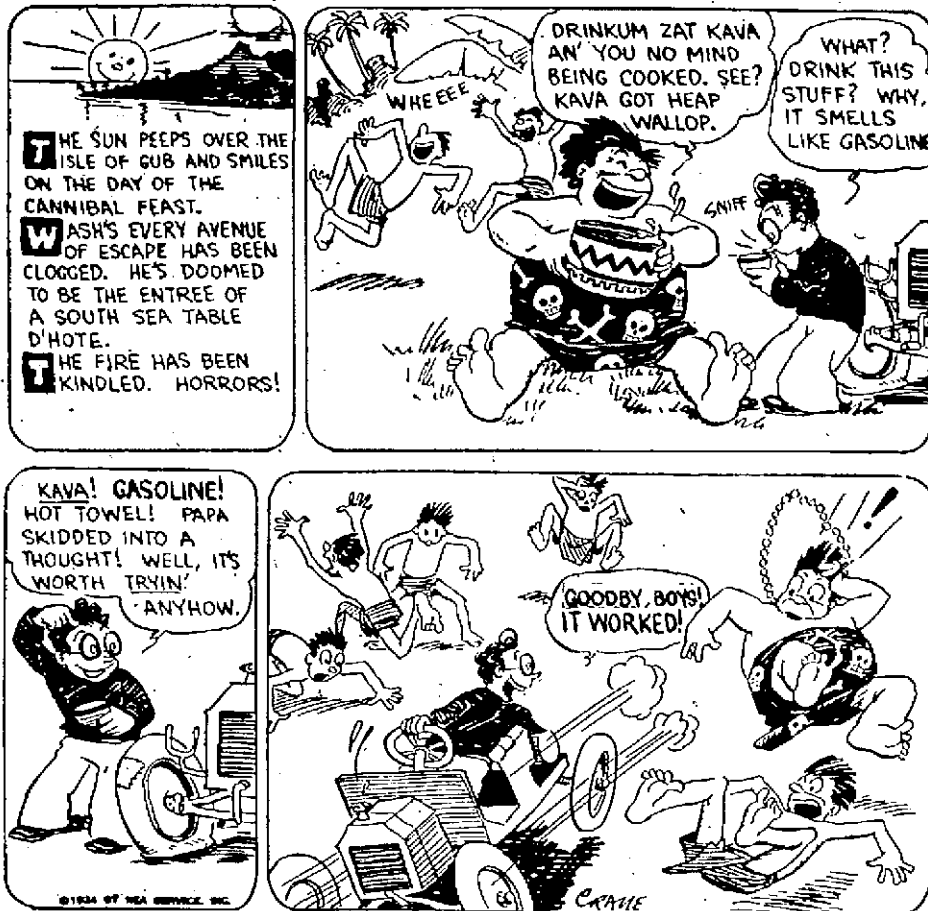

GRAHAM FIG PUDDING
Four tablespoons butter, 1/2 cup molasses, 1/2 cup sugar, 1/2 cup sour milk, 1 egg, 1 1/2 cups graham flour, 4 tablespoons bread flour, 1/2 teaspoon soda, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1 cup chopped figs.

Soften butter. Stir in sugar and molasses. Add white flour and mix well. Add egg well beaten. Add graham flour and figs. Mix thoroughly. Dissolve soda in sour milk. Stir into mixture, add salt and turn into a buttered mold. Steam three hours and serve hot with whipped cream or hard sauce. Children under school age should be served with whipped cream. This class has been well attended in past years and the officers look for a large registration this evening. The course in gymnastics and games will get under way at 7:30 o'clock Wednesday night. Tomorrow night's program will be carried out in the form of the weekly dance at the Green Lantern ball room.

There will be a meeting this evening of the entertainment committee which has charge of the program in connection with the banquet to be staged at the convention of the state league of girls' clubs in this city on Oct. 18-19. SO this is the very last word on the mattress question:—

There are some just as good mattresses—but you will be hard pressed to find better at any price! As a matter of fact, it's a wide chance of ever being able to find even the just-as-good.

Prove it for yourself—use this good mattress for comparison and check against its known points of superiority:

First the all important filler—layer on layer of carefully garnetted clean, new cotton felt—no substitute materials. Then the special way this filler is built in by hand and reinforced at points of extra strain.

Next the full count of deep generous tufts—put in to stay with a strong double-locked tufting stitch, then the full hand-rolled edge making certain the mattress "box" will never break down.

Finally, the extra measure of care used in handling this good mattress to bring it to you crisp, wholesome and clean.

Add to all these points of plus value, the fact that you buy these good mattresses "Inside-Out"—guided and guaranteed by the sample filler cabinet as to the "contents" and before you have half finished your count of Reasons Why you will surely choose one of these better-made

SENATOR WALSH SPEAKS IN NORTH BILLERICA

About 250 men and women voters, the most of them just getting through their day's work at the Talbot mills, heard U. S. Senator David I. Walsh speak yesterday afternoon at North Billerica. He was introduced by Wendell P. Stevens and spoke in the square in front of the postoffice.

"Most of you people, I observe," said Senator Walsh in opening, "are from the factory below here. You know what a boss is and what an employer is. I, too, have a boss. I, too, have an employer. My boss is the people of the commonwealth and I am as answerable to them for my work as you are to your bosses and employers for yours. After representing you in the national senate for five years I have come back to you to give an account of my stewardship, to ask you to scrutinize my work, and to ask you if my record, my votes, my speeches and my accomplishments meet with your approval. I don't want to go back to Washington unless I have faithfully represented your hopes, your thoughts, your aims and your desires.

"No man can vote in 2000 questions, as I have done in the past five years, and please all, not even his own party. I have been criticized for by stand on the League of Nations, and I am going to talk for the moment about that. I was called upon as your representative to make a contract with foreign nations which would bind you, your fortunes and your children for generations.

"I took the position that any phrase or clause at all dubious in meaning should be clarified so as to permit of no misunderstanding. The attitude of the United States, I held, must be made clear and fixed. Some say I should have accepted the treaty without change or reservation. Never! I don't want to be and I know you don't expect me to be—wouldn't permit me to be a rubber-stamp senator. The time to change a contract is before it is signed, not after. I didn't propose that the lives and property of the United States should be available for any people other than our own people to declare us into war and exact a financial burden and a human toll.

No super-government composed of those of other governments shall dictate the policies of this country!

"As I stand here I notice that I am standing in a square dedicated to one of your townsmen who fell in the service of his country. It brings vividly to me the thought of the Washington scandals shown in the two investigations into the veterans' bureau, both of which I investigated, and upon both of which I served. There were 150,000 soldiers who came back after the great war physically disabled or mentally incapacitated. I found the machinery in Washington creaking and hampered, yes, bound securely in red tape. Many were unable to get hospitalization or compensation. Many most of them mentally incapacitated, were out in the 'contract hospitals' where the government was paying $3 a day for their care and as many as 28 men were herded in one room. No staff doctors or nurses. A profit-making institution naturally does not give its inmates the full dollar's worth of care.

"One of my first acts as a member of the senate was to investigate a probe of the veterans' bureau. My revelations astounded the country. I gave a full year to work on the senate committee straightening out that mess. Then came Forbes to take command. In a short time I had to again rise in the senate to champion those poor veterans and we had to investigate the bureau again. Money squandered, mispent, stolen—the man at the head of the bureau a drunkard, men requiring six months to get an answer to a letter for information about their compensation—surplus sales of government materials, graft in the fraction of hospitals, secret codes with profiteering contractors, indifference towards those wounded boys trying to 'come back.' That is what we found. I know you have an affectionate realization of my work in this and I point to it with pride.

"It took 24 hours to draft those boys, yet in six years we have not a rehabilitation hospital in New England complete and operating at a high standard of efficiency. It is a shame and a disgrace."

The senator told of the red tape which veterans encountered in getting a hearing or getting the attention which they deserved, of which many were sorely in need of. He told of his efforts for them, crowned with the success in putting over his measure providing that any veteran having tuberculosis or mental troubles developing within three years from date of discharge should be treated without question. "This set alone, a bureau official told him, disposed overnight of 13,000 pending claims helplessly bound up with red tape.

"The oil scandal was bad enough; the Daugherty scandal was a black enough episode in itself, but these pale into insignificance at this abuse of the men who were willing to give their all to their country in its hour of need. No word is strong enough to condemn this record of the administration. Four great departments of the government smeared with scandal in the last four years—Fall in the department of the interior; Daugherty in the department of justice; Forbes in the veterans' bureau; and Denby in the navy department.

"Justice, our most sacred inheritance next to religion, made a mockery. My fellow citizens, men and women gathered here, I ask you if this republican record of incompetency, dishonesty and maladministration is going to be endorsed. I appeal to you to forget party labels, to think of your country and yourselves, and repudiate this administration. Your day is coming on Nov. 4. If you sanction this record of the republican administration for the last four years, then vote the republican ticket, but if your heart is with your country and with your home, you will turn them down.

"You have been good to me. You have made me your lieutenant-governor, your governor, and your United States senator. It is more perhaps than I deserved. You have given me every gift within your power, and I assure you again and now of my appreciation. Four million voters in this commonwealth and they have ever stood by me because I have stood by them.

"As your governor I modified the workmen's compensation law so that the employee got a greater benefit without the cost being added to the employer. I instituted the free state educational bureau, the department of university extension which has been used by 165,000 persons in ten years. My record as senator is before you and I stand or fall with it. If I have been a good senator I want to go back. I want you to endorse my political philosophy of justice and fairness to all. That policy has given me thousands of republican and progressive as well as democratic votes. I want you on Nov. 4 to let the people of the nation know that Massachusetts upholds a man of the rank and file who insists on justice, upon fairness—upon a square deal for all.

"When I first went to the senate, old Senator Gore, the blind senator from Virginia, put his arm around me and said: 'Walsh, you have the six hardest years of your life before you if you would care for your people as you should.' He was right. They have been the six hardest years of my life. I want to go back there and carry on the work which I am doing for you. I want to continue to fight the dollar when it seeks to exploit the common people. Time is running short. I would say a word about coal. There is fight there which I have started and I want to continue. I will win it, and New England will have no more coal famines once we end this present way of doing things. In this election I wish you would look at the facts as published for me today in 'The Lowell Sun'; read them—they will give you the history of that whole question, I a past and its prospects.

"I am completing my term as your ballot means as much as does the cross of a Rockefeller or a Morgan. I know I'm going back to Washington and I thank you now for the endorsement of the cause I have espoused which I know you will give to me on election day. I ask also you cast your vote for the entire democratic ticket—for Davis for president, for James M. Curley for governor and for the entire democratic state ticket."

heard him, a man with a high conception of public service. For congress, your fellow townsman, Humphrey O'Sullivan. There is no brunch of the government more important than the legislative. A champion of the people must be there. Honesty alone should prevail in the sanctuary of the people's liberty.

Republican Administration
"I could go on now to tell you about the dreadful scandals, the hypocrisy, the corruption, the incompetency which the republican administration has shown in high places. On every issue there is one final fight, whether the people will be represented by a man aligned with privilege, wealth, and the dollar, and with humanity and human interest. There has never at any time been any doubt as to where I have stood.

"If I had ever any doubt as to where I stood, I had but to turn back by mind to my boyhood days in Clinton, carrying dinner pails to my parents and my neighbors in the hills. It was through the sweat and blood of the members of my own family that I could go on in school and prepare to face the world better equipped than were they. I can remember as if yesterday my days at college, spent with your distinguished ex-mayor and my lifelong friend, Dennis J. Murphy, when year after year I was obliged to ask extensions on the time to pay for my tuition. Would I be worthy of this heritage if I did not fight those praying exponents so powerful in Washington? I know them all now and I'm going back there; you'll send me back; and I'll fight them!" (Applause.)

"It is their damnable, scheming, lobbying methods, dominating at times even the pulpit, controlling newspapers, even branding men radicals who oppose their desires, their grafting schemes that we must fight, and please God, I will continue to fight."

Harking back to the beginning of the Harding administration, Senator Walsh pointed out that three great constructive measures were awaiting action when the late president took office, the care of disabled soldiers, the reduction of taxes levied in war-time, and the reduction of the high cost of living.

Speaking of the first, the speaker said: "Was there ever a mission or a call for higher, greater, or nobler service than that entrusted to this administration? How have they done? So incompetent the work, so negligent the treatment, the Veterans' bureau has been twice investigated and I investigated both investigations and alone of the 86 senators served on both investigation committees.

ADD WALSH
"Rep. Gillett, my present opponent, was speaker of the house of representatives at the time yet he never lifted a finger for a joint committee investigation in either instance and the senate had to do it alone. We exposed the graft, the looting, the corruption in both instances and from the second investigation Harding's man Forbes is even today under two separate indictments. I'm proud of my work in championing the poor dying, discarded boys who fought for us in the World war."

Mellon Tax Schemes
He attacked and exposed the Mellon tax reduction schemes and the Fordney-McCumber tariff as working a hardship on the ordinary person for the benefit of a moneyed and exalted few.

"Your ancestors who rebelled against taxation without representation had no greater grievances than you have with the inequalities of this tariff law," he said. "How long will the workers of the east permit this exploitation. Look at how rock-bound republican Minnesota has risen in revolt! It is high time for the east to wake up."

"If anyone tells you it is too low a tariff that is responsible for this industrial slackening then call their attention to the fact that Calvin Coolidge by one stroke of the pen can increase all tariffs fifty per cent. 'If too low a tariff is the reason for this unemployment, these slack times, then no man in the world is to blame as much as is Calvin Coolidge."

"Let us look at another black page on the record of the republican administration, the Naval Oil reserves scandal—the Teapot Dome. They sold God's gift to the nation, a wartime fuel supply for our fleets. Better they had sold the White House than the capitol. We could build another White House. We could move the capitol but there is nothing we can do to replace that which has been taken from the earth."

The Coolidge Record
"Turn now to the administration record, to the Coolidge record of treatment to the World war veterans, the Civil war veterans and the letter carriers. Coolidge vetoed the soldiers' bonus and he vetoed the Bureau bill. He vetoed the raise to the letter carriers and postal clerks and it was only by resort to a contemptible device that it was not passed over his veto.

"The veto came the last day of the session. The point of order was raised that it had not been recorded. This was a mean and contemptible device. In 140 years of custom the reading has always been considered the recording, yet it was held it should be recorded. Suffice to say it never was recorded before the gavel fell. They knew Coolidge's veto would be overridden and they resorted to every trick in the bag to keep this from happening."

"Regardless of your affiliations it is your duty to see that your government is preserved as a democracy," he said in closing. "November 4 is your day. Send into office those who will fight for the millions, not for the millionaires."

"I want to go back to Washington to continue my battles as the champion for your cause. I want to further warrant your confidence. I know the crowds well now and I want to get at them again. Send me back to fight and plead and work and devote myself to the cause of the great common people of America. I thank you."

Following the speech the senator shook hands with several hundred of his auditors who besieged an anteroom off the stage, later departing by auto for his home in Clinton. He speaks tonight at Boston at the big rally at which Gov. "Al" Smith of New York is to be the feature speaker.

Piles

Not do surgical operations. The cause is inside—bad circulation. The blood is stagnant, the veins flabby. The bowel walls are weak, the parts almost dead. To quickly and safely rid yourself of piles you must free the circulation and a fresh current through stagnant pools. Internal treatment is the one safe method. Ointments and cutting won't do it. J. S. Leachman, M.D., a specialist, set to work some years ago to find a real internal remedy for piles. He succeeded. He named his prescription HEM-ROID, and tried it in 1000 cases before he was satisfied. Now HEM-ROID is sold by druggists everywhere under guarantee. It is a harmless tablet, easy to take, and can always be found at Green's Drug Store, which will gladly refund the purchase price to any dissatisfied customer.—Adv.

IN NEW YORK

BY STEPHEN HANNIGAN

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—Applicants for burglary and holdup insurance in New York are investigated as vigorously as men suspected of committing such crimes.

There have been so many holdups and burglaries, considered fakes, unprovable as such, that insurance men are looking the doors of their premium tables before policy holders have a chance to steal the horse.

Five years ago insurance agents were hungry for such business. Today they sit at desks and "take under consideration" all prospective clients.

I was surprised when a prominent jeweler detailed to me a list of notables who would not be insured against burglary and holdup. It was astonishing. All of them are presumed to be immensely wealthy and many high in social regard.

Yet it was inferred that they would stoop to any level to gather in premiums.

When one insurance company finds a client a poor risk for one reason or other, the information is passed on to all other companies through a channel organization formed to protect these companies against illegitimate loss.

Padding claims is a common offense of the insured, it is claimed. Two hundred dollars is often stretched to a loss of $2000 by dishonest premium holders.

In many instances when an apartment house in a neighborhood is burglarized, insurance clients throughout the section file a claim. It is practically impossible for the insurance investigator to disprove the claim, though in many instances it is unquestionably false.

VERY QUICK WORK

An hour after the Ford touring car of Hugh Riley, 39 Aiken avenue, had been stolen from in front of St. John's hospital, it was recovered in East Merrimack street, near the Tewksbury Inn, by Motorpolice Officer Daniel Lynch.

EVENING COURSES

To make the most rapid and thorough progress in an Evening Course demands a method of teaching whereby the pupil is in close personal touch with the teacher. The success of our Evening Courses is due entirely to our Personal, Individualized Teaching for Each Pupil. There are hundreds of young people in this city who have incomplete business training and consequently are unable to give satisfaction. Our Evening School offers them an opportunity to increase their value both to themselves and to their employers.

PROMOTE TOLERATION

Masons and Knights of Columbus Join in Organization at Utica, N. Y.

UTICA, N. Y., Oct. 7. (By the Associated Press.)—With a view to fostering patriotic ideals and "a spirit of toleration in economics, politics and religion," 50 Protestants, nearly all Masons, and a like number of Catholics, met last night for formal organization of the Hamilton-Jefferson association, announced as a "non-secret, non-sectarian and non-partisan group."

The charter members, all leading business men of Utica, heard the aims and objects of the organization outlined by leaders in each of the two fraternal bodies, and summed up in the principal address of the evening by Elihu Root, formerly United States secretary of state.

Mr. Root, who became a member of the association only after he had been assured of its non-sectarian character, expressed the belief that by having a membership drawn equally from the Protestant and Catholic faiths, the organization had gone a long way toward ultimate success.

The membership list of the parent chapter of the organization is limited to 100 men, it was explained at the dinner, of which half must represent each religious faith. To maintain the desired balance, new members will be admitted in pairs, one Protestant and one Catholic. At the monthly meetings of the association subjects concerning general public welfare will be discussed and acted upon, according to the purposes outlined at the dinner, and the United States constitution will be held as "an antidote for the evils of the day."

Eight tentative jurors were accepted yesterday.

1500 CATTLE ORDERED DESTROYED IN TEXAS

HOUSTON, Texas, Oct. 7.—An additional 1500 cattle were ordered destroyed yesterday in Texas' fight against the foot and mouth disease. It is feared they had been in contact with cattle previously killed. The total ordered destroyed was raised to 4500. It was reported yesterday that Texas has embargoed all freight originating in or passing through the quarantined area.

ANNUAL AUTUMN PARTY AND DANCE

The Knights of Columbus and their friends are expected to turn out in large numbers at the annual autumn party and dance to be held Friday evening in the Commodore ballroom. The event will mark the beginning of the indoor social season and a large crowd is expected to attend. The proceeds of the affair will be applied to the K. of C. building fund. Music will be furnished by Miner-Doy's orchestra.

TRIAL OF POTHIER

Brig. Gen. Richards of Providence, R. I., Testifies at Tacoma, Washington

TACOMA, Wash., Oct. 7.—Brigadier-General J. J. Richards of Providence, R. I., was ready today to resume his testimony at the resumption of the trial of Roland Pothier, former sergeant-buster in the 213th Engineers on a charge of murder, as a result of the shooting of Major Robert Cronkhite at Camp Lewis in October, 1918.

No session of court was held yesterday as the judge was called from the city.

Gen. Richards' previous testimony was that it would have been impossible for Pothier to have killed Major Cronkhite accidentally in the manner set forth in the first of several alleged statements made by Pothier.

"Pothier told me that the shooting occurred when he endeavored to pull back the slide on his gun to get an empty shell, after both he and the major had fired at a luncheon on a gate post," General Richards declared.

Robert Cronkhite, former army captain, is scheduled to go on trial in the same court Oct. 23, for alleged complicity in Major Cronkhite's death.

WILL HOLD DANCE AT CHELMSFORD CENTRE

Without doubt, one of the liveliest social organizations in the city, is the Employees' Mutual Benefit Association of Fairburn's Market, Inc. Hardly a month goes by without one or two events of importance for its members of the association. Recently they had a "light-seeing" trip to the White Mountains and now they are planning for a get-together and dance on next Monday evening, the holiday, at Chelmsford Centre.

Miss Elizabeth Conway, chairman of the general committee, in speaking of the coming affair Monday night, said that nothing has been left undone to provide for a great affair. The social is for employees of the market only, although they are permitted to invite their friends. Dancing will be enjoyed, many novel features introduced, and a buffet lunch will be served.

COLLEGE EXTENSION CLASSES OPENED

Last night an official of the state department of education was at the high school to register applicants for the various courses offered by the college extension department. He was very much disappointed at the attendance and was unable to form more than a couple of classes although he expects that during the week other classes will be formed. The most popular classes apparently were English composition, literature and economics. It is necessary to have from 30 to 35 students for each class in order to conduct the course successfully. The department cannot pay a teacher to come once or twice a week from Boston to accommodate a less number of students. The attendance last night did not indicate proper appreciation of the splendid opportunities offered by these extension classes.

LOWELL HISTORICAL SOCIETY

The quarterly meeting of the Lowell Historical society will be held tomorrow evening in Memorial hall at which time the officers and committees will submit their reports, applications for membership will be approved and other business transacted. Mr. Alfred P. Sawyer of the American Bar association will speak of the recent meeting held in London at which time 2000 members of the association were the guests of the British bar. His subject will be "A Week in Historic London." Members may invite friends.

ON TRIAL FOR PIRACY

OF LIQUOR CARGO

MONTREAL, Oct. 7.—Testimony that he was forced, on threat of death, to act as second mate and give false statements in having the British schooner Lutzen entered with the registration of shipping at Bermuda, was given today by Jack M. Morris, a Montreal furrier, in the court of King's Bench, where Captain Samuel Ford is on trial for piracy of the schooner's cargo of 4300 cases of liquor.

Morris testified that he and a lawyer named Isaacs had shipped as super cargoes on the schooner and that they were kept prisoners on the vessel while the cargo of liquor was being sold to rum smugglers. After the liquor had all been sold, Morris said, the Lutzen sailed for Bermuda. Morris declared that he was signed as second mate and Isaacs as third assistant.

Norman Adelman of Montreal testified that 3400 cases of liquor was the property of the Sydney Wine and Spirit Co. and that the remaining 1000 cases belonged to a Dr. Thom of Winnipeg.

TO PROVIDE CLOTHING FOR NEEDY CHILDREN

In an effort to raise funds with which clothing will be provided for the needy children of the city, the Children's Aid society will hold an entertainment and dance in the Girls' City club rooms on Friday evening, Oct. 24. Elaborate souvenir programs will be distributed to those attending and three grand prizes will be given the holders of the lucky tickets.

The committee in charge of the affair comprises Mrs. Johann de la Parra, Mrs. Bourke, Miss Sadie Cohen and other members of the executive committee of the organization.

The work of the society since its organization last March has been extensively carried on throughout the city and many needy children have been clothed and thereby greatly helped along in their struggle for proper existence. About 60 women are engaged in the work of helping the children and a room in the old high school building has been opened for use as headquarters of the society.

Sungkiang Falls, Chekiang Troops Are in Retreat

Daybreak today and rained bombs on the ancient city while the surface armies of Gen. Chang Tso-Lin, Manchurian leader, and Peking government troops carried on an intensive battle for possession of the city, which is held by Peking forces.

According to private advices received here, the battle was continuing with added fury at 11 o'clock this morning. The Chang Tso-Lin army and surface forces rained shells inside the great wall, once considered an adequate barrier of defense against Manchurian and Mongolian invaders.

As the bombardment continued the Manchurian troops, attempting to take the city, were unable to withstand the fire returned by the Peking troops and were forced to retreat to new positions.

Attempt to Kill Invaders

TOKIO, Oct. 7. (By the Associated Press.)—Peking government troops in north China province are being rushed from Dolonnor to the vicinity of Jehol in an attempt to prevent advances by the invading Manchurian army of General Chang Tso-Lin, who is fighting for control of the central government of China, according to a despatch today to the Kokusai News Agency from Mukden, Manchuria.

Dolonnor is 150 miles northwest of Jehol, near the Chilian-Manchurian border. The same agency also reported that French concerns had delivered at Mukden 20 airplanes and ten motor trucks ordered by General Chang prior to the opening of hostilities with the central Chinese government.

Count Tolstol, the great Russian author, always went hatless and barefooted, no matter what the weather.

DUEL WITH SABRES

Dr. Lebreton and Deputy Molinari Wounded in Brief Encounter

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 7. (By the Associated Press.)—Dr. Thomas Lebreton and Deputy Molinari were both slightly wounded after a brief encounter in an affair of honor at midnight last night. The duel was fought with sabres.

Deputy Molinari was challenged by Dr. Lebreton on account of the publication of a newspaper article which the latter in his position as minister of agriculture considered offensive. Dr. Lebreton tendered his resignation as minister to the president in order to fight the duel.

GIFT OF $475,000 FOR HARVARD COLLEGE

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 7.—A gift of $475,000 for the division of chemistry, Harvard university, by the family of the late E. C. Converse of New York was announced today by Bishop William Lawrence of the Episcopal diocese of Massachusetts, chairman of the committee to extend the national gift of the late university. Mrs. E. C. Converse, and her son, E. C. Converse, of New York, announced the gift for the erection of a chemical research laboratory at Harvard as a memorial to Mr. Converse and to carry his name.

"The members of the family who have contributed this gift are Mrs. E. C. Converse, his daughter, Mrs. Benjamin Strong and Madam Antoinette Converse, and his son, E. C. Converse," Bishop Lawrence said. "It is in response to the work we started last spring to extend the service which Harvard should render to the country. We stated that we needed a minimum of $10,000,000 for the Harvard Business school, the division of chemistry and the division of fine arts. At commencement we reported the really extraordinary response to our campaign and the widespread recognition of the national need which we felt we would meet. The Converse gift encourages us to believe that the amount to complete our effort will be forthcoming."

Mr. Converse, one of the group of international financiers who founded the United States Steel corporation, prepared for Harvard but was prevented at the last moment from entering. He was general manager and later president of the National Tube Works and was influential in bringing about a consolidation of the various tube works concerns with the United States Steel corporation of which he was director for many years. He was long president of the Liberty bank of New York. Later he was one of the founders and first president of the Bankers' Trust company and was subsequently chairman of the board of directors of that company. He endowed a professorship of banking in the Harvard school of business administration. The Converse library at Amherst was a gift from Mr. Converse in memory of his brother, who was an Amherst graduate.

BRAZILIAN REBELS ARE CHECKED BY FEDERALS

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 7.—Fighting between the Sao Paulo forces and the Brazilian rebels, is continuing, according to advices forwarded from Rio de Janeiro. Since Sept. 22 the rebels have been trying to force their way down the Parana river, but have been checked at the port of San Juan by the federals who sank a rebel steamer. Another rebel vessel is aground.

INTERESTING TALK ON CALIFORNIA

An entertaining talk on California was given before the Y's Men's club at their semi-monthly meeting last evening in the "Y" hall by Rev. Percival E. Thomas, pastor of the First Congregational church.

The talk followed an excellent dinner which was served under the direction of Mrs. Valentine Willmott, Mrs. Murdoch McKinnon, Mrs. Thomas Coombs and Mrs. Bertha Branson. The addresses were given by Misses Olive Coombs and Gladys Sutherland. During the dinner group singing was led by Joseph Hollingworth and a brief talk on insurance was given by Frank Daly.

Rev. Mr. Thomas was introduced by Pres. Hollingworth. Over 100 beautiful stereoscopic views of the "Sunshine State" were shown and the speaker interestingly described the places shown in the pictures. In conclusion he compared California with New England and said the latter place was more ideal to live in than much-talked-about California and he urged the others to visit and boost New England on every occasion.

OPENING OF THE EVENING SCHOOLS

The opening sessions of the public evening schools were held last evening and in every branch of the work it was reported that the classes were very large. At the evening high school the registration was approximately 50 in excess of last year's opening night registration. The men's vocational school reported about the same number registered as last year, and at the women's vocational classes it was reported that in two departments, cooking and home nursing, a waiting list was formed of those who could not be admitted owing to the limited capacity of the rooms. It is believed the other classes will be filled this evening.

No figures on the registration of the elementary schools could be given but it is believed that a record will be established this year. Registrations will be accepted in all but the high school this evening. The next high school registration session will be held Wednesday at 7 p. m. in the school office.

MEETING OF LEGION POST AND AUXILIARY

A joint meeting of Lowell Post 87, American Legion, and American Legion Auxiliary was held last evening in the veterans' quarters in the Memorial Auditorium and was well attended by members of both organizations.

Commander Collin C. Macdonald presided and seated at his right was Mrs. Nellie Usher, president of the auxiliary. A routine business meeting of the Legion was held and upon its completion, Mrs. Usher reported on the work accomplished by the auxiliary.

A report on the national Legion convention at St. Paul was given by James F. McCready, Lowell delegate. He said that Lowell post ranks high in the list of posts throughout the country and that it should be proud of its work. He told of the hospitality accorded by residents of St. Paul, stating that for every minute not taken up at meetings some activity was provided by the hospitality committee. James F. Conway, of the prize committee recommended that a shield should be donated for the winner of the annual high school regimental individual drill. Chairman Cornelius Buckley of the visiting committee reported that four members were sick in hospitals. A number of other committees reported and the meeting voted to present Past Commander Joseph A. Molloy, a past commander's badge at the next meeting.

JEWELRY TO MATCH.—Ear rings match the necklaces this season, and bracelets frequently do the same.

FAVOR ADOPTION OF THIRD NATIONAL RADIO NEW CONSTITUTION CONFERENCE

LYNN, Oct. 7.—Partial returns up to noon today indicate almost to a certainty that the rank and file of the Amalgamated Shoe Workers at the referendum polled by all local unions Monday, voted in favor of adoption of the new constitution recommended by the union's recent convention.

The change in union form of government, becoming effective Jan. 1, means present general officers are to be abolished and a district council and district agent substituted to conduct the union's affairs. The district council would consist of two delegates and an alternate, chosen by each local, and the district agent would be elected by the union at large. The newly adopted constitution calls for organization of the new district council by Dec. 12, but dates for nomination and election of the council members and district agent remain to be set.

Present officials, President General Walter J. Fogarty of Rochester, N. Y., General Secretary-Treasurer James P. Coleman of Lynn, and Charles Harris-horn, Lynn, member of the present general council which will be abolished, are to continue to hold office until the new plan becomes effective Jan. 1.

The change was advocated largely as an economy measure, doing away with several paid officials, and the Amalgamated becoming virtually a Lynn union instead of one making pretense to being a national organization of shoe workers. It is not believed the change will have any material effect on the shoe industry here, peace agreements with 37 Lynn firms standing until April 30, 1925.

LA FOLLETTE FORCES LOSE COURT FIGHT

BATON ROUGE, La., Oct. 7.—The La Follette-Wheeler forces last night lost their court fight to have the names of thirteen electors placed on the Louisiana official ballot in the general election of next month. Judge W. C. Jones of the supreme court refused to compel Secretary of State James B. Bailey to print the names on the ticket.

In dismissing mandamus proceedings filed by attorneys on behalf of J. J. Flanner, head of the Louisiana La Follette action, the state judge said the names of the electors on the ballot on the ground that the state law requiring 1000 signatures of qualified electors had not been complied with.

The prince is coming at the invitation of Louis F. Swift, Jr., whose secretary said no definite plans for his entertainment had been made, but a reception at the Swift home or at a country club was probable.

He spent the night aboard his special train here after speaking to a capacity audience in the Duluth armory. The speech, marked by a continuation of his attack on the La Follette candidacy, was the 12th the republican nominee has made in two trips into the state. The St. Paul address was expected to be the parting shot. It is not probable that he will be able to visit this state again before election.

Slowing down

It's harder than speeding up, says engineer after three million miles on the road

By STEPHEN HANNIGAN
HOBOKEN, N. J., Oct. 4.—"Slowing down is a lot more difficult than speeding up."

So spoke Richard Trezise, 70, as he climbed into the cab of a railroad engine for his last 50-mile run as a locomotive engineer. He is being retired after 41 continuous years of service in a cab on the Lackawanna.

You see, for years and years I have been speeding up," he explained as he climbed aboard his faithful iron horse. "and now the red flag is against me. I must make an emergency halt, get down off my engine and sit by the roadside while the world of engines goes speeding past."

"It's going to be the most trying task of my life. All these years my orders have been for more speed and I've become accustomed to opening the throttle and making up lost time. Now the brakes must be applied for, according to regulations, old age has overtaken me. I am 70."

Trezise has traveled 3,000,000 miles. Of the millions of passengers entrusted to his care he has never lost a life. He is proud of his record.

"All life is like railroad," he philosophized, "there is a constant rush and a fear lest one be late. Haste becomes a mania and a habit. Every nerve is centered on going faster. The mind and body become attuned to it."

Then suddenly age or success, or any number of reasons, brings about a change in pace. If you can't slow down gradually and systematically as you have gathered speed, the result is likely to be disastrous.

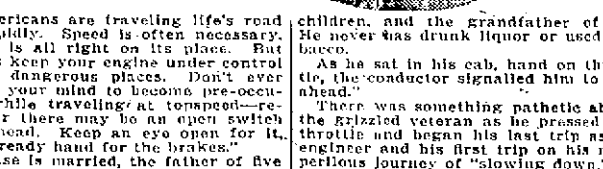

"You can gather speed with reckless abandon—but the brakes must be applied cautiously. Jamming on brakes while traveling at top speed will most likely wreck you."

"Americans are traveling life's road too rapidly. Speed is often necessary, and it is all right on its place. But always keep your engine under control and do not gradually and systematically permit your mind to become pre-occupied while traveling at top speed—remember there may be an open switch just ahead. Keep an eye open for it, and a ready hand for the brakes."

Trezise is married, the father of five children, and the grandfather of 13. He never has drunk liquor or used tobacco.

As he sat in his cab, hand on throttle, the conductor signalled him to "go ahead."

There was something pathetic about the grizzled veteran as he pressed the throttle and began his last trip as an engineer and his first trip on a new, perilous journey of "slowing down."

BODY MAY BE THAT OF MISSING CASHIER

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Oct. 7.—The father and wife of Guy A. Rice of this city, missing assistant cashier of the American Thread company of Holyoke, Mass., disappeared a month ago, went to Beverly today to an effort to identify as that of Rice a body found in a pond in that city under circumstances indicating murder. The day after Rice disappeared, his wife received a letter postmarked in Boston in which he intimated he intended to do away with himself. Rice's father, A. H. Rice, sent word to the Beverly authorities yesterday asking that disposal of the body be deferred until his arrival.

ALMA GLUCK COMING TO THE AUDITORIUM

When Alma Gluck sings in a smaller city before going to Boston, the people of the smaller city are apt to say, as many did in Lowell about other artists, that the small town is a "good place for a dress rehearsal." In reality, it is not. Madame Gluck before Boston does, but, then the great singer appears in New York before she comes to Lowell. Most one conclude from that that New York is a testing ground for Lowell.

The truth of the matter is that Madame Gluck's tour is quite short, due simply and solely to her steadfast determination to be a real mother before she is anything else. That is the reason each one of her children—their names are, in order, "Zimballa," "Lore," and "Lore"—has cost her fully $150,000 in concert engagements because she insisted on caring for and nursing her babies as any old-fashioned mother would do. Millionaire often refers to his "half million-dollar family."

Thousands of people know Alma Gluck through the Victor records she has made. Indeed, it was the insistent call from the people to hear her in concert which made her, little by little, curtail her opera schedule until she was devoting what time she could away from her children to her concert work. There is a rich, warm quality in it that thrills audiences night after night. And yet, with hundreds of cities to be covered, she is now on a tour, limiting her tours in order that she may devote more time to her family.

The Lowell concert, next Tuesday, Oct. 14, will be at the Lowell Memorial Auditorium, and tickets are available now at the local Stetson store, 120 Merrimack street. It is the first concert in the celebrated Stetson concert series.

SEN. WHEELER SPEAKS IN OREGON

WHEELER SPECIAL, En Route to Portland, Ore., Oct. 7.—Senator Wheeler, independent vice presidential candidate, took his speaking campaign into Oregon today. His schedule called for an early arrival at Portland and a departure for California on Wednesday. His California engagement promised to keep him the balance of the week in the northern half of the state and to place him in Los Angeles territory by Monday.

Yesterday at Seattle he introduced new topics into his speaking repertoire, dealing with the conduct of the Alaskan government railroad and alleged banking transactions in Massachusetts at the time President Coolidge was governor of that state.

Crowd of 2000 striking silk workers of Paterson, N. J., refused authority to hold meeting in hall, battle on street with police.

The dressmaking class held its first session last evening at the club rooms in Kearney square under the direction of Miss Mildred Mulkeny. Those wishing to enter this class may send in their application and will be admitted on Thursday evening at the second session.

On Oct. 15 and 19 delegates from the various Girls' clubs throughout the state will meet in Lowell to discuss club policies and programs. They will be the guests of the local club and the hospitality committee under the chairmanship of Miss Nellie Thomas, is preparing an elaborate program which will comprise a banquet, a reception at the Green Lantern and a dancing party in the clubrooms in the square.

MUNICIPAL COUNCIL MEETING TONIGHT

Short session of the city council is expected for tonight, little other than the usual mass of routine business being scheduled to come before the meeting. The special committee on Central bridge will meet prior to the council session with a view to preparing a report on the bridge to submit to the council.

It is regarded as quite likely that the committee will recommend the immediate engagement of a disinterested engineer of note to report on the advisability of repairing or replacing the present structure.

SEC. WORK DENIES WHEELER'S CHARGE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—Secretary Work denied knowledge today of "the deal" between J. P. Morgan's Alaska steamship company and the government-owned Alaska railroad, fixing division of freight rates between the two concerns on joint shipments which last night was made the basis of a campaign speech by Senator Wheeler, independent vice-presidential candidate.

"In the first place," Mr. Work said, "the senator is talking about transactions which occurred in the interior department before I entered the office. Secondly, you can be sure that I never wrote any letter asking that anything be kept secret."

TEN STRIKERS RETURN TO WORK

MUST CUT WAGES OR CLOSE PLANT

Co. demanded relative to notices posted in their mills of a 12½ per cent wage reduction, effective Oct. 13. Gov. Smith Will Not Speak Here man C. J. Cronin of the democratic city committee and Chairman J. Joseph Hennessy and Treasurer Dr. P. J. Meehan of the O'Sullivan campaign committee waited on the Empire State governor in his suite at the Hotel Cambridge in Manchester and asked him to stop off and speak here.

The governor stated that he would not depart from the program given him by the democratic national committee nor would he deviate from his early announced intention of not making more than a single speech in any one day. He explained that he had 27 invitations to speak in other cities and towns between Manchester, N. H., and Providence, and that to accept one would make it politically expedient and necessary that he accept all.

Mrs. Upham (above) granted his request by suing for divorce, which was granted, together with $50 a month for the support of their son, age 5.

WERE YOU ONE WHO FAILED TO VOTE?

Mr. and Mrs. Voter: Give serious thought to the following figures:

In 1906, 80 per cent of the eligible voters of the country voted.

In 1908, 73 per cent cast their ballots.

In 1910, 68 per cent voted.

In 1912, 62 per cent voted.

In 1920, less than 50 per cent of those eligible to vote went to the polls.

Within the last decade there has been a retrogression of civic consciousness; a failure on the part of a large number of good citizens to perform their duty of citizenship.

Were you one of the 25 million who failed to vote in 1920?

Voting is a privilege as well as a duty. Election day is November 4. Vote as you please—but vote!

afternoon. It is an action of tort in the sum of $10,000 brought by Eva M. Forsberg, administratrix of the estate of G. Adolf Forsberg, against E. O. Lyneth of Middlesex Village.

The plaintiff alleges in her declaration that the defendant was operating his automobile in a negligent and careless manner at the time of the accident. The defendant denies this and says in reply that Forsberg was not exercising due care in his progress along the street.

Case Was Settled

The action of contract case involving a real estate commission was settled in court this forenoon after a jury had been drawn and the plaintiff's counsel had made his opening address. The plaintiff, Max Rosenberg, sought to recover $297 from Sarah Richard, for whom he claims he sold property in Hiale street. Settlement was made by the defendant before the trial actually got underway.

LONDON STRIKE AVERTED BY AFTERNOON TEA

By MILTON BRONNER
N.E.A. Service Writer

LONDON, Oct. 7.—Not so long ago a Frenchman said he could tell the age of women by their names. And now comes another Frenchman with the announcement that women's names suggest colors, as thus:

White—Berencie, Marie, Marguerite, Claire, Ophelia, Isoult.

Blue—Eugenia, Zoe, Virginia, Elise, Celina.

Black—Diana, Rachel, Irene, Esther, Rebecca, Nathalie.

Red—Augusta, Faustine, Claudia.

Green—Bertha, Bernardine, Valeria.

Rose—Caroline, Madeleine, Laura, Alice.

Yellow—Gertrude, Francisca, Anne.

Gray—Gabrielle, Jeanne, Germaine, Henriette.

Great Britain is a country where the booze flows freely, but in the last analysis it is tea rather than whisky which holds the fort. The whole blooming country suspends operations every afternoon at 4 o'clock to take its tea.

And recently a serious strike was averted by the same cup that cheers but doesn't inebriate. The girls who work at the curing plant for herrings at Grimsby declared a strike and demanded an all-round increase of five shillings a week.

The president of the Employers' association, after much argument, diplomatically suggested they adjourn for ten. In the meantime he rushed off to consult with his associates. Then he came back with the announcement that the increase would be granted.

The girls cheered him, drank his health in tea and went back to work. The King of Belgium is highly popular in Italy as a result of his last visit to that country, and you would never guess why.

Rotten cigars did it. All over the peninsula, the smoke of the plain people, when they treat themselves to a cigar, is one known as a "Tuscan." It has the delicious flavor and odor of a piece of old rope that has been set on fire.

When King Albert was in Rome he was the chief guest at a big banquet offered him by one of the old nobles of Italy. The wine was being drunk and the cigars were being smoked around. In honor of a king the very choicest Havana cigars that money can buy had been procured.

"No, thanks," said the king, "if you wish to give me pleasure, offer me a Tuscan."

There was great confusion. None of the great and near-great ever smoked the common things. But the waiter assigned to the king came to the rescue. He offered the monarch his own cigar case. It contained only one Tuscan.

The story got out. The people cheered the king. His taste in smoke was like theirs.

VOTING AS A DUTY

The issue of the hour is the registration of voters so that a full vote may be cast at the election on November 4. It would be a real national disgrace to have it found that not much more than half the people who are eligible to vote, show enough interest to attend to the necessary preliminaries of getting their names on the voting list, and then going to the polls on election day to exercise the proud privilege of assisting in the choice of officials to conduct the government for the ensuing year. These political slackers are numerous in Lowell as in other cities, and throughout the country a great effort is being made to arouse interest in the obligation of all citizens to vote.

It has been remarked by a political speaker that if you go through any city in the country and pick out the bunos and disreputables, you will find that they are all registered. They all vote for their friends and without any thought of whether the results will bring good government or the reverse. As a rule this class does not want good government; they vote in many cases for the least worthy candidates in the running and where a few votes may decide a contest, it is seen that those who fail to vote, assume a serious responsibility. In a great many cases, they are responsible for the election of dishonest and incompetent men. Nevertheless, these same people are among the first to criticize if the government goes wrong, and if the people's money is squandered without showing adequate results.

Various committees are at work here in an effort to promote registration and the election commission has agreed to co-operate to the extent of holding sessions in various wards of the city. These should be attended by all who are eligible for registration in order that they may have the right to exercise the franchise in the coming election which will doubtless be one of the most important in our history.

It is of special importance not only because there is a formidable third party in the field, but because of the number of important issues submitted to the people for decision. Of these there are seven in all and they are such that every citizen should express his or her opinion on each and all of them.

On some, it will be right and proper to vote in the affirmative, but on others it is of the utmost importance that a negative vote be registered. If any unpopular measure be carried and saddled on the people against their will and to their detriment, the slackers who do not vote, who do not go to the polls to guard their liberties, their rights and their pocketbooks, will have to bear a large part if not the entire blame. If, for example, the referendum for a 2-cent tax on every gallon of gasoline sold in the state hereafter be carried by a few hundred votes, then the result can be laid at the door of the political slackers, thousands of whom did not think it worth while to vote on election day.

FALSE REPUBLICAN CLAIMS

Nothing is more amusing in this campaign than the persistent claim by Manager Butler and other republican leaders that the Harding-Coolidge administration has solved the problem of unemployment and that the country is enjoying an era of great industrial prosperity.

We have been wondering whether the people who have been out of work off and on for the last year can be hypnotized into believing this political propaganda. The republican propagandists, the titans out of every hundred farmers who have been forced into bankruptcy during the last year and a half are not in a position to admit that the campaign claim in this respect is based upon facts; neither will wage earners who have been out of work for the greater part of the time nor even those who have been given employment at reduced wages. Nor do the merchants and bankers who have been forced into insolvency or otherwise weakened the gale with great difficulty, believe that Mr. Butler or the republican leaders are telling the truth. There are hundreds of proofs of industrial depression that completely refute Mr. Butler's claim, and while some improvement may be noticed there is still widespread unemployment and still an anxious hope for the return of normal conditions and real prosperity such as were enjoyed under the last democratic administration.

Perhaps no single line of business suffered more than did the textile industry from the general depression. The operatives hereabouts cannot be convinced that we are in the midst of a great era of prosperity. Transportation and financial affairs usually indicate whether business is prospering. For the first six months of 1924, the gross earnings of the railroads amounted to $2,865,947,474 as compared with $3,091,934,815 during the same half of 1923, a decrease of $225,987,341. During the same periods, net earnings of the roads fell from $651,828,362 to $597,828,129, a decrease of $54,000,233.

During the first six months of 1924, there were 128 bank failures in the country, with liabilities amounting to $153,225,720. During 1923, there were 510 bank failures, with liabilities of $196,750,000, so that there have been four-fifths as many in six months of 1924 as in all of 1923, showing that conditions have been far from prosperous. During three years of the last Wilson administration, 1918, 1919 and 1920, there were only 123 bank failures, with liabilities of only $23,361,049. These figures prove the falsity of republican claims, but in reality the average citizen needs no proof that industrial depression and not prosperity prevails with results that have caused the people to draw upon what they had saved under the Wilson administration.

SEN. WALSH'S ADDRESS

Senator Walsh's speech at city hall yesterday noon was a rouser. With his characteristic attitude of being on a level with the people, the senator did not stand on the top step as do most other speakers, but descended several steps until he stood almost on a level with his audience. He dealt in a very forcible manner with republican mismanagement and corruption as exposed in the various investigations conducted by congress. Senator Walsh himself was the instigator of two investigations of the Disabled Veterans' bureau which were opposed by republicans in the house. The rascality at Forbes in depriving the disabled veterans of the relief for which the people's money was appropriated, was clearly exposed by the senator. He also condemned the president for vetoing the Furum bill, as well as his bonus bill for the service men and his parsimony in also vetoing the bill that would have given the latter carriers a slight increase in wages. He had it from an expert that a letter carrier

The perspiring salesman brought another pile and laid it on the counter, saying: "These are quite the latest thing, madam. You will notice that the edge runs right round the border and that the center is in the middle." "Dear me," remarked the dear old thing, looking at the goods through her spectacles. "I will take half a dozen of these, I think."

Couldn't Tame Him
Jones was never averse to taking a day off from the office, and one day he sent a note to his employer to say he was ill and that it would be impossible for him to turn up at the office that day. "I thought you were ill yesterday, Mr. Jones," said the boss when Jones arrived next morning. "Yes, sir," Jones said, looking very ill. "I saw you at the office yesterday afternoon." "Didn't I, sir?" inquired Jones, not the least disconcerted. "You should have seen me at the finish of the third race."

Proud of Her
Mrs. Brown consented to sing a solo at church on Sunday morning. As a rule she did not take her small son Bobby, but upon learning that she was to sing, he begged so hard to go that she finally decided to take him. He agreed to sit quietly with daddy and not make any noise. Now, Bobby thinks no one can sing like his mother, and all the while she was singing that morning he sat in rapt silence. As the last words of the song died away in the stillness of the church, and she was about to return to her seat in the choir loft, when she heard the clapping of a small pair of hands, and the voice of Bobby, in a tone that could be heard throughout the church, exclaim, "That was fine, mamma!" —Los Angeles Times.

His Reward
Vincent was a lively little lad. Perhaps it was his exceeding liveliness that had something to do with his great dullness where lessons were concerned. Happily he was so lively that he was quite incapable of knowing when he was in disgrace. Knowing Vincent his father resolved to ask him a few questions on the evening. Calling his small son to him, he asked: "Well, you are pleasing your teacher at school these days?" "O, yes," replied the lad. "Teacher said he would give me a soldier if I go on as I am going on at present." "A soldier? You mean a box of soldiers, I suppose?" "I suppose that's what teacher meant," answered Vincent. "But he only said one, though I forgot his name." "Where name?" asked the puzzled parent. "The soldier's. Let me see—O, I remember now. It was Corporal Punishment." —Chicago News.

Echo
How sweet the answer Echo makes
To music at night,
When, roused by lute or horn, she wakes,
And far away, o'er lawns and lakes,
Goes answering light.

Yet love hath echoes truer far,
And far more sweet,
Than e'er beneath the moonlight's star,
Of horn or lute, or soft guitar,
The songs repeat.

"Tis when the sigh in youth sincere
And only then—
The sigh that's breathed for one to hear,
Is by that one, that only dear,
Breathed back again."
—THOMAS MOORE.

MAN ABOUT TOWN

Only one song in a thousand makes a hit and brings big profits to the publisher and the singer. E. C. Mills, life's chairman of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers. Many will be surprised that so few songs go over big. And yet the situation is no different than in other lines of work. For every one that succeeds, a thousand or more fail outright or at best never reach more than very mild success. Success is the exception, failure the rule. More profitable to study failures and try to figure why they failed, than to analyze the careers of the rich and important. What not to do is quite as important as what to do. Fifteen years ago it was not unusual for a popular song to sell three million copies. Now it's a rare commodity of sheet music that reaches a third that much. E. C. Mills blames this on the decline of piano and violin playing. It's much easier to stick a 50 cent record on the phonograph or tune in the radio than to practice for years and probably get nowhere. Man used to have to create his own music. Now it's cut-and-dried and served to him, like nearly everything else.

The evening classes in practical arts being conducted by the various schools are being well attended this year, and in every school large registrations have been received. Although the number of pupils dwindles during the course of study, a good number remains and it is with this number that the teachers can work to advantage. The entire school year is divided into periods during which time a limited number of lessons are taught. Cooking, millinery and dressmaking are the main attractions at the schools, although home nursing and embroidery are also offered. These classes afford the working girl and the busy mother an opportunity to brush up along the lines taught, leaving plenty of time during the day for household and other duties, as the courses entail no home work.

I am told that Bishop Delany, assembly, fourth degree, K. of C., will have a splendid attendance at the annual communion in commemoration of Columbus day at St. Michael's church next Sunday. The assembly is one of the largest in New England, ranking next to the Bishop Cheverus assembly of Boston, and hence hopes are entertained quite optimistically by the officers that this assembly will be very large on October 12. Sunday afternoon, the assembly is to parade in Newburyport, and on Monday morning, October 13, it will join with Lowell council's celebration at St. Peter's church.

Before telling the boy that the response was to be that he should go home, but the father asked, "What's the score?" "They all get that way," said the boy laughingly, as he left the telephone booth.

GETS BIG RECEPTION IN NORTH CHELMSFORD

North Chelmsford turned out 500 strong, early last evening to hear United States Senator David I. Walsh speak at the rally staged in Vinal square in his behalf. Red lights, a hunting decorated speakers' stand, and cheering carrying the ballyhoo signs gave the flavor of old-times to the rally and the junior senator was received with the same enthusiasm and welcome that greeted his appearance elsewhere in the course of the day.

John E. Harrington, chairman of the doorman at the town committee, introduced Sen. Walsh with a few brief sentences. "His record has been clean and honorable," he said, "and we are now called upon to show our appreciation of his honest and faithful service by returning him to the office he has filled so admirably."

"There are so many issues in this campaign," said Sen. Walsh in opening, "that one hardly knows what would be most appropriate to suit this locality and the limited time which I have here. I have been your lieutenant-governor and your governor, you honored me again in 1917 by electing me as a delegate to the constitutional convention. I have since sent me to the senate. Now after five years I've come back to you to ask you to give upon my record there—scrutinize it carefully if you will—and determine for yourself if it is of a character worthy to warrant my further service."

"I was long ago, early in my political career, that I learned a man in public life must choose one or two courses, to serve the dollar or to serve the people. The financial interests of this country are well organized and they daily make themselves known and heard. I have turned to them a deaf ear and ever tried my utmost to champion the cause which would help to lighten your burdens. I myself sprang from the common people. My education was gained from the pen and the dollar saved by my parents working in the little town of Clinton. So it is natural that your cause should be my cause. In my six years in the senate I have worked hard with your cause in mind at all times. I cannot claim perfection. But I can claim that I have given conscientious service without ever being guilty of a betrayal. Ask your inspection and your criticism of my public record. If it does not meet your approval I do not ask your vote."

"If my record does meet with your approval, and I have confidence that it will, I want you to send me back to Washington. I want to watch those pirates, I want to watch those crooks whom I have been after for these several years. The only cry you hear raised against me is not upon my record but because my opponent is held forth to you as 'Coolidge's friend.'"

"A man serving you in public life," he continued, "is either with you or with the moneyed interests. I want to go back and fight them. I know them now. The fight in politics today is not between political parties. It is between the dollars and the working people. I know I'm going back because I've stayed with the people, I have protected them against greed, avarice, profiteering and exploitation and greed. It is a case of the interests against humanity. I know you'll send me back there. I look with confidence to Nov. 4 when you will go to the polls and settle with your mark on the ballot whether you will reward a faithful stewardship or surrender to and cry for quarter from those who exploit you to the bitter end."

"I am asking you to go to the polls Nov. 4 and forget the party label. Don't vote a ticket because your grandfather did or your uncle did, but look over the past performances of the candidates before you and then pick and vote for the man who is serving the people and not the dollar and the treasury department and his tax reduction effort so favorable to multi-millionaires and big business and so hostile to individuals and to small corporations and competitive businesses. AMUSEMENT NOTES

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE

One of the best touring orchestral bands in the country is Ferdinand's Havana orchestra, which appears at the Lowell B. F. Keith theatre this week in headline position. An uncommonly satisfactory program. Local theatregoers are somewhat familiar with the orchestra, having heard it only last year during a long circuit engagement. This summer it played the entire season at Pine Island park, Manchester, N. H. It is a splendid organization of musicians and the program presented is calculated to please any audience. Excellent interpretation is seen in the playing of certain selections from the opera "Pinafore," while in "Carmen," the action of the bull ring is vivid and realistic.

"Working for the Railroad" is the act of Glenn and Jenkins, black-face comedians, specializing in songs and novel dance steps. Much of their stuff is brand new this season and it is an act that cannot fail to register a most favorable impression.

Comedy, there is nothing else but.

A Stubborn Cough Loosens Right Up

This home-made remedy is a wonder for quick results. Easily and cheaply made.

Here is a home-made syrup which millions of people have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up stubborn coughs. It is cheap and simple, but very prompt in action. Under its healing, soothing influence, chest soreness goes, phlegm loosens, breathing becomes easier, tickling in the throat stops and you get a good night's restful sleep. The usual throat and chest colds are conquered by it in 24 hours or less. Nothing better for bronchitis, hoarseness, croup, throat tickle, bronchial asthma or winter coughs.

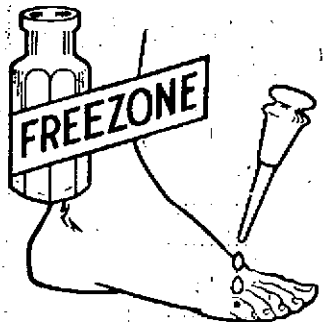

To make this splendid cough syrup, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup and shake thoroughly. If you prefer, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, you get a full pint, a family supply of much better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for three times the money. Keeps perfectly and children love its pleasant taste.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, known the world over for its prompt healing effect upon the membranes.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

CORN

Lift Off—No Pain!

Doesn't hurt one bit! Drop a little "Freezone" on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then shortly you lift it right off with fingers. Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of "Freezone" for a few cents, sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes and the foot callouses, without soreness or irritation.—Adv.

Beauty

A Gleamy Mass of Hair

35c "Danderine" does Wonders for Any Girl's Hair

Girls! Try this! When combing and dressing your hair, just moisten your hair-brush with a little "Danderine" and brush it through your hair. The effect is startling! You can do your hair up immediately and it will appear twice as thick and heavy—a mass of gleamy hair, sparkling with life and possessing that incomparable softness, freshness and luxuriance. While beautifying the hair "Danderine" is also toning and stimulating each single hair to grow thick, long and strong. Hair stops falling out and dandruff disappears. Get a bottle of "Danderine" at any drug or toilet counter, and just see how healthy and youthful your hair appears after this delightful, refreshing dressing.—Adv.

In the offering of Lewis and Norton, touring from "Coat to Coat." The dialogue is rapid and sustained and the plot jumps from one scene to another without missing a smile along the way.

Judson Cole is a mystifying magician and no mistake, and he injects just enough comedy to give his act a new twist that is pleasing. His model of the hand of an ancient Egyptian fortune teller makes many interesting situations.

The other two acts are Senna & Webster, dancers, and Carl and Valeska Winter, in a novel musical sketch with many odd features.

The feature picture this week is "The King of Wild Horses," a strong and thrilling drama of a fight for supremacy between two beautiful, untamed stallions. The weekly news film has pictures of the world series.

STRAND THEATRE

"Bread" an inspiring story from the facile pen of Charles G. Norris, is being told in picture form at the Strand now. It features no less a personage than the bright little star, Mimi Busch, who plays her part in a realistic manner and gains many new friends in so doing. The story is an honest, fearless recital of events not commonly recorded. Those who have seen it on the screen acclaim it more entertaining than the book itself. Comedy, drama and melodrama are interspersed throughout. Modern problems are unraveled and it is safe to say that no film has come so near to the life of the nation as this picture.

"Bread" Supporting Miss Busch in the play are Robert Fraser, Pat O'Malley, W. J. H. Hawley and others of equal repute.

The second feature on the current bill is "The Reckless Age," a vivid dramatization of the mad, joyous whirl of society and excitement. Reginald Denny carries the leading role, an expert fashion and is seen in various thrilling scenes. He kicked a phoney ear into a kidnapping taxi, a millionaire sportsman stole a diamond necklace out of his pocket and stopped a kidnapping, and he cleaned up a newspaper office with his fists.

The story is an adaptation from the Saturday Evening Post feature, "Love Insurance." Mr. Denny plays the part of an "insurance shooter," whose task is to look after the romance of a nobleman who has taken out a policy against failure to marry.

He falls in love himself and complications set in. The hero extricates himself from the difficulties, however, and a lively finish is in order. The star has the capable assistance of Bud Dwyer, William Weston and Helen Stevenson.

LOEW'S REALTY

Both pictures at the Realto the first half of the week are so good that it is a mighty difficult task to pick the best of the two. Some might say that "The Forgotten Wife" with Madge Bellamy should be the feature, while others would state that Buck Jones in "Cupid's Fireman" is the better of the two. In fact, they are both excellent and both are as good as each other.

"His Forgotten Wife" is a picture, photoplay, offers one of the biggest entertainment values the screen has ever given. In addition to mere entertainment—the sort that will transport the viewer away from care in the midst of themselves—it contains pathos—as well as laughter and heart-throbs as well as thrilling, amusing and fast-moving adventure. And it has all the virility and novelty one has come to expect in the Palmer productions. Having been written directly for the screen by a trained photo-playwright, Will Lambert, imagine this for a novelty of plot and situation: A war hero who has lost his memory obtains, with his wife, a position as a servant in the household of which he used to be master! Fancy the complications between the mistress of the household and the man who has just taken and the mistress of the household; after he had been recognized, and yet denies his identity! That's merely one of the kicks in this picture.

A powerful cast headed by such actors as Madge Bellamy, Warner Baxter, Maude Wayne, Hazel Keener and Tom Guise interpret the roles of Mr. Lambert's story.

"Cupid's Fireman," which is the added feature, was called "Andy McGee's Chorus Girl" when it came from the pen of Richard Harding Davis. The film has lost none of the original charm of the story but has added to it a number of thrills, Charles Jones, the husky and popular ex-cowboy of the Fox lot, felt right at home in the active role of the fireman and made the most of it every minute. Marian Nixon, the dainty, diminutive leading lady, played the chorus girl with equal enthusiasm.

There's much of humor and much of pathos running through the story. Andy first found his actress sweetheart when he was standing fire watch at the theatre where she was playing. He learned to love her only to discover that she was already married—and to a scoundrel. The way was dramatized for them when the apartment house in which she lived was burned and he saved her, but failed to save her drunken husband, who perished in the flames. Other pictures on the program are: Century comedy and a Fox News reel.

Tom Mix and Tony, the wonder horse, will be seen at the Realto the last half of the week starting Thursday in a screen version of Zane Grey's "The Last Of The Duanes." Mix's latest and greatest picture! John J. Kane and the Hiale orchestra are in the pit.

MOM'N POP

MERRIMACK SQUARE
Harold Lloyd, comedy star of international fame with his ever present bone-rimmed glasses and his smile, scores another great success in "Why Worry," showing at the Merrimack Square theatre all this week. Lloyd gained the title of leading American comedian in "Safely First," which was shown here and made a decided hit, but he is even better as the star of "Why Worry."

Assisting the intangible Lloyd in this feature production is John Assen, whose eight feet nine-and-a-quarter inches of stature dwarfs Lloyd's ordinary height and makes him appear but a child when the two are shown together. Assen, as well as being a giant, is also a great comedian and pairs well with Lloyd in keeping the moving picture audience laughing from the first flash on the screen until "this" is thrown on the silver sheet.

The scene of "Why Worry" is a make-believe South American republic where revolutions are every day occurrences and the first thing thought babies when they succeed in taking a few steps on the floor is the use of the rifle.

In this war-torn country comes "Harold van Pelham," (Lloyd) who is seeking a cure for his supposedly illness stricken body in the beautiful and reported-to-be healthy spot. He thinks he is suffering from heart trouble and takes along a nurse who will be able to tend the body home for burial in case Harold is fatally stricken while sojourning under southern skies.

The sick young man and his nurse are met at the boat by a squad of soldiers who are supposedly to escort them to a hotel but in reality take them to prison. Harold is cast into a cell occupied by the giant and informed that he and the giant are to be shot at sunrise as dangerous characters.

Knowing full well that the soldiers of the nation became incensed if heated of their sunrise shooting spree, Harold hesitates to attempt an escape but finally agrees with the giant and nurse that his own safety is

THIS BRIGHT BABY GIRL

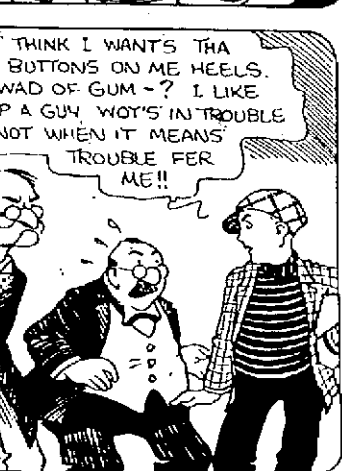

Brought Joy to Home. Mrs. Price's Health Restored by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Scotat, Pa.—"I never felt like working, and when I would try to do any work standing on my feet, I would just drag around all day long. At times I would have terrible pains and would be in bed three or four days. I was in this condition about a year when I saw Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised in the papers. I had heard different women say it was good for women's troubles, and my aunt thought it would help me as it had helped her. So I took the Vegetable Compound and it brought things right, and I was in good shape before I became a mother again. I believe it helps at birth, too, as with both my other babies I suffered a great deal more than with this one. I thank you a thousand times for the good your medicine has done me."

of more account than the soldiers' feelings. They escape—and then follow more action than has ever before been shown moving picture fans in a release the length of Lloyd's.

The three escaped prisoners, no content to make good their own getaway, take matters into their own hands and in a series of side-splitting affairs put down the revolution and restore the country-side to peaceful pursuits.

After peace is declared, Harold decided he isn't troubled by a weak heart and becomes engaged to his nurse. Content that the country can get along without him, he and his bride-to-be set sail for the United States to enjoy married life without anyone's squabbles to care for but their own.

The second feature picture on the program is "Love's Whirlpool," featuring James Kirkwood, Lila Lee and Madge Bellamy. The bill also includes a news weekly, a comedy, "Missing Men," and "Mrs. Hippo," a special feature.

LOWELL OPERA HOUSE
The Stanley James Stock Players thrilled and delighted a large audience last night with "The Last Warning," a thrilling offering that will take rank as one of the premier stock offerings given here in recent years. Mr. Gerald Rowan, the leading man of the company, Miss Lillian Desmond, the leading woman, Miss Vessie Parrish and other members, particularly Franklyn Munnell and Wilmer Walter stand out for their work.

In tell much of the story of the play would be to in a measure spoil one's enjoyment of it. It is a novel melodrama with trick effects and many brand new features. There is a play

WILL OF STEPHEN ABBOTT

Relatives by Lowell Lumber Dealer

According to the will of Stephen W. Abbott, Lowell lumber dealer who died on Sept. 15, an estate of $160,000 is left to relatives. The document was filed for probate yesterday in East Cambridge. After the payment of a number of minor bequests, Mrs. Nellie M. Douglas of this city will receive the major portion of the income from a trust fund created in the will.

The will as it is filed leaves $1000 to Mr. Abbott's daughter, $1000 to Hattie E. Wentworth of Worcester, a sister of his first wife; $1000 to Abbie M. Hitchings, his housekeeper; $300 each to several nephews and nieces and their children; 40 shares of stock in the Burnham & Davis Lumber Co. to his son-in-law, Edgar H. Douglas; $25 for each year of service to each employee of the lumber company who were in the employ of the company continuously for 15 years prior to his death; his residue he left in trust and provides that out of the income $200 shall be paid every three months to Abbie M. Hitchings, $150 out of the income every six months to a brother, Ashmun R. Abbott of Abion, Me., and the residue of this income to his daughter, Nellie M. Douglas for life, upon her death to go to her children for life and upon the death of the last of them he provides that the principal is to be divided equally among his grand heirs at law, Leon E. Abbott, Esther H. Douglas and Francis M. Qua are named in the will as trustees.

The law firm of McIntyre & Wilson of Lowell is handling the will.

STRUCK BY AUTOMOBILE

Harold Stephens, 3-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Stephens of 55 Liberty street, was struck and slightly injured by an automobile in Liberty street yesterday morning. The driver of the machine which struck the boy is alleged to have continued on his way without reporting the accident.

AT ATLANTIC CITY

The Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway company is represented at the national convention of the American Electric Railway association, in session this week at Atlantic City, by Fred J. Crowley of this city, member of the board of trustees, and Fred A. Cummings of Lynn, assistant to the chairman of the trustees. Both delegates left Boston last evening for Atlantic City.

Within a play in the third act. Anyone who sees the play will agree with that distinguished critic, Heywood Brown, who in the New York Times well said it "is really better than 'The Rat.' We suffered and enjoyed as terrifying a thrill as we have ever known in the theatre."

Decidedly novel, humorous, lifelike and ingenious, the play keeps the audience on edge. There is a murder mystery and a love story and the audience as the New York Times well said in its review of the show is kept "congealed with terror that was half laughing and thrilled with mocking fear."

"The Last Warning" bears the distinction of being the only play of its kind that the stage has ever known. Those who are yearning for something absolutely new, and with lots of delicious laughter into the bargain, will be more than pleased with this week's play.

The intelligence of pigs stands on a level with that of a horse.

ESPECIALLY FOR YOUNG CHILDREN

New Laxative Recommended for Infants Praised by Mothers

Laxatives suitable for older people are too harsh for infants and young children but the gentle action of Baby's Own Tablets causes no griping or pain. For this reason mothers all over the section where these tablets have been introduced are giving them hearty recommendations.

Mrs. Edmund Fecteau, of No. 51 Middle street, Pawtucket, R. I., says: "Harsh laxatives did not agree with my children so I gave them Baby's Own Tablets and they liked them. The tablets do not cause any stomach disturbance but quiet the children and give them sound, healthful sleep. When the little ones take cold I always give them Baby's Own Tablets and they get well quickly. Every mother should try the tablets and save a great deal of worry."

"You Can Do It Better With Gas"

NO! It Will NOT Burn Out Your Grate

Some people have asked, "Will coke burn out the grates?" Lowell Coke properly used will not burn out your grates any more than coal properly used.

Any fuel, if you run a hot fire, and allow the ashes to fill up the ash pit, will warp or burn out your grates.

Shake your heater sparingly and remove the ashes regularly—that is, do not let the ash pit fill up so there will be absolutely no danger of harm to your grates.

Lowell Coke

is a clean fuel. There is practically no smoke or soot. It burns up completely and leaves very little ash. There is no sifting. It is lighter than coal—you can burn it in any type of heater, furnace or boiler, with real satisfaction.

BILLY MURPHY BEATS KENOYER

Lowell Boy Wins Decision Over Derry Champ in 10-Round Bout at Nashua

NASHUA, N. H., Oct. 7.—Billy Murphy of Lowell received the decision after 10 rounds of hard fighting over Henry Kenoyer of Derry, the featherweight champion of New Hampshire, at the Olympic bouts last night in O'Connell hall.

Kenoyer led his opponent in the first three rounds of the bout, Murphy taking it easy to get his opponent's range. The latter had scored repeatedly with a wide arm right to the jaw, which, however, did not carry power enough to alarm Murphy. The next four rounds were fairly even, but with the advent of the eighth, the Lowell boxer began to cut loose his clever stuff. From that time on, Kenoyer had absolutely all he could do to keep Murphy away, to say nothing of forcing any fighting. The final three rounds were Murphy's by a margin plenty wide enough to justify the decision.

Billy had a distinct advantage over Kenoyer in height and reach, and a slight advantage in weight. The match was full of pep and action all the way. Neither fighter bore a mark at the final bell, but a spectator found any fault with the way they mixed it up while they were on the boards.

Vic Rivet of Lowell was defeated in the semi-final of eight rounds by Emil Stamant of Nashua. Rivet's seconds threw in the towel in the final round. Rivet's brother Pete, who was the referee, kicked the Lowell out, only to have it thrown in again. Jack Cooper of Lawrence refereed the main bout.

Murphy vs. Finnegans. Billy Murphy of Lowell, who added Young Kenoyer of Derry to his victory list at Nashua last night, returned to Lowell today to rest up until tomorrow, when he will engage in light training to be on edge for his battle with Honeyboy Finnegan of Boston in the main event of the Moody club show in Crescent rink on Thursday night. Murphy emerged from the Nashua bout without any marks of combat and the battle proved a good workout for the Finnegan battle. The Lowell boy took things easy in the opening rounds, but his flash in the latter part of the bout indicated his class. He took no chances of getting hurt or marked up, and his plan of campaign worked out successfully.

In meeting Finnegan he will face an experienced battler, one who measures up to him in height and reach, a southpaw like himself, who has been anxious to meet the Lowell boy for more than a year.

SUN BASEBALL EXTRA

Complete Account of Games, Including Final Put Out, in Special Edition

The Sun baseball extras, issued in connection with the world series games, contain a complete, detailed account of the contests. Saturday's extra was on the street exactly seven minutes before our contemporary. Yesterday in an endeavor to "beat The Sun," our neighbor "shortchanged" the reading public and went to press with an extra, which carried the final score in the headlines, but did not carry a complete account of the game in the running story. In the ninth inning Washington had three men on bases and but one out when Miller came to bat. He went out on a foul-fly to Lindstrom, still leaving three on and only two out. Here is where our contemporary went to press. But the game was not over, as Sun readers and all others who follow the game know. Much can happen with only two out, particularly when all the bases are occupied. But a chance was taken and the incomplete story was given to the public. The Sun, however, waited and gave the final and most important play. (Lutl, followed Miller to the plate. He came very near breaking up the game, when he bounced a terrific grounder to Lindstrom. The Giant third sacker grabbed the ball and tagged third for a force-out, thereby terminating the game. And despite the fact that the opposition paper tried to put one over with its "two-out-in-the-ninth edition," The Sun extra, complete in every detail, was on the street in record time. This is but another illustration of The Sun's policy of combining thoroughness and speed, and fans who desire the full and complete account of the baseball classic are urged to watch for The Sun extra. Another edition giving in addition to the detailed story, the official box score of the day's game, follows in short order.

WHITE SOX WIN CITY CHAMPIONSHIP

CHICAGO, Oct. 7.—The White Sox finished at the bottom of the American league percentage column, three notches lower than the Cubs in the National league, but took the championship of Chicago yesterday by winning 5 to 2, and making it four victories to two. It made the American league triumphant for the tenth time of 13 series played.

FAIR SEX ENJOY WORLD SERIES

The fourth game of the world series was played on the Electric Wonder score board at the Crescent rink this afternoon, and again a good sized crowd turned out to enjoy the fun. The board has attracted fine attendances since the opening game. It's accurate and realistic presentation of each and every play has made a great hit with fans and fanettes. Many of the ladies who follow and enjoy the national game are taking advantage of the opportunity of "seeing" the series at home and every afternoon a good size representation of the fair sex, who are accorded every courtesy on the part of the management, are on hand to cheer their favorites. The board will operate during every game of the series, with play starting at 2 o'clock.

Tommy Leonard, local boy, who has set up a string of 14 consecutive victories, will try to make it 15 when he tackles Johnny McBride of Lawrence in the semi-final of eight rounds. McBride is a pretty clever "bird," and has been seen here on many occasions and has always given satisfaction.

Young Stevenson and Johnny Herbert, who met here a couple of weeks ago in a slashing six round event, will renew acquaintance in one of the prelims Thursday evening. The other has not yet been announced.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—(By the Associated Press)—The army of baseball writers engaged in following the world series have turned almost en masse from the Washington Senators to the New York Giants, in the world series contest.

Unless the Washington infield returns to its drum-tight perfection of the first two games, it is freely predicted that New York might accomplish its victory in straight contests which would end the series here Wednesday and make a return to the capital city unnecessary.

McGraw, the veteran left hander, and Walter Johnson, Senator pitching ace, stand on the stoop of the world's championship quarters and must be removed before the Giants can enter. McGraw has nominated Virgil Barnes in the fourth game today. McGraw will start for Washington with O'Brien in reserve.

And if these two fail to stop the consistent advance of New York, Walter Johnson, hero of an 18-year pitching experience at Washington, will rally his mates in a last-ditch stand as dramatic, probably, as the opening game in Washington when Johnson led a crusade of hope and not a defense against despair.

His opponent, on the mound will again be Art Nehf, the veteran southpaw whose cunning and endurance outweighed the Senators' speed and enthusiasm in the opening game.

Today's battle, with uncertain hurriers to the box, may easily develop into another loose contest similar to that of yesterday, in which the defensive work of New York batters, and the wobbling pitchers, excelled that of the Senators' infield quartet behind hurling somewhat worse.

Frisch a Stone Wall. Captain Frankie Frisch of the Giants was the defensive wall against which Washington, and Goose Goslin, in particular, bounced futile efforts throughout the game. Ross Young contributed a diving catch and the entire Giant defense was nearly faultless.

Washington's infield, in strong contrast to its sensational play in the first two games, failed behind its uncertainty the second-string pitchers grew nervous and ineffective. The Giants got away in front and were never caught although the game was in doubt until the last man was out.

Manager Harris was responsible for the impetus which sent Marberry hero of the lone Senator victory, to defeat. A nine double play which would have retired the side in the second inning was prevented by the young manager who muffed Bluege's throw. A hit by Gowdy followed by two walks and a hit batsman by Marberry accounted for two runs. The Giants increased their lead to three in the next inning.

Ryan to the Rescue. But McQuillan couldn't hold it. He grew wild in the fourth, passed three men and departed with the bases jammed and one run in. Ryan forced in the next run but settled down and, with the support of Frisch and Young, held the Senators runless until the eighth.

Goose Goslin was the particular victim of Frisch as the second baseman raced back into short center and right to make two marvellous catches and later stopped a grounder ticketed for a hit-all from the bat of Goslin.

Twice in trying situations, Young staved another rally by taking Ruel's fly and somersaulting.

In the meantime Peckinpah had retired with a charity horse. Bluege moved from third to short and Miller played third. Miller let Gowdy's ground loak through his legs and Lindstrom scored the ex-soldier with a double. Ryan added another run by hitting the only homer ever made by a National league pitcher during a world series.

The game, which had declined into slow motion during the intermediate innings, became active again in the eighth when Washington all but went into the lead. With the score 5 to 2 against them, the Senators scored one run and had two on base following hits by Bluege and Shirley and a walk to Miller. Then Leibold sent a liner into the right field stands—foul by a foot. Had the ball been fair, it would have been a home run. The Giants apparently made it safe in their half by scoring a run on hits by Jackson and Gowdy and a sacrifice fly by Ryan. The usual full and complete account of the underdog in this series followed.

Harris began it by profiting by the only Giant fielding mistake of the game—a mix-up in the short left center which allowed his fly to go safe. Goslin fooled the opposition by dumping a bunt and beating it out, after Rice had popped. Judge came through with a hit which filled the socks. Jonnard relieved Ryan, promptly walked Bluege, forcing in Harris, and as promptly left the game. Watson forced Miller to pop and Lindstrom took Ruel's grounder and ended the game by forcing Judge at third.

Manager Harris announced that Peckinpah would probably be able to play today.

The City Minor league, a new local bowling organization, composed of eight fast teams, will open its season on the Crescent alleys tomorrow night, and President John S. Peters has arranged an attractive program for the occasion. He has invited Rep. Thomas J. Corbett to roll the first ball.

All teams are due to post their lineups and make their deposit with the league treasurer at the alleys tonight.

Each team expects to have a large number of rooters on hand tomorrow night. Manager Dixon of the Dixon Shoe Fix Team expects to head a big delegation from his section to cheer for his bowling outfit. He will also sign up other teams out of the league to roll on off-nights. The schedule for tomorrow night follows.

LATONIA, Ky., Oct. 7.—Another candidate qualified yesterday for the $50,000 international special race, in which Epinard, French champion thoroughbred, will meet the pick of America's runners over a distance of a mile and a quarter Saturday.

Gallagher brothers' Chilhowee, in defeating Wise Counsellor, winner of the first international event, and Graeme, at one mile and a sixteenth, covered the distance in 1:42 4-5 after galloping the first six furlongs under restraint. The colt's time was one-fifth of a second faster than the Latonia track record, established by Anbury at the spring meeting.

Epinard was out on the track and breezed a mile in 1:42 1-5. Trainer Leigh made no effort to push the French colt, but probably will work him over the entire special distance tomorrow. Ladkin, winner of the second international race, worked the full mile and a quarter in 2:05 4-5. Indications are that not less than a dozen horses will go to the post in the big event on Saturday.

MARTIN WINS OVER WOLGAST IN EIGHTH

BOSTON, Oct. 7.—Dobby Wolgast of Atlantic City and formerly of Philadelphia, must have been training with a wrecker for his bout with Eddie (Cannonball) Martin last night at Mechanic's building. He showed the crowd's small audience that attended the contest, which was scheduled for 10 rounds, in the eighth stanza, awarding the bout to Martin.

It is in Martin's 50th consecutive victory. True it wasn't a very impressive one for the Brooklyn boxer who was fighting his first engagement away from home, but the fault could hardly be laid to him.

Martin was always trying to make a fight of it, but Wolgast was apparently in there only to hold Wolgast in his clinging-vine impersonation took a severe pummeling in the body. Martin is a likely looking boxer and, if given a chance, might have done well with both hands, and is fairly clever.

It was as an lighter that he, ex-celled last night. Once in close to Wolgast he let both hands fly in platoon-like fashion against the Atlantic City man's midriff with telling effect. The best contest of the evening was the semi-final bout between Johnny Cuthbert of England, and Tommy Murray of Philadelphia, which was awarded to the latter after eight torrid seasons.

The opener, a substitute bout, lasted three rounds, George Rolduc of Lexington, boxing over Tommy Jones of the West End, by a knockout.

FOOTBALL

By tying the O.M.I. Cadets at Shedd park Sunday, the Kenwood boys have sprung quite a surprise in early season football hereabouts. A bewildering aerial attack was the best used by the Rogers, who are being coached this year by Arthur Lynch, former high school star.

While that scoreless game was one of the surprises of the season Sunday battles in this city, the work of the Butler A.A. in taming the vaunted Lawrence of Boston by a 8 to 3 count, cannot be overlooked. True to the statement that he would give the fans plenty of good games if evidence of support were shown, Manager Walsh of the Butlers is counting on going through with the proposition, feeling confident that the record crowd of 3000 persons at last Sunday's game is a vindication of the popularity of his team. The Butlers will play some fast teams yet.

The Rogers have come along as nicely as any team in this vicinity. Next Sunday the team travels to Haverhill to play the Lions of that city. The Rogers are considered one of the toughest teams in the state. They recently held the Tremonts of Lawrence to a scoreless tie. A special game has been chartered by the Rogers to convey them to the home of battle. Among other teams which will oppose the Kenwood boys this season are the Shawheen of Lowell, the Lawrence, and the St. Peter's Cadets. Other games may be arranged by calling 7276-R.

The O.M.I. Cadets, while failing to score against the Rogers, must be reckoned with in coming games. Sunday's game was their first engagement of the season and the boys need plenty of limbering up yet. The services of a coach, who has entered Denn Academy, are sorely missed, but Jack Cotter has assembled a fast eleven and his watchword is progress.

St. Peter's Cadets and the Ponies are clever and aggressive, with the Cadets having a slight edge. Danny Coughlin has taught the soldiers a lot of football and a heavy team makes this aggregation dangerous at all times. The Ponies are light but exceptional.

ORIOLES LEAD IN THE LITTLE WORLD SERIES

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 7.—(By the Associated Press)—The Baltimore Orioles, International League champions, and the St. Paul Saints, pennant winners of the American association, are en route to St. Paul today, where on Thursday they will resume play in the little world series, after five games here.

Yesterday's game, a play-off of last Saturday's tie, resulted in a decidedly one-sided victory for the Birds, by a score of 10 to 1, and increased the lead of the International League to two games. The series count is now three games to one in Baltimore's favor, with five triumphs necessary to carry off the series.

WATERBURY WINS CROWN WITHOUT LEFTHANDER

By N.E.A. Service
WATERBURY, Conn., Oct. 6.—For the first time in 10 years Waterbury won the baseball championship of the Eastern league, and the veteran "Kitty" Bransfield, well known in Pittsburgh as a first base man, turned the trick.

Waterbury's triumph was a shock to the town followers. Bransfield won with an ordinary aggregation of ball players, and one that was not especially lucky in escaping injuries. Bransfield's driving force and engaging personality inspired his men to heroic deeds.

An unusual angle to the Waterbury victory was that it was achieved without the aid of a single left-handed pitcher. It is one of the traditions of baseball that no club ever won a pennant without one left-hander. But Bransfield's five right-handers proved traditions aren't always sacred.

The star of the staff was Andy Rush, a recruit from the Muskegon club in the Southwestern league, who won 22 and lost 10.

Twenty miles of thread, were used in the making of a coat shown at the recent fur exhibition in London.

TO STAGE DEMPSEY-PAOLINO FIGHT

PARIS, Oct. 7.—Desiring to stage a fight between Jack Dempsey and Escudon Paolino, Spanish fighter, the proprietor of the bull ring at Bayonne recently got into touch with Dempsey's manager, Jack Kearns, says the Petit Parisien. The manager, according to the paper, accepted the offer on condition that Dempsey receive a fixed sum, the amount of which is not given, in addition to a percentage of the gate receipts.

HE HEADS NEW HOCKEY TEAM

ART ROSS

This gent might properly be called a money player. Art Ross was one of the players in the old hockey league in Cobalt, Canada, once a prosperous silver camp, and it is figured he was paid at the rate of $30 a minute. He has just been appointed vice president and manager of the Boston professional hockey team, which recently secured a franchise in the National Hockey league.

Having failed in the pinch for four successive years has caused other National league clubs to regard the Pittsburgh Pirates as lacking in courage. Some of the fans in Pittsburgh insist lack of condition is the better alibi.

Certainly the most important football clash between the Alleghenies and Rookies this season will be the game Oct. 18 between Bob Zupko's "Fighting Illini" and Yost's men from Michigan.

Tradition, of course, invests the Yale-Harvard, Princeton-Harvard, Princeton-Yale gridiron struggles with a colorful glamor, but it is a glamor that is sometimes entirely out of proportion to the importance of these "Big Three" games as gridiron spectacles.

It is doubtful if any game in the country this season will provide more thrills than the meeting between Michigan and Illinois. Certainly none is being more widely promulgated.

In the first place, it is a game between two undefeated teams of 1923, the two teams that tied for the west-coast conference championship. In a measure, although Michigan has lost quite a few stars through graduation and Illinois will take the field without three important cogs in its 1923 machine, it will settle, in the minds of many, an unanswered argument that holds over from last year—which team really was the best in the middle west.

In a way it is a shame that Zupko and Yost couldn't have come to grips last year to settle once and for all the football supremacy of the Big Ten.

For Illinois it is a home-coming game, the choicest morsel of the foot-

You might say, off hand, that John MacWillie, Columbia end, is head over heels in love with his work. And maybe he is. It so happens that he tripped in making a touchdown against the scrubs and the camera man was on hand to register him in his Prince of Wales specialty.

ball season. It will also witness the dedication of the huge Illinois stadium. It will be a colorful clash, and both teams may be expected to "open up," for each eleven has been "pointed" for the struggle.

Michigan, to win, will have to stop Grange, a task that was too much for every Illinois opponent last year. On the other hand, the Vostmen, in Rockwell and Captain Steger, own a couple of threats themselves.

What gridiron luminary is destined to dash across the autumn horizon this year to dazzle the football world with his spectacular feats? There were some truly great ones last year—Blott, Mallory, Pfann and Grange, to name just a few. Critics seem to be agreed that Grange provided most of the thrills. The fact that he was merely a sophomore, playing his first year of college football, certainly lent color to his achievements, and they were truly notable.

But each year seems to develop its own outstanding stars. When a Brickley fades, there is a Mahan; when a Locke graduates, there is a Mallory; when a Harley passes on, there is a Kipka. And so on. It is doubtful if any football player in the country, harriving untimely accidents, will be more closely watched this season than Harold Grange. If he can repeat his 1923 record he has a good chance of being the country's biggest sensation two years running.

But Grange will be a marked man. Two or three men, at least, will be playing him in every game. Unless he is possessed of an extremely rare degree of football ability, he more than likely will have to share honors with some other player—now probably in obscurity.

You Will Vote or They Will Know Why

"Stay-at-home" voters are going to have a hard time in keeping away from the women this year. The National League of Women Voters is determined to increase the vote, 25 per cent over the 1920 figures. The league, fortified with tons of printed propaganda, is building up an organization which will make the professional politician envious. If you fail to vote this year you may be a target for back-yard gossip. "Get Out the Vote" is a slogan for personal application.

The Mirror Certainly Does Get 'Em

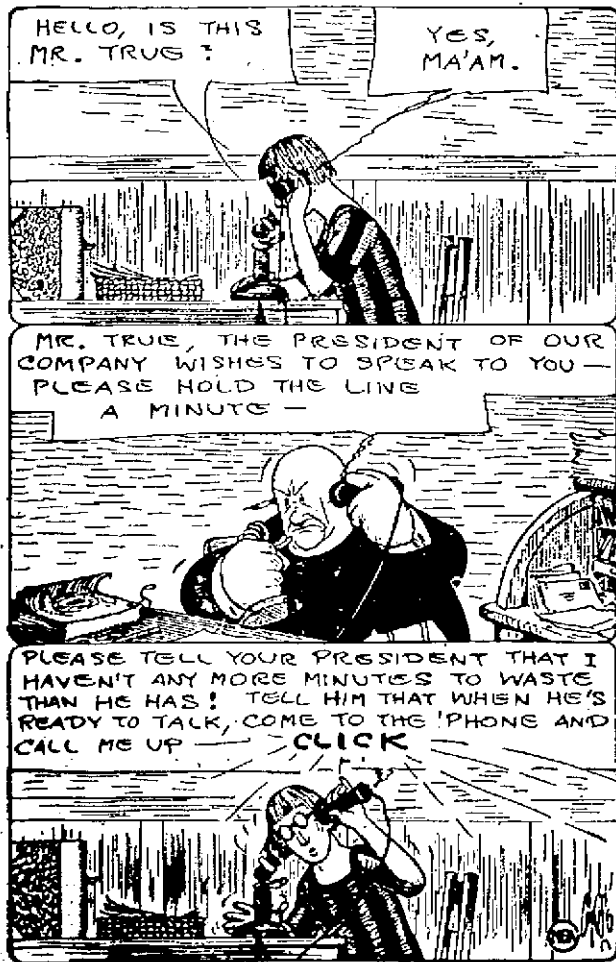

CHICAGO SCHOOL GIRLS LEARNING MANICURING AND HAIR-DRESSING.

BY GEORGE BRITT
N. E. A. Service Writer
CHICAGO, Oct. 7.—What is the most attractive lure for feminine interest? Ask the Chicago school system. It knows.
The mirror!
Therefore to capture the interest of listless schoolgirls, to hold them in school when their thoughts are wandering, to instruct at the same time it delights, there has been instituted a course in beauty.
It is called personal hygiene. And it is offered as yet only at the Flower school, which is strictly a girls' institution. But its success has proved sufficient, according to Miss Dora Wells, principal, to justify wide extension.
"Girls in the eighth grade who are a bit over age and over sized, and are feeling they are too big for their classmates are our material," says Miss Wells.
"Many of them are 'exceptionally bright.' But because of delays they are losing interest in school. The personal hygiene course is classified as pre-vocational. Experience shows that it not only fits the girl to earn a living but it leads over her interest into the high school.

FINED FOR ASSAULT ON PATIENT

TAUNTON, Mass., Oct. 6.—Joseph Jellow of Quincy, an attendant at the Taunton State hospital, was fined $10 in district court today on a charge of assault and battery on Jeremiah Donovan, a patient, last Saturday. Jellow, a former Boston chauffeur, admitted "nudging" Donovan, who he said was slow dressing after a bath. The patient was not seriously injured.

ZR-3 MAY TAKE OFF THURSDAY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—The German-built airship ZR-3 may take off on her trans-Atlantic flight to the United States Thursday, the navy department was informed today in an official cablegram. The dispatch added, however, that "her departure is not probable prior to Saturday, Oct. 11."

FIRE IN PARLIAMENT BUILDING IN ROME

ROME, Oct. 6.—Fire broke out late last night in the loft of the Parliament building used as a deposit for documents and blazed fiercely for some time, threatening to spread to the lower floor. Forces of firemen, gathered from all parts of Rome, fought the flames and after an hour's struggle the fire was extinguished before serious damage had been done.

FRENCH REPLY TO GERMANY

PARIS, Oct. 6.—(By the Associated Press)—The French government today handed Dr. Leopold von Hoesch, the German ambassador, its reply to the recent German note regarding the admission of Germany to the League of Nations. This reply has been the subject of an exchange of communications between London and Paris, so it is expected the responses of the English and French governments will run along the same line. No official intimation has been given as to the terms of the reply, but it is presumed to favor the admission of Germany in principle and to conform to views Premier Herriot has already expressed, to the effect that Germany should comply with the regulations governing admission to the League.

a day. They learn the proper care of themselves. They get physiology, hygiene, hair shampooing and curling, manicuring and virtually all the natural, legitimate methods of beautifying.
"They do not get hair dyeing, nor anything so elaborate as massage. But one who has taken the course not only has a set of standards for making the most of her own appearance, but if she chooses to enter a commercial beauty shop she can prove an unusually apt apprentice."
About thirty girls is a normal enrollment for the course, but in a prospective new building there will be accommodations for a larger class. Beauty culture is the latest addition in Chicago schools. It is the woman's vocational group, which already included sewing, millinery, cooking, stenography, teaching and art designing.

SEEK "HIGHER UPS" IN PLOT

Federal Officers Seek Men Financially Interested in Big Rum Conspiracy

New York, Montreal and London Involved in $10,000,000 Plot

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—"Higher up" in the three-cornered liquor smuggling conspiracy that came to light with the capture of the British steam trawler Geel last Saturday were sought by federal officials today.
The search for men financially interested in what the dry agents said was a $10,000,000 smuggling plot, had New York, Montreal and London as its three main points of interest. A Montreal banker was said to have been heavily interested financially.
The Fred B. captured fifteen miles off Monmouth Beach, N. J., as a result of a three months' investigation, was said by the dry agents to be one of four rum runners operated by the syndicate.

WANTED IN NEW YORK

Man Arrested at North Bay, Ont., Involved in New York Bank Failure

NORTH BAY, Ont., Oct. 6.—North Bay police announced today that a dry goods merchant known here as Max Bauman, had been identified as Marcus Tauster, junior partner of the defunct New York banking firm of Garfunkel & Tauster, who left New York shortly after the bank failed last January, with liabilities of $200,000.
The identification was made by a former employee of Garfunkel & Tauster. Tauster admitted the police said, that he was the man sought and said he was ready to go back to New York immediately. Accordingly, it was planned to start the trip today.

Washington Society Buds Now Registered in Business Directory as Well as Blue Book

LEFT TO RIGHT: MISS CORRINE STEPHENS, MISS BEATRICE HENNING, MISS DOROTHY MONDELL.

By HORTENSE SAUNDERS
N. E. A. Service Writer
WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—Every year the aristocratic blue book finds a larger number of its cherished names cropping out in the commercial-looking business directory.

The paper who continued all the novelists and reformers that she was going to her own and to society's destruction, did a right about face and went into business.

She made good and her followers are increasing.
Even in staid Washington, the national capital, the one city in this country where society retains some of its old-time glamour and formality, we find the daughters of diplomats and statesmen preferring the mixed diet of work and play with accent on the work.

Some of the most socially prominent young women there have a business or profession and prefer to be self-supporting.

Dorothy Mondell, daughter of Frank W. Mondell, former congressman and prominent political figure, is attempting to make the Mondell name mean something in the literary world.

Because she knows society so well, she is able to make very valuable contributions to the society columns and her insight into both social and political affairs may make her a Margot Asquith someday.

Nancy Hoyt, daughter of the solicitor general under ex-President Taft, is another diplomatic daughter who has taken up short story writing. Dorothy Cennell, a niece of G. Bascom Stamp, secretary to President Coolidge, is a dramatic critic.

Corrine Stephens, daughter of Mrs. John B. Stephens, is a real go-getter. She is saleswoman for an automobile concern and she brings victims to the dotted line stage in a remarkably short time.

Beatrice Henning, daughter of Assistant Secretary of Labor E. J. Henning, has just started society by entering a business college with a view to a career. She is a Lucy Stone learner and expects to retain her own name even after her marriage, which may not be far in the future, as her engagement has been announced.

Many other girls in Washington society are contemplating careers.

TRIO DISMISSED IN GAS CASE

G. O. P. State Chairman and Two Others Freed of Charge of Conspiracy

Accused of Planting Bromine Gas in R. I. Senate Chamber During Filibuster

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 6.—Judge J. Jerome Hahn in superior court today dismissed "for lack of prosecution" the indictment against William C. Kelkey, chairman of the Republican State committee, William ("Toots") Murray and John T. Toomey, charged with conspiracy to plant liquid bromine in the state senate chamber during a democratic filibuster June 19 last.

Assistant Attorney-General George Hurley argued that the trial be continued two days or until early next week. The absence of an essential witness was the reason urged for a continuance which was vigorously opposed by counsel for the defendants.

Mr. Hurley told the court that Thomas Lally of Brooklyn, N. Y., one of the state's leading witnesses, had failed to appear. Lally was one of two persons, members of a group of special police brought to Providence to protect republican senators during the democratic filibuster, who swore that Murray had told them that he placed the liquid bromine in the senate chamber at the instigation of Kelkey. According to Lally's affidavit, the bromine was handed to Murray by Toomey.

The assistant attorney-general said Lally had agreed to be in Providence last Friday. He said that he would be able to insure the presence of the missing witnesses by next week. Judge Hahn asked Mr. Hurley what his attitude would be if the court ruled that the trial should proceed today as originally set. Mr. Hurley replied that in such an event the state of Rhode Island would be compelled to stand on its rights and decline to present its case.

"I must either grant a continuance or dismiss the indictment, then," the court said.
"If your honor has the power to dismiss this indictment, yes," Mr. Hurley replied. He added that the grand jury of 18 men had signed the indictment separately and that Lally was a willing witness then.

Frank Swan, counsel for Kelkey, opposing the motion, said it had been rumored for a week that a continuance would be asked for. He said it was a hardship on his client to have the case drag a moment longer than necessary under the circumstances in this state today.

Anthony V. Pettini, counsel for Murray, said Lally was "a companion, even a chum" of the attorney-general's department and should have been kept in charge by the department.

Charles A. Walsh, appearing for Toomey, said in part:

"The state election in Rhode Island takes place Nov. 4. We are insistent that this case be disposed of before that time. If a continuance is granted until next week that would make a decision before Nov. 4 unlikely. We understand that the state has 27 witnesses and we have as many. It will take two weeks to hear this testimony."

Get THE SUN Classified Ad Habit

Jack Daw's Adventures. Chapter 19

After the two explorers had scurried up a low hanging tree and perched out on branches that seemed in safety, a large, but rather thin elephant worked its way through the trees and plodded right out to where Jack and the captain had been standing. It stood there and just looked around.

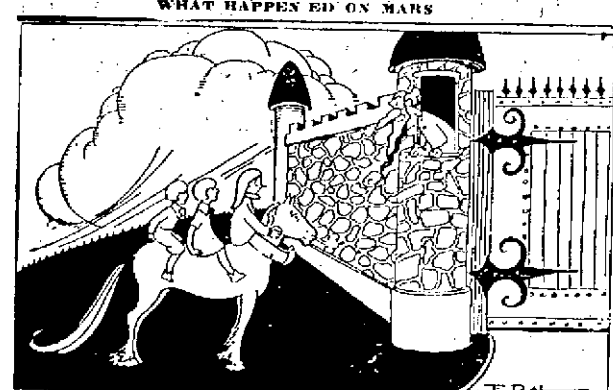

Jack kept as still as he could but, suddenly his foot slipped and, in grabbing for another foothold, he made considerable noise among the tree leaves. This attracted the big elephant's attention and the beast quickly glanced right up into the tree where Jack and the captain were.

Slowly, but surely, the old animal started to raise his trunk. He bellowed a bit and then the captain shouted, "I believe he's coming after one of us with his trunk! We had better climb higher! Jack didn't need to be told twice for in an instant he was going up. (Continued.)

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

"WHO'S THERE?" ASKED THE OLD MAN STICKING HIS HEAD OUT OF A WINDOW IN THE STONE WALL BESIDE THE GATE.

The twins held tight to Snoozle on the night-mare's back. Snoozle was the oldest son of the Dream-Maker Man and he was searching for Tweeknose who had stolen the sleepy sand from the Sand Men. "Giddyup!" said Snoozle, and the white night-mare went club-a-lub, club-a-lub, club-a-lub along the Milky Way straight toward Mars.

And pretty soon they got there and knocked at the gate. Rat-a-tat-tat! Rat-a-tat-tat!

"Who's there?" asked the old man sticking his head out of a window in the stone wall beside the gate.

"That's what I said," declared Nancy impatiently. "He's a gnome and he's a rascal, too. Did you see him?"

"No," said the queer old fellow again with a shake of his head. "I've been asleep on Mars every day since the time I was a good child. He could get over the wall and I wouldn't see him. He may be on Mars and then again he may not be on Mars, and if he is on Mars—"

"My goodness! What a wordy old fellow!" said Nick to Snoozle. "I'll fix him." So he said "Immy Jiminy!" just like that the door in the wall

DAVIS IN NEW YORK TOUR

Charges Navy Has Deteriorated in Efficiency Below 5-5-3 Ratio

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 7.—Driving further north and west into New York state, from Albany to Utica for a noonday address and thence to Syracuse, for an evening meeting, John W. Davis continued today his attacks against the republican party, its record during the Harding and Coolidge administrations, and his appeal for support of the voters for the democratic national and state tickets in the November elections. At the same time, Mr. Davis, speaking as the democratic presidential nominee, reiterated his opposition to the administration's foreign policy, charged that the navy had deteriorated in efficiency below the 5-5-3 ratio fixed by the Washington armament conference and reviewed other subjects touched upon in his address here last night.

Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., came in for a passing reference in Mr. Davis' Albany speech. The republican gubernatorial candidate, Mr. Davis said, would find himself embarrassed if he continued to praise the party he represented for negotiating the naval reduction treaty and for allowing the navy to fall below the 5-5-3 ratio which the treaty fixed. Mention also was made of Secretary Hughes and Mellon, one relating to the address made by the secretary of state in Ohio when Mr. Hughes said the issue of the campaign was whether Mr. Coolidge should be continued in office and the other describing the treasury secretary as a defender of the "aluminum trust" cited by Mr. Davis as being one of the outstanding beneficiaries of the Fordney-McCumber tariff act.

RESISTS VOTE OF CENSURE

Premier MacDonald of Britain Not to Shrink From a Dissolution

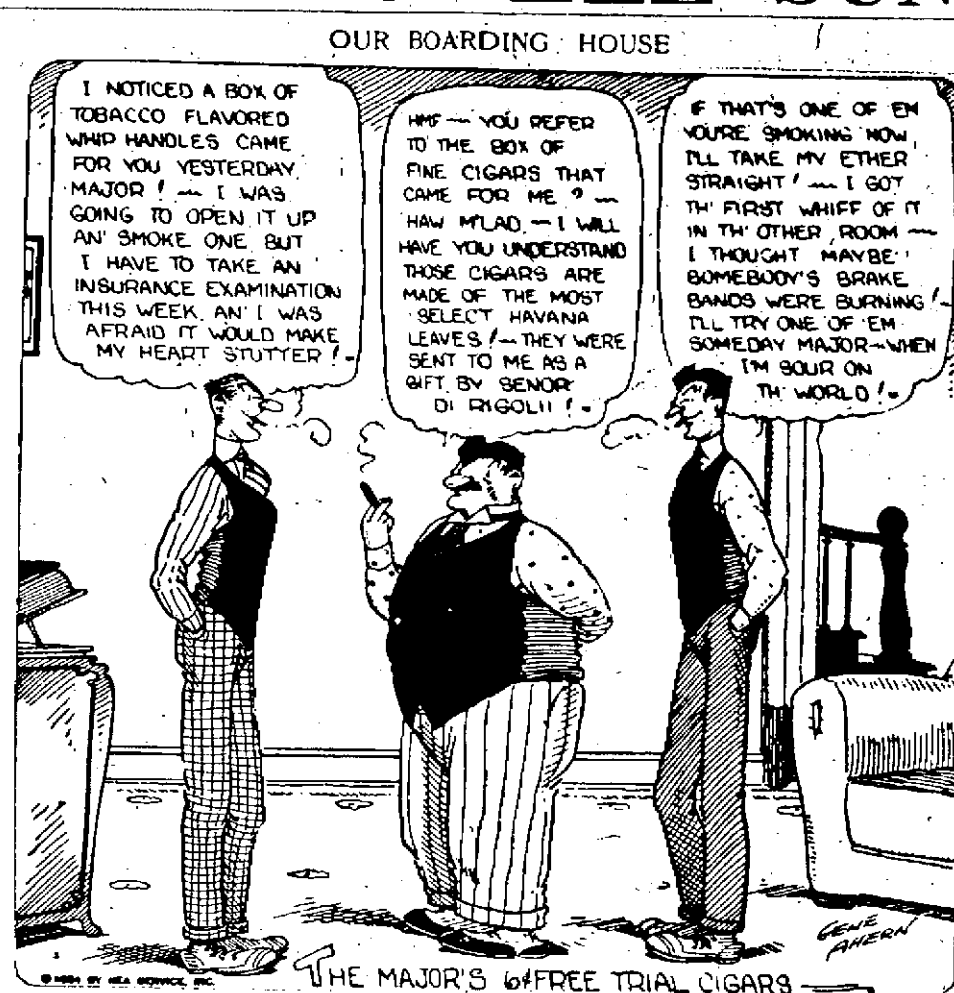

Declares Responsibility For An Election Would Not Be the Labor Party's

LONDON, Oct. 7. (By the Associated Press).—Prime Minister MacDonald, addressing the annual conference of the labor party which opened in Queen's hall today, confirmed the over-night indications that the government intends to resist the vote of censure advanced by the conservatives and the liberal amendment proposing an inquiry into the circumstances under which the coalition government was formed. Mr. MacDonald indicated the government would not shrink from a dissolution and an election if put to the test, and declared the responsibility for an election would not be the labor party's.

Premier MacDonald scored communism, which he declared had in it nothing practicable.

"It is a product of czarism and war brutality," he said, "and as such we will have nothing to do with it. Unless we are prepared to engage against this, we had better put up our shutters."

The premier's speech had been heralded as likely to throw a deal of light on the present political situation in England and to clarify to some extent the labor party's attitude toward the coalition government. The premier's declaration that the responsibility for an election would not be the labor party's, was a significant statement.

DEVER AND DARROW DEBATE THE 18TH AMENDMENT

Chicago Mayor and Famous Lawyer Amaze 1500 Democratic Leaders by Engaging in Unheralded Debate—Darrow Says Prohibition Cannot Be Enforced

CHICAGO, Oct. 7.—William E. Dever, mayor of Chicago and Clarence B. Darrow, famous trial lawyer, amazed 1500 county and state democratic leaders here last night when they engaged in an unheralded debate over the 18th amendment. The occasion was a banquet tendered Anton Gernack, president of the Cook county board, just returned from a trip abroad.

Mr. Darrow, whose most recent step into the spotlight was through his defense of Richard Loeb and Nathan Leopold, Jr., for the kidnaping murder of Bobbie Franks, asserted that while the eighteenth amendment never would be repealed, "it will die because people of courage and independence will stand against it," and because it "has never been known to be enforced."

His declaration that "all the presidents, mayors and public officials in the country can't enforce it" came after Mayor Dever had asserted that he had no apologies to make for his campaigns against liquor law violations, and was willing to "sacrifice my party and myself if I can attain for the community what I am aiming at."

Mr. Dever said he was in Chicago from foreign bootleggers and poisonous liquors and "to determine whether the streets were going to be safe for the people or controlled by a gang of New York crooks, who were making millions of dollars." Before the 18th amendment was passed, he continued, "it was never known to be drier than I ought to be."

The mayor said he believed in enforcing the laws as they were on the books. "If you are not fond of the laws, tell your troubles to the congressman and ask them to make some revision," he said.

Mayor Dever has closed approximately 2000 saloons since he assumed office.

TO PREVENT DISORDERS IN EASTERN CUBA

HAVANA, Oct. 7.—(By the Associated Press).—The full force of the Zayas government was in motion today to prevent any possible recurrence of disorder in eastern Cuba where seven lives were lost Sunday night and nearly three score persons wounded in a clash at Camaguey arising out of the presidential campaign between former President Menocal and General Gerardo Machado.

Approximately 750 troops are en route to preserve order in Camaguey and Oriente provinces. Permits for private individuals to carry arms have been suspended, while orders have gone forth holding up the sailing for two weeks of two warships to take part in the San Carlos celebration there. The city of Camaguey is guarded by soldiers and the police there are under direction of a military supervisor.

RUMMAGE SALE IS BIG SUCCESS

So much interest is being displayed in the rummage sale to be held in aid of the family welfare work being done by the Social Service league by those desiring to purchase the articles being contributed that the committee deemed it necessary this morning to ask the police department to assign one or more policemen to the old Courier-Citizen building during the sale.

Articles have just poured in during the last two or three days and the committee is assured that there will be a great many bundles which will be contributed before Thursday noon.

Sam Lemieux, the very artistic window decorator of the Bon Marche store fixed up the window of the store yesterday in a manner that has attracted a great deal of attention. He placed in the window a fur coat, two evening gloves, some latest millinery, gloves, shoes, etc., giving the sale a tone all its own.

The committee is still desirous of hearing from those who have anything in the line of clothing, house furnishings, or in fact anything valuable to you have any articles parked away in the attic or closets just notify the Social Service league and someone will call for them.

LA FOLLETTE CONFIDENT OF VICTORY

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Oct. 7.—Senator Robert M. La Follette left here early today to carry his campaign for the presidency into the anti-trust region of Pennsylvania. He will speak tonight in Scranton and then will go to Newark, N. J., before turning west for a swing that is expected to take him to the Pacific coast.

Following his address here, last night, Senator La Follette boarded his special car, traveled down the Erie via Canandaigua and Elmira, N. Y. He was due to arrive in Scranton by mid-afternoon and intended to remain aboard his car there, until time for tonight's rally, as he did here yesterday.

To a crowd which frequently interrupted him with cheers and applause, the Wisconsin senator last night assailed the republican administration, predicting that it would be overwhelmed at the polls in November. John W. Davis, the democratic nominee for president, is running a poor third outside the "solid south," Mr. La Follette contended, and victory, he asserted, is in sight for his force.

The independent candidate advocated revision or repeal of the transportation act of 1920 and the present tariff law, the repeal of the soldiers' bonus act, and substitution of a cash bonus, amendment of the Federal Reserve bill which would abolish the currency board, and passage of emergency farm relief legislation, although he did not go into detail as to what farm the measure should take.

COL. ROOSEVELT FLAYS DEMOCRATIC PARTY

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Oct. 7.—Theodore Roosevelt began his three-week up-state speaking campaign yesterday with nine speeches, the last of the day to an overflow meeting here which filled Masonic hall. Previously he spoke to a crowd that had utilized standing room in the Stratford theatre.

The colonel discussed national issues chiefly during the early meetings, dwelling on state questions at Poughkeepsie.

"I honor my father and try to follow his lead," he said, "but I don't want any of your votes for me on account of who my father was."

The nominee criticized the democratic administration, national and state, for allowing increases in expenditures, accusing the Wilson administration of waste in increasing the national debt.

"$24,000,000,000 and asserting that the last two democratic administrations at Albany had doubled the annual budgets."

Colonel Roosevelt is scheduled to speak today in Germantown, Hudson, Stuyvesant, Castleton, Rensselaer, West, Intervill, Green Island, Colton, West Waterford, Mechanicville and Amsterdam.

LOCAL LETTER CARRIERS

Large Delegation Thanked Senator Walsh for Devotion to Their Cause

During the public reception to Senator Walsh at the American House yesterday afternoon a delegation of 25 letter carriers waited upon him to express their gratitude for the unwavering devotion of the senator to the cause of the postal employees and their efforts to secure an increase in salary. The senator explained how the measure was finally defeated by republican trickery in the senate based upon a point of order that had never before been raised in 46 years. Under this point the presiding officer held that a vote could not be taken on a vote until it was formerly recorded in writing on the clerk's books. The recording of the message would require about fifteen minutes but it was held back for hours in spite of the fact that he raised several points of order to inquire whether it was being recorded, whether the clerk was engaged in the work, whether he would complete the job in time for a vote and finally, near the close of the session, he interrupted the proceedings to ask if the clerk had dropped dead. Needless to say, the republicans were determined that it should not be brought to a vote as many of the senators did not wish to go on record either as voting to sustain the veto or to override it. The veto is on the table and the senator assured the delegation that it would come up for action immediately after the opening of the short session in December.

The spokesman of the delegation in behalf of the Lowell carriers thanked the senator very cordially for what he had done in the senate and on the public platform in behalf of the underpaid employees of the postal department. Many of the clerks were on hand to greet the senator after the meeting last night.

FOOTBALL GAME MONDAY

Temporary Bleachers Available for Big Manchester-Lowell Battle

Supt. John W. Kernan of the park department, today notified Sub Master James F. Conway, in charge of athletics at the high school, that the temporary bleachers owned by the park department would be available for use at Alumni Field next Monday for the Manchester-Lowell football game.

Without the park department bleachers for Monday's game, which it is believed will draw a record-breaking crowd, the high school authorities would have been in a quandary for the only seats available would be the regular bleachers at the field, which are capable of holding only about 1000 persons.

Mr. Conway also announced today that a large double gate has been placed in the rear fence of the park adjoining the parking space and will serve to relieve congestion after the game of persons returning to their machines.

"Class Spirit," which was inaugurated by last year's senior class, will be revived tomorrow when two of last year's senior class who are now post-graduates at the school will place on sale "booster buttons" in class colors worn by "Let's Go Lowell." These buttons are to be worn by the students on all occasions and are especially for use at the Manchester-Lowell game Monday afternoon.

SUNGKIANG FALLS, CHEKIANG TROOPS ARE IN RETREAT

Believed That Chekiang Defenders of Shanghai Will Be Forced to Withdraw From Hwangtu-Liuno Front—Aircraft Over Shanhaikwan

SHANGHAI, Oct. 7. (By the Associated Press.)—Capture of Sungkiang, a city 28 miles by rail southwest of here, by the combined armies of Fukien, Kiangsu and Anh Wei provinces were threatened late tonight.

Unconfirmed despatches from Fukien sources said the city already had fallen.

The Kiangsu forces, by traveling down the Wungpoo river, pushed through the Chekiang defenses, almost encircling the walls of Sungkiang.

Late tonight the Chekiang fighters were reported on the defense, trying to keep the invaders from cutting the railway line between Sungkiang and Shanghai.

SHANGHAI, Oct. 7. (By the Associated Press.)—Sungkiang, 22 miles southwest of this city, has been captured by Gen. Sun Shuang-Fun, military governor of Fukien, and the Chekiang troops are retreating on Singchiang, nine miles from Shanghai, according to Fukien advices.

It is believed this may compel the Chekiang defenders of Shanghai to withdraw from the Hwangtu-Liuno front.

The Kiangsu men are said to have fired on Shanghai—that is the gates through which travelers between that city and Sungkiang—travel to make impossible the escape from the main Sungkiang station, five miles away, of several Chekiang railway trains.

Aircraft appeared over Shanhaikwan, Manchuria, late tonight.

IMMIGRANT PROBLEMS OF U. S. DISCUSSED AT ROTARY CLUB

Restriction, Selection and Inspection Rather Than Exclusion is Recommendation of Frederick A. Wallis—Lions and Commerce Chamber Hear Talk

"We haven't standing room in this country for the immigrant who comes to this land with preconceived ideas as to government and who upon his arrival here mounts the lecture platform and preaches disrespect for organized authority and the overthrow of the government, yet until a new immigration law is passed which throws the inspection and selection of immigrants over to the other side of the ocean, we cannot keep these trouble-makers out," said Hon. Frederick A. Wallis at the joint luncheon of the chamber of commerce, Rotary club and Lions club in Liberty hall this noon.

Mr. Wallis is a present commissioner of correction in New York city and was formerly deputy police commissioner of the same city and commissioner of immigration at Ellis island under the Wilson administration. His address today was on the immigrant problem.

BOY FATALLY INJURED BY AUTOMOBILE

Margin By Which Ball Games Are Won and Lost

The score was tied, 3 to 3, when the Washington team went to bat in the last half of the ninth inning of the second game of the world series. Judge walked and reached second on Bluege's sacrifice. Peckinpaugh hit to left field and in this picture you see the ball (arrow) just a foot or two from Hank Gowdy's glove and Judge with the winning run, just about the same distance away. Judge was safe and Washington won the game. A fraction of a second more speed for the ball and the game might have gone the other way.

With Two Men on Bases in Third, Goslin Makes Homer, Putting Senators in Lead

POLO GROUNDS, NEW YORK, Oct. 7. (By the Associated Press.)—Fall weather greeted the New York Giants and the Washington Senators for the fourth game of the series here today. The promise of a bigger crowd than yesterday, when 47,608 attended, was evident when the field opened at 10 o'clock.

Speculation was rampant as to whom Manager Harris would send to the mound today in an endeavor to even up the series with the Giants and make another game in Washington a surety. Harris intimated that George Mogridge would be the Washington selection, but it is known that Mogridge has a sore arm and may not be used.

It is almost certain that John McGraw will start Virgil Barnes today, as most of his array of relief talent was used yesterday.

The series now stands two games to one for the Giants.

Two more victories are necessary for the Giants to win the honors while the Senators must win three more. If the Giants win the next two games here the series will be over without a second shift to Washington.

If the Giants win today it is a safe bet that Walter Johnson will be inserted in tomorrow's picture, although Manager Harris would like to save him for that game in Washington if possible.

The batteries: New York: Barnes and Gowdy. Washington: Mogridge and Ruel.

First Inning—McNeely up. Strike one. Strike two. Ball one. Ball two. Jackson threw out McNeely.

Harris up. Strike one. Ball one. Strike two. Harris struck out, taking a third called strike.

Rice up. Ball one. Frisch came in fast and took Rice's high hopper and teased him out.

No runs, no hits, no errors.

Giants: Lindstrom up. Ball one. Strike one. Ball two. Ball three. Lindstrom was given a base on balls. Frisch up. Ball one. Mogridge seemed to have little command of the ball. Ball two. It was a pitchout, but Lindstrom did not go down. Strike one. Ball three. Strike two. Harris threw out Frisch. Lindstrom going to second. Young up. Ball one. Lindstrom scored when Bluege took Young's grounder and threw wildly past first base. Young halted at first. Kelly up. Strike one. Foul, strike two. Ball one. McNeely took Kelly's long fly and Young went to second on the catch. Meusel up. Strike one. Ball one. Ball two. Foul, strike two. Ball three. Meusel walked. Wilson up. Strike one. Ball

one. Strike two. Ball two. Jackson threw out McNeely.

Bluege up. Ball one. Strike one. Bluege went out on strikes. Kelly up. Strike one. Foul, strike two. Ball one. McNeely singled into right. Meusel halted at second. Rice up. Strike one. Frisch threw out Rice at first. McNeely going to third and Harris to second. Goslin hit a home run into the right field stands, scoring McNeely and Harris ahead of him. The stands roared their approval. Judge up. Ball one. Ball two. Judge went out, Kelly to Barnes.

Three runs, three hits, no errors.

Giants—The crowd cheered Goslin as he walked to the field. Young up. Ball one. Strike one. Foul, strike two. Young went out on strikes. Kelly up. Foul, strike one. Ball one. Foul, strike two. Kelly also struck out. Meusel up. Ball one. Ball two. Ball three. Strike one. Strike two. Foul. Goslin went way back to the fence and took Meusel's long drive.

No runs, no hits, no errors.

CHIEF SAUNDERS DEPLORES BREAK IN FIRE DEPARTMENT MORALE

Orders Four Privates Suspended For Period of Three Days For Alleged Absence From Duty and Quarters Without Proper Leave—Intimates Shakeup

Chief Edward F. Saunders of the fire department today expressed himself as very much concerned over recent reports of breaks in the morale of the department, occasioned by privates absenting themselves from duty without proper leave and intimating that when the new Oakland house is opened, probably within a week, there will be ordered one of the most sweeping shake-ups of men and officers in the history of the department.

Suspension of four Centralville firemen for a period of three days for alleged neglect of duty was announced today by the chief, who sent the men individual letters advising them of his disciplinary action and asking forth their right to demand a public hearing before the city council if they so desire.

Notice of the four suspensions follows a report by District Chief D. H. Crowley, detailed by Chief Saunders to investigate alleged lack of attention to duty on the night of Sept. 26. The men involved are attached to Truck 4 and Hose 13, both housed in West Sixth street. It was reported the chief that when Box 77 was sounded at 11:20 o'clock on the night of Sept. 26, the four firemen in question were not at their posts and a search by company officers found them out of quarters. District Chief Crowley made an immediate investigation, but when he reached the engine house the four men were in quarters and in bed.

RULES AGAINST ILLINOIS R. R. WALSH CHEERED AT AUDITORIUM

Judge Stough Hands Down Decision in Case in Controversy 16 Years

U. S. Senator Talks to 2500 at Evening Meeting, Rapping Republican Record

Road Ordered to Pay Hundreds of Thousands of Dollars in State Taxes

Renders Account of Stewardship and Defies Enemies, Political or Personal

OTTAWA, Ill., Oct. 7.—In a decision in circuit court today, Judge S. C. Stough decided that the Illinois Central railroad should pay hundreds of thousands of dollars in state taxes in controversy for sixteen years. He held that in accounting many millions of dollars were credited to lines of the company south of the Ohio river and west of the Mississippi river instead of to the Illinois lines of the company, which under the law were to pay seven per cent taxes on earnings in Illinois in perpetuity for early grants of right of way.

The revenue and accounting of the railroad company for 1903 and 1906 was the direct issue, the years since being subject to the finding applicable to those years.

FINED FOR SPEEDING ON PRINCETON BOULEVARD

When the new Princeton boulevard was opened to traffic about two weeks ago, Acting Superintendent of Police Hugh Downey instructed officers to enforce the speed laws there. This morning in district court, Motorcycle Officer Andrew Hunter complained of traveling at a speed of more than 40 miles per hour. The defendants, Marvin Richards and William J. O'Hara, were found guilty by Judge Enright and fined $25 each. O'Hara paid the fine and Richards appealed and was ordered to recognize in the sum of $300 for his appearance in superior court next month.

Walsh Cheered

Night's talk and his speech at noon from the city hall steps the senator also spoke at North Billerica and North Chelmsford in the late afternoon and at C.M.A.C. hall in the early evening. He held a reception at the American House from 2 to 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Other speakers at last night's meeting were John E. Swift, candidate for attorney general and Humphrey O'Sullivan, candidate for congress. The meeting was originally scheduled to be held in Liberty hall but the crowd was so great the hall proved too small and the main hall was pressed into service.

Mr. Swift, the nominee for attorney general, was the opening speaker of the rally last night. He discussed the insurance interests of the state, quoting freely from now famous recent letter of Motor Vehicle Registrar Frank A. Goodwin, himself a republican, and exposing as well the over-capitalization of Massachusetts textile industries. He stressed the necessity of electing the national ticket, urging that the nation needs someone else other than a sphinx in the White House.

He praised Hon. David I. Walsh for his record made at Washington, stating that "Sen. Walsh on his record deserves the vote of every man, woman in Massachusetts. Any one with a spark of the American spirit of fair play and justice will reward him. Industrious, ever ready to answer or take a stand on any question he is no rubber stamp. Send him back to Washington with a plurality of 100,000 and let the nation point to him and say 'There stands Walsh of Massachusetts, his state has said Well Done, Good and Faithful Servant.'" His references to the senator met with prolonged applause.

Mr. Swift closed his speech with an emphatic declaration that there is room for the Ku Klux Klan in Massachusetts and a strong appeal for the endorsement of the entire democratic ticket.

Candidate for Congress Humphrey O'Sullivan, candidate for congress from this district, was the next speaker called. Mr. O'Sullivan opened with an endorsement for John W. Davis, "the pride of the American bar," referred feelingly to the candidacy of the preceding speaker and briefly eulogized the cause of Sen. David I. Walsh.

"If there is any man in America I owe an obligation to it is the candidate for re-election as United States senator," said Mr. O'Sullivan, telling of how Sen. Walsh when a candidate for lieutenant governor twelve years ago spent much of his time in furthering Mr. O'Sullivan's fight for election to congress from this district. It was at this juncture that Senator Walsh, escorted by former Mayors Dennis J. Murphy and James B. Casey took his place upon the platform. The house rose as one person to welcome him and he was given a great demonstration of the popularity which is his and the esteem in which he is held here.

Sen. Walsh had just arrived from the C.M.A.C. hall where he addressed a large rally presided over by Edgar Lambert.

Mr. O'Sullivan, continuing with his speech, praised James M. Curley, mayor of Boston and candidate for governor, predicting that in eight years he would be before the public as a candidate for the first office within the gift of the man. Going on, Mr. O'Sullivan said:

"What is the matter with business in Lowell? Many are working on short time and many are not able to find employment at all. I have known personally men who have tried during the spring and summer to get employment unsuccessfully. Some large industrial concerns have passed their dividends, and we read in the papers hints that there is a pending cut in wages in prospect. What is the reason of all this? The textile business is operating under the highest tariff duty it ever enjoyed. In fact the textile interests have got the limit of tariff protection they asked for in the Fordney-McCumber tariff bill, and for which the gentleman who represents this district in congress voted.

"Did you ever stop to consider what influence confidence has in business? Confidence makes gold emerge from its hiding places and makes men and arms reach out in new enterprises. Confidence in business conditions, confidence in men, confidence in government, confidence in monetary conditions are foundations upon which prosperity is built, and the employer and the employee are happy.

"Last spring the country was entering upon a period of prosperity when suddenly the investigations in Washington disclosed such corruption in high places that the confidence of business men and others was staggered. The confidence that the people had in the improving conditions of business was undermined and shattered, with the result that all throughout the summer business ran flat giving rise to unrest among the working man.

"What is unrest due to? Chiefly to the lack of a square deal and the Volstead act. If the employers would apply the yardstick of a square deal to all their business problems, if big business would give a square deal to every interest involved, the country would be happier. In fact the truth is there is no such thing as a square deal except in cases where the stronger party, either from policy or from fear, couldn't have his way. How do I prove all this? Simply by knowledge of the transaction of business between uninterested interests or between employers and employees.

"Take for instance the farmers of the west who are obliged to take ninety cents a bushel for their wheat. They need the money and have to take the price while they visualize a poorly dressed man sitting in a swivel chair getting profit and sweat money out of the wheat the farmer raised. Does anyone blame the farmers for rebelling at such a condition? Does anyone blame them for instituting a bloc in congress to seek out the solution of their problems? These canny farmers have made up their minds that their individual interests are above politics and party allegiance and therefore they are going it alone.

"We have recently read that General Dawes said, after visiting Wisconsin and the northwest, that the farmers' problem was the big problem to be solved, that the farmers' dollar should buy as much as the mechanics' dollar in the east. The only way that can be done is by strong arm methods. Everyone knows that the farmer can get as many pounds of sugar for his dollar as the mechanic can in Lowell. What they really mean is that the farmer must get more for what he produces, and of course that is the only way they can solve the problem of making the farmer in the west get more for his dollar than the mechanic in the east.

"Now, then, if the farmer in the northwest has a problem, what becomes of the working masses in the east? What becomes of the working masses in Lowell? What becomes of the farmers of this district and why is it that their dollar isn't given any consideration in this purchasing power? Well, the solution of that question is that you have no representative in congress to look after the interests of labor in Lowell and no one to look after the interests of the farmers in this district.

"Every operative and every farmer in New England should hold the republican party and let it be known to the country that the textile business is slipping, that under the most favored tariff conditions they are unable to keep their plants running or pay normal wages to their employees. Let the farmer of New England tell the country that he also wants a dollar that will buy more, that it is unfair to ask him to buy his seeds and fertilizers and other farm necessities at retail and sell his products at wholesale.

"Someone should see to it that the farmers around here should be provided with a system of co-operative marketing, and if our present representative in congress isn't enough interested in the labor conditions and the farm conditions of this district someone should be found who would study the situation and find the solution.

"When business goes bad with the mills the first thing thought of is cut the wages. Why not give the operative a look-in at what constitutes the over-head charges in these establishments? Why not give the operatives or their representatives a chance to look at the books and introduce the help of an efficiency expert, and see if there are not some items in the over-head charges that are out of all proportion to the service rendered. If we are to have confidence in big business and contentment, a square deal and justice to the employee is necessary. I will take up other phases of this industrial situation as my campaign progresses."

Senator Walsh Introduced

In introducing Senator Walsh, Mr. Markham was brief and to the point. The audience rose to greet the senator and once the cheers had subsided he launched into a vigorous speech, urging support of the national and state tickets and then referring at length to his record as a member of the United States senate.

"In opening I would first say a few words of appreciation of the efforts of the men who organized here to advance my candidacy," said Senator Walsh in starting. "Proud indeed am I that my record of achievement prompts them to voluntarily hand themselves over to support me. I am pleased to come here and speak under their auspices. I have been 13 years now in public life. Long and trying years they have been. I have grown old in your service. The gray hairs are beginning to come. I have come back to you today with a greater confidence than ever in the spirit of appreciation of the people of Massachusetts and more than ever are my feelings mingled with gratitude to you and pride in you.

"Your lieutenant, governor, your governor, your senator! (Applause.) Not a living man in Massachusetts other than myself that you have bestowed these honors upon—not even my distinguished senior colleague. Neither he nor my predecessor had the distinction and the honor which was mine—that of serving as governor of the old Bay State.

"In the past I always came with a short record to place before you. Now after five years in the senate I am here again, pleading for or begging votes from no one, defying my enemies, but they political or personal, to find one act in my long stewardship that can be construed as or savor of betrayal of the trust with which you honored me. I challenge anyone to say that day in and day out my effort has been to bring a little more cheer and sunshine into the lives of those to whom I am indebted for my office.

"I come back to you with unstained hands, champion of the proper people and the proper principles. Because I have fought your battles I know that on Nov. 4 you will fight my battles. I know that you will send me back." (Prolonged applause.)

"Let me at this time make clear my advocacy in the coming election lest there might be some misconception. I am for Davis for president, one of the most brilliant men ever nominated by a political party. We have not had a democratic governor since I left the office in 1916. It is time for another one. I sincerely hope that the aggressive, brilliant, capable mayor of Boston is elected to that office. For lieutenant governor, Cummings. For attorney general, Swift—you have just

21,500 HEAR GOV. SMITH

Enthusiastic Democratic Rally
Held at Manchester, N. H.,
Last Night

Attacks Coolidge—Says No
—Successful Leader Can Be Silent

MANCHESTER, N. H., Oct. 7.—Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York was greeted by an audience of 21,500 last night at the Chateau, while the band played "The Sidewalks of New York," and hundreds cheered, applauded and joined in the singing of the favorite song of the governor of the empire state.

The other speakers of the evening were William J. Mealey, chairman of the democratic city committee; Ex-Mayor Charles C. Hayes, who presided and predicted the re-election of Gov. Fred. H. Brown and Congressman Rogers.

Pulling a telegraph blank from his pocket, Gov. Smith said that he had received a message since his arrival from two good friends, Johnny Curran and Tom McCarthy of New York, former Manchester boys, asking him to say a good word for Sheriff O'Dowd of Hillsboro county.

"I used to be a sheriff myself," said Gov. Smith. "If O'Dowd is as good a sheriff as he was a stickler for voting for me in the Madison Square Garden convention, I'll say he's a great sheriff. If he is as persistent in serving summonses as he was in voting for me in New York he must be a big success."

G.O.P. Promised Everything
Coming down to national issues Gov. Smith said that it was all right in 1920 when the republicans "mounted from the house tops the record of the democrats and everything they could think of was charged against a democratic president."

"Now the republicans say it's all wrong. Coolidge is the issue. Secretary Hughes made this statement. If there's to be no responsibility what's the use of a platform. You all know that four years ago the republicans promised the earth. That was all right. The same day they promised more tariff on their wool and the working men cheaper clothing. They promised the Italians that the new president would undo the injustice of the peace treaty. They promised the Germans that the new president would be a friend to the world and they promised to be mitigated and they promised the Irish that the new president would recognize the Irish republic. But my recollection is that the first thing he did to the Irish was to stop from parading in Boston—in Boston," repeated Gov. Smith, while his audience yelled its delight.

"Do the republicans for a moment think that they can evade the responsibility in the oil scandal? What about the Veterans' Bureau record in Washington? Remember how they used to make fun of Wilson's cabinet. They used to make a target of Josephus Daniels. They don't dare mention him today. Somebody might mention Denby."

"No Leader Can Be Silent"
Speaking of the president, Gov. Smith said that leadership was essential and no successful leader can be silent.

"Washington was not silent," went on the governor, and the audience roared with laughter.

"Jefferson wasn't silent. He spoke so the world heard him. Lincoln wasn't silent. His words have burned their way down through the ages. Cleveland wasn't silent. He made John Hay sit up and take notice. Roosevelt wasn't silent. The Lord knows."

"I'm not silent. (More laughter.) You know what would happen to me in New York if I was silent? I give the people of Vermont credit for being thrifty and conserving their resources," said he, when they try to palm off a 175-year-old yard bucket that's going too far. And when the ownership of the bucket changed hands it became the property of another spendthrift, Henry Ford?

Cheers and hilarious laughter greeted this rally. The governor ended his speech abruptly with an appeal for votes for Davis for president. His audience was prepared for it, as in opening his address Gov. Smith said that during four weeks he would be on the stump right and day, except Sundays, and he must save himself as much as possible.

The meeting ended with cheers for Smith and Gov. Brown.

Will Motor to Boston Today

Gov. Smith announced last evening that he had decided not to play golf at Nahua today as he had originally intended, but would go by motor to Boston direct. There he will be in the hands of Mayor Quinn of Cambridge, the democratic national committee man. George H. Vane, former public service commissioner of New York state, formerly secretary of Gov. Smith, arrived last evening and will accompany the governor on the rest of his New England tour. The governor came here from Albany accompanied only by his messengers.

One of his callers last evening before the Chateau meeting was Speaker William J. Ahearn of the New Hampshire house. Patrick H. Sullivan, one of Manchester's leading democrats, led a delegation of local party men to see Gov. Smith in his hotel suite.

Manchester's democrats said that it was one of the biggest and most enthusiastic political meetings ever held in this city.

EARTHQUAKE ROCKS
ERZERUM DISTRICT

LONDON, Oct. 7.—Most of the villages in the Erzerum district of Armenia were shaken by another earthquake, the fourth within six weeks, last Thursday, says a belated Constantinople despatch. The quake, though not as severe as the preceding ones, continued at intervals for 14 hours, caused some deaths and destroyed a great number of houses, several railroad stations and bridges which had withstood earlier shocks.

Charles J. Collins of St. Rita's church as deacon, and Rev. Charles J. Galligan, the pastor, as sub-deacon. Seated within the sanctuary was Rev. John J. O'Hearn of St. Paul's church, Hamilton. The choir rendered the Gregorian chant, and at the offering James J. Donnelly rendered "Domine Jesu Christe," and after the elevation Mrs. John H. Farrell sang "O Meritum Passionis." As the casket was borne from the church Cornelius Calnan sang the "De profundis." In attendance at the mass were many representative citizens, including Mayor John J. MEXICO CITY, Oct. 7.—The department of industry and commerce is informed that the oil refineries belonging to the Corona company, recently seized by the workers, have been handed over to the federal forces in Tampico. The strike, however, is being continued. The department believes there will be no general strike in the oil field.

STATE EMPLOYEES REJECT OFFER

PARIS, Oct. 7.—Representatives of more than a half million state employees, meeting here last night, decided to demand a minimum salary of 6000 francs yearly, rejecting the government's offer of 5200 francs. A deputational sent to advise Premier Herriot of the result, was assured by him that the claim would be considered at today's cabinet meeting.

TO BAR MARRIAGE OF DIVORCED PERSONS

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Oct. 7.—The Huntington Ministerial association today adopted a resolution forbidding its members to marry any person who has been divorced, except on scriptural grounds and then only the innocent party. The association has a membership of 20 ministers, representing many denominations.

The resolution was adopted after the Rev. Dr. S. Roger Tyler, pastor of Trinity Episcopal church, had declared that divorce in Cabell county, of which Huntington is a part, numbered 30 per cent of the number of marriage licenses granted.

SEARCH FOR MAN WHO SHOT CO-WORKER

BURLINGTON, Vt., Oct. 7.—County officers this morning had failed in their search to locate John Delesio, who yesterday shot Joe Lesner, a fellow employee, while at work with a construction gang at Ferrisburg.

Lesner, who was shot twice, once in the head and again in the arm, was taken to the De Groenland hospital here, where it was reported this morning he would probably recover.

THE VOICE FROM WFL

When Edwyed Lewis, director of broadcasting and announcer at WFL, Philadelphia, isn't at the studio he'll very likely be found singing in a church choir somewhere about the city. Lewis even sings his announcements, he's so full of music. He's tenor soloist and a member of the male quartet and chorus of Strawnbridge and Clothier, who own the broadcasting station.

By N.E.A. Service
NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—A broadcasting station has been erected here to spread safety education to radio fans.

The Third Avenue Railway system of this city, which is concerned with safety for car riders, automobilists and pedestrians, is the pioneer.

Station WBLJ is the first powerful radio broadcasting station to be owned and operated by a street railway company. It has just been opened officially, atop the executive offices and trolley barns here, for the wireless dissemination of safety advice buttressed with high grade concert programs.

At present, however, WBLJ's programs are purely entertaining. It is a little later that H. A. Bruno, program director and announcer, plans to include talks of general educational interest and instructions on safety and the prevention of accidents.

The station operates on 500 watts and a wavelength of 213 meters. This comparatively low wavelength for broadcasting necessitates extreme care in tuning, so as not to pass through the carrier wave without detecting it.

"We intend to present the very best programs obtainable," Bruno explains. "In addition to the general public we are also reaching many of our three thousand employees and their families."

Program announcements are posted in all the car barns and in the company's street cars.

Two new features for radio broadcasting will be inaugurated from this station. One is a radio airplane travelogue, to be broadcast every Tuesday and Friday evening between 7 and 9 o'clock. The other is a review of the current photoplays, and a weekly review of the week's new plays.

The correct time will also be announced every 15 minutes during the programs.

With cool, clear evenings, there is just a proper atmosphere to make this pastime enjoyable, and if you would like an evening of real enjoyment follow the crowd to the Commodore ballroom tonight. "Ma" Hallett and his orchestra will be the attraction playing from 8.30 until 12. The check system will be used while the customary 10 cents admission will be charged.

An odd thirteenth night will be held tomorrow night in this hall with Miner-Doyle's team furnishing the music. Old dances will be featured while several modern numbers will also be included in the program. Check dancing will be in order all evening with the admission set at 15 cents.

GRANGE IS AGAINST DAYLIGHT SAVING

Daylight saving was voted down three to one at a straw poll taken last night at the regular meeting of District Grange. Following the vote, Luther A. Root and Harry M. Fox were chosen as a committee to oppose the passage of the daylight saving referendum at the state election.

At the opening of the meeting, Chaplain Sam G. Pillsbury draped the charter in honor of the deceased members, Hattie Fletcher, John A. Weinbeck and Raymond Eastman. Routine business was transacted and upon its completion the first degree was conferred upon eight candidates by the grange officers, headed by Master Harry L. Sawyer. The second degree was also conferred upon a number of candidates, the grange degree team, headed by Ishmael Park, being in charge of this ritual.

Menus for the Family Tasted by SISTER MARY

Breakfast—Cantaloupe, ready-to-serve cereal, thin cream, browned hash, tomato sauce, corn bread, butter, honey, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—Southern vegetable stew, toasted corn bread, celery, fig graham pudding, milk, tea.

Dinner—Breaded veal cutlets, lamb chops for young children, mashed potatoes, scalloped oyster plant, cabbage and apple salad, whole wheat bread, butter, floating island with peaches, milk, coffee.

Veal is not desirable for young children, so lamb chops are suggested. Fresh sliced tomatoes might be served with the hash, if convenient. However, scalloped oyster plant, seasoned with butter, salt, sugar and a dash of pepper may be stewed until thick and smooth in the menu planned.

Children of four years love a celery heart and may be allowed to enjoy one if frequently admonished to "chew it up fine."

SOUTHERN VEGETABLE STEW

One large sweet potato, 1 medium sized onion, 1 large green pepper, 1 1/2 cups shredded string beans, 4 large tomatoes, 6 okra pods, 1 1/2 cups grated corn, 3 cups boiling water, 4 tablespoons butter, 1/2 cup butter, 1 tablespoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon pepper, 2 tablespoons sugar.

Melt butter or bacon fat in soup kettle. Add onion peeled and minced. Remove seeds and flour from pepper and mince. Add to onion and cook over a low fire for five minutes. Pare sweet potato and cut in small dice. Add to onion and pepper with beans and water and cook half an hour. Add tomatoes, okra pods cut in slices, salt, pepper and sugar and cook 20 minutes. Add corn and cook 15 minutes. If the stew becomes too dry add more water. Serve in soup plates.

SCALLOPED OYSTER PLANT

Three cups cooked oyster plant, 5 tablespoons butter, 1/2 cup milk, 2 teaspoons salt, 1/2 teaspoon pepper, bread crumbs.

Rub the oyster plant through a colander. Add half the butter, milk, salt and pepper. Mix well and put in a buttered baking dish. Melt remaining butter, add coarse crumbs and stir until crumbs are well coated. Sprinkle top of prepared oyster plant with crumbs and bake 15 minutes in a hot oven. Serve very hot.

GRAHAM PUDDING

Four tablespoons butter, 1/2 cup molasses, 1/2 cup sugar, 1/2 cup sour milk, 1 egg, 1 1/2 cups graham flour, 4 tablespoons bread flour, 1/2 teaspoon soda, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1 cup chopped figs.

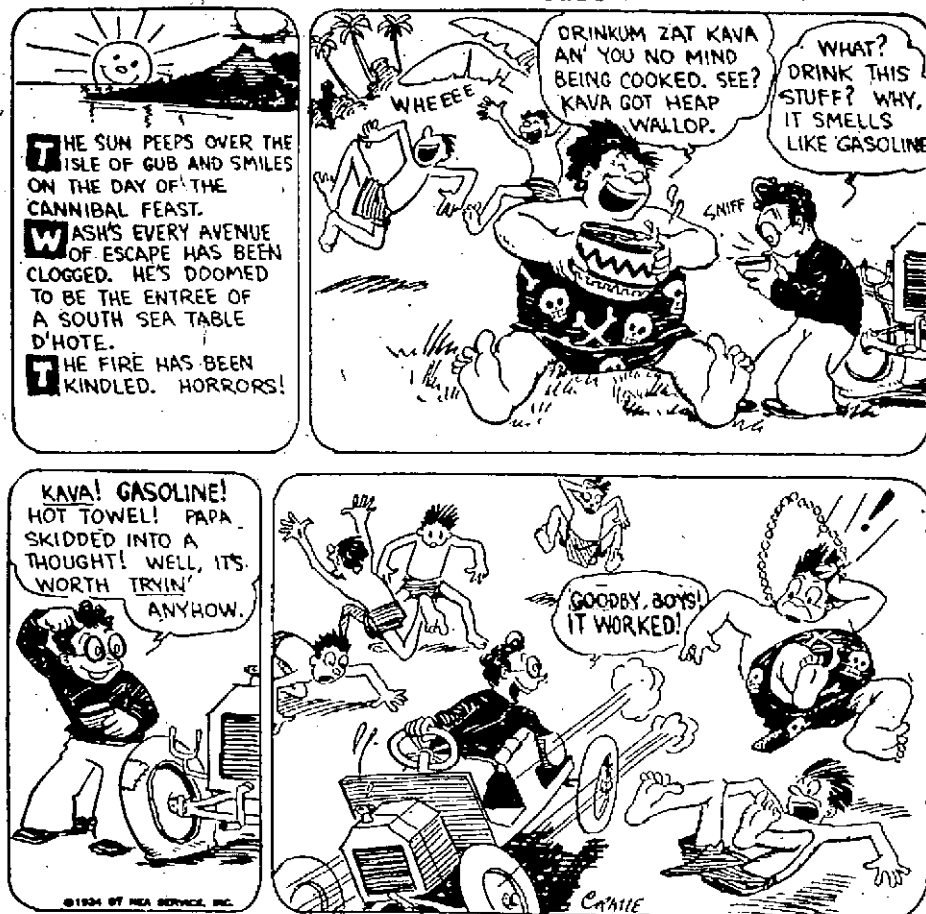

Soften butter. Stir in sugar and molasses. Add white flour and mix well. Add egg well beaten. Add graham flour and figs. Mix thoroughly. Dissolve soda in sour milk. Stir into mixture, add salt and turn into a buttered mold. Steam three hours and serve hot with whipped cream or hard sauce. Children under school age should be served with whipped cream. WILL HAVE CLASSES IN VARIOUS ARTS

The Girls' City club will this week inaugurate its annual classes of instruction in various arts. Tonight at 7 o'clock, the dressmaking class will begin. This class has been well attended in past years and the officers look for a large registration this evening. The course in gymnastics and games will get under way at 7.30 o'clock Wednesday night. Tomorrow night's program will be carried out in the form of the weekly dance at the Green Lantern ball room.

There will be a meeting this evening of the entertainment committee which has charge of the program in connection with the banquet to be staged at the convention of the state league of girls' clubs in this city on Oct. 18-19. This convention is called three times each year, and Lowell has the honor this fall.

SO this is the very last word on the mattress question:—

There are some just as good mattresses—but you will be hard pressed to find better at any price! As a matter of fact, it's a wide chance of ever being able to find even the just-as-good.

Prove it for yourself—use this good mattress for comparison and check against its known points of superiority:

First the all important filler—layer on layer of carefully garnetted clean, new cotton felt—no substitute materials. Then the special way this filler is built in by hand and reinforced at points of extra strain.

Next the full count of deep generous tufts—put in to stay with a strong double-locked tufting stitch, then the full hand-rolled edge making certain the mattress "box" will never break down.

Finally, the extra measure of care used in handling this good mattress to bring it to you crisp, wholesome and clean.

Add to all these points of plus value, the fact that you buy these good mattresses "Inside-Out"—guided and guaranteed by the sample filler cabinet as to the "contents" and before you have half finished your count of Reasons-Why you will surely choose one of these better-made

About 250 men and women voters, the most of them just getting through their day's work at the Talbot mills, heard U. S. Senator David I. Walsh speak yesterday afternoon at North Billerica. He was introduced by Wendell P. Stevens and spoke in the square in front of the postoffice.

"Most of you people, I observe," said Senator Walsh in opening, "are from the factory below here. You know what a boss is and what an employer is. I, too, have a boss. I, too, have an employer. My boss is the people of the commonwealth and I am as answerable to them for my work as you are to your bosses and employers for yours. After representing you in the national senate for five years I have come back to you to give an account of my stewardship, to ask you to scrutinize my work, and to ask you if my record, my votes, my speeches and my accomplishments meet with your approval. I don't want to go back to Washington unless I have faithfully represented your hopes, your thoughts, your aims and your desires.

"No man can vote on 2000 questions, as I have done in the past five years, and please all, not even his own party, I have been criticised for by stand on the League of Nations, and I am going to talk for the moment about that. I was called upon as your representative to make a contract with foreign nations which would bind you, your fortunes and your children for generations.

"I took the position that any phrase or clause at all dubious in meaning should be clarified so as to permit of no misunderstanding. The attitude of the United States, I held, must be made clear and fixed. Some say I should have accepted the treaty without change or reservation. Never! I don't want to be and I know you don't expect me to be—wouldn't permit me to be a rubber-stamp senator. The time to change a contract is before it is signed, not after. I didn't propose that the lives and property of the United States should be available for any people other than our own people to declare us into war and exact a financial burden and a human toll.

No super-government composed of those of other governments shall dictate the policies of this country!

"As I stand here I notice that I am standing in a square dedicated to one of your townsmen who fell in the service of his country. It brings vividly to me the thought of the Washington scandals shown in the two investigations into the veterans' bureau, both of which I instigated, and upon both of which I served. There were 150,000 soldiers who came back after the great war physically disabled or mentally incapacitated. I found the machinery in Washington chaotic and hampered, yes, bound securely in red tape. Many were unable to get hospitalization or compensation. Many, most of them mentally incapacitated, were out in the 'contract hospitals' where the government was paying $3 a day for their care and as many as 28 men were herded in one room. No staff doctors or nurses. A profit-making institution naturally does not give its inmates the full dollar's worth of care.

"One of my first acts as a member of the senate was to instigate a probe of the veterans' bureau. My revelations astounded the country. I gave a full year to work on the senate committee straightening out that mess. Then came Forbes to take command. In a short time I had to again rise in the senate to champion these poor veterans and we had to investigate the bureau again. Money squandered, mis-spent, stolen—the man at the head of the bureau a drunkard, now requiring six months to get an answer to a letter for information about their compensation—surprising sales of government materials, graft in the erection of hospitals, secret codes with profiteering contractors, indifference towards those wounded boys trying to 'come back.' That is what we found. I know you have an affectionate realization of my work in this and I point to it with pride.

"It took 21 hours to draft those boys, yet in six years we have not a rehabilitation hospital in New England complete and operating at a high standard of efficiency. It is a shame and a disgrace."

The senator told of the sad tale which veterans encountered in getting a hearing or getting the attention which they deserved, of which many were sorely in need of. He told of his efforts for them, crowned with the success in putting over his measure providing that any veteran having tuberculosis or mental troubles developing within three years from date of discharge should be treated without question. This act alone, a bureau official told him, disposed overnight of 10,000 pending claims helplessly bound up with red tape.

"The oil scandal was bad enough; the Daugherty scandal was a black enough episode in itself, but these pale into insignificance at this abuse of the men who were willing to give their all to their country in its hour of need. No word as strong enough to condemn this record of the administration. Four great departments of the government associated with scandal in the last four years—Fall in the department of the interior; Daugherty in the department of justice; Forbes in the veterans' bureau and Denby in the navy department.

"Justice, our most sacred inheritance next to religion, made a mockery. My fellow citizens, men and women gathered here, I ask you if this republican record of incompetency, dishonesty and misadministration is going to be endorsed. I appeal to you to forget party labels, to think of your country and yourselves, and repudiate this administration. Your day is coming on Nov. 4. If you sanction this record of the republican administration for the last four years, then vote the republican ticket, but if your heart is with your country and with your home, you will turn them down.

"You have been good to me. You have made me your lieutenant-governor, your governor, and your United States senator. It is more perhaps than I deserved. You have given me every gift within your power, and I assure you again and now of my appreciation. Four million voters in this commonwealth and they have ever stood by me because I have stood by them.

"As your governor I modified the workmen's compensation law so that the employee got a greater benefit without the cost being added to the employer. I instituted the free state educational bureau, the department of universal extension which has been used by 168,000 persons in ten years. My record as senator is before you and I stand or fall with it. If I have been a good senator I want to go back. I want you to endorse my political philosophy of justice and fairness to all. That policy has given me thousands of republican and progressive as well as democratic votes. I want you on Nov. 4 to let the people of the nation know that Massachusetts upholds a man of the rank and file who insists on justice, upon fairness—upon a square deal for all.

"When I first went to the senate, old Senator Gore, the blind senator from Virginia, put his arm around me and said: 'Walsh, you have the six hardest years of your life before you if you would care for your people as you should.' He was right. They have been the six hardest years of my life. I want to go back there and carry on the work which I am doing for you, I want to continue to fight the dollar when it seeks to exploit the common people. Time is running short. I would say a word about coal. There is light there which I have started and I want to continue. I will win it, and New England will have no more coal famines once we end this present way of doing things. In this election I wish you would look at the facts as published for me today in the Lowell Sun; read them—they will give you the history of that whole question, its past and its prospects.

"I am completing my term as your ballot means as much as does the cross of a Rockefeller or a Morgan. I know I'm going back to Washington and I thank you now for the endorsement of the causes I have espoused which I know you will give to me on election day. I ask also you cast your vote for the entire democratic ticket—for Davis for president, for James M. Cox for governor and for the entire democratic state ticket."

heard him, a man with a high conception of public service. For congressmen, your fellow townsmen, Humphreys, O'Sullivan. There is no brunch of the government more important than the legislative. A champion of the people must be there. Honestly alone should prevail in the sanctuary of the people's liberty.

Republican Administration

"I could go on now to tell you about the dreadful scandals, the hypocrisy, the corruption, the incompetency which the republican administration has shown in high places. On every issue there is one final fight, whether the people will be represented by a man aligned with privilege, wealth, and the dollar, and with humanity and human interest. There has never at any time been any doubt as to where I have stood.

"If I had ever any doubt as to where I stood, I had but to turn back by mind to my boyhood days in Clinton carrying dinner pails to my parents and my neighbors in the mill. It was through the sweat and blood of the members of my own family that I could go on in school and prepare to face the world better equipped than were they. I can remember as if yesterday my days at college, spent with your distinguished ex-mayor and my lifelong friend, Dennis J. Murphy, when after year I was obliged to ask extensions on my time to pay for my tuition. Would I be worthy of this heritage if I did not fight those greying exploiters so powerful in Washington? I know them all now and I'm going back there; you'll send me back, and I'll fight them!" (Applause.)

"It is their damnable, scheming, lobbying methods, dominating at times even the pulpit, controlling newspapers, even branding men radicals who oppose their desires, their grafting, their corruption, their nefarious schemes that we must fight, and please God, I will continue to fight."

Harking back to the beginning of the Harding administration, Senator Walsh pointed out that three great constructive measures were awaiting action when the late president took office, the care of disabled soldiers, the reduction of taxes levied in war-time, and the reduction of the high cost of living.

Speaking of the first, the speaker said: "Was there ever a mission or call for higher, greater, or nobler service than that entrusted to this administration? How have they done? So incompetent the work, so negligent the treatment, the Veterans' bureau has been twice investigated and I instigate both investigations and alone of the 95 senators served on both investigation committees.

ADD WALSH—"Rep. Gillett, my present opponent, was speaker of the house of representatives at the time yet he never lifted a finger for a joint committee investigation in either instance and the senate had to go it alone. We exposed the graft, the looting, the corruption in both instances and from the second investigation Harding's man Forbes is even today under two separate indictments. I'm proud of any work in championing the poor, dying, disabled boys who fought for us in the World war."

Mellon Tax Schemes

He attacked and exposed the Mellon tax reduction schemes and the Fordney-McCumber tariff as working a hardship on the ordinary person for the benefit of a moneyed and exalted few.

"Your ancestors who rebelled against taxation without representation had no greater grievances than you have with the tinkering of this 'cliff law,'" he said. "How long will the workers of the east permit this exploitation. Look at how rock-bound republican Minnesota has risen in revolt! It is high time for the east to wake up.

"If anyone tells you it is too low a tariff that is responsible for this industrial slackening then call their attention to the fact that Calvin Coolidge by one stroke of the pen can increase all tariffs fifty per cent. If too low a tariff is the reason for this unemployment, these slack times, then no man in the world is to blame as much as is Calvin Coolidge.

"Let us look at another black page on the record of the republican administration, the Naval Oil reserves scandal—the Teapot Dome. They sold God's gift to the nation, a wartime fuel supply for our fleets. Better they had sold the White House or the capitol. We could build another White House. We could move the capitol but there is nothing we can do to replace that which has been taken from the earth.

The Coolidge Record

"Turn now to the administration record, to the Coolidge record of treatment to the World war veterans, also Civil war veterans and the letter carriers. Coolidge vetoed the soldiers' bonus and he vetoed the Bursum bill. He vetoed the raise to the letter carriers and postal clerks, and it was only by resort to a contemptible device that it was not passed over his veto.

"The veto came the last day of the session. The point of order was raised that it had not been recorded. This was a mean and contemptible device. In 140 years of custom the reading has always been considered the recording, yet it was held it should be recorded. Suffice to say it never was recorded before the gavel fell. They knew Coolidge's veto would be overridden and they resorted to every trick in the bag to keep this from happening.

"Regardless of your affiliations it is your duty to see that your government is preserved as a democracy," he said in closing. "November 4 is your day. Send into office those who will fight for the millions, not for the millionaires."

"I want to go back to Washington to continue my battles as the champion for your cause. I want to further warrant your confidence. I know the crooks well now and I want to get at them again. Send me back to fight and plant and work and devote myself to the cause of the great common people of America. I thank you."

Following the speech the senator shook hands with several hundred of his auditors who besieged an anteroom of the stage, later departing by auto for his home in Clinton. He speaks tonight at Boston at the big rally at which Gov. "Al" Smith of New York is to be the feature speaker.

Piles

Can't Be Cured From the Outside. External treatments seldom cure Piles.

Nor do surgical operations. The cause is inside—bad circulation. The blood is stagnant, the veins flabby. The bowel walls are weak, the parts almost dead. To quickly and safely rid yourself of piles you must first get the circulation—send a fresh current through stagnant pools. Internal treatment is the one safe method. Ointments and cutting won't do it. J. S. Leonard, M.D., a specialist, set at work some years ago to find a real internal remedy for piles. He succeeded. He named his prescription HEM-ROID, and tried it in 1000 cases before he was satisfied. Now HEM-ROID is sold by druggists everywhere under guarantee. It is a harmless tablet, easy to take, and can always be found at Green's Drug Store, which will gladly refund the purchase price to any dissatisfied customer.—Adv.

IN NEW YORK

BY STEPHEN HANNIGAN

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—Applicants for burglary and holdup insurance in New York are investigated as vigorously as men suspected of committing such crimes.

There have been so many holdups and burglaries, considered fakes but unprovable as such, that insurance men are looking to the doors of their premium tables before policy holders have a chance to steal the horse.

Five years ago insurance agents were hungry for such business. Today they sit at their desks and "take under consideration" all prospective clients.

I was surprised when a prominent jeweler detailed to me a list of notables who would not be insured against burglary and holdup. It was astonishing. All of them are presumed to be immensely wealthy and many high in social regard.

Yet it was inferred that they would stoop to any level to gather in premiums. When one insurance company finds a client a poor risk for one reason or other, the information is passed on to all other companies through a channel organization formed to protect these companies against illegitimate loss. Padding claims is a common offense of the insured. It is claimed. Two

BOOTS AND HER BUDDIES

Hundred dollars is often stretched to a loss of $2000 by dishonest premium holders.

In many instances when an apartment house in a neighborhood is burglarized, insurance clients throughout the section file a claim. It is practically impossible for the insurance investigator to disprove the claim, though in many instances it is unquestionably false.

PROMOTE TOLERATION

Masons and Knights of Columbus Join in Organization at Utica, N. Y.

UTICA, N. Y., Oct. 7. (By the Associated Press.)—With a view to fostering patriotic ideals and "a spirit of toleration in economics, politics and religion," 80 Protestants, nearly all Masons, and a like number of Catholics, met last night for formal organization of the Hamilton-Jefferson association, announced as a "non-sect, non-sectarian and non-partisan group."

The charter members, all leading business men of Utica, have the aims and objects of the organization outlined by leaders in each of the two fraternal bodies, and attended up in the principal address of the evening by Ethel Root, formerly United States secretary of state.

Mr. Root, who became a member of the association only after he had been assured of its non-sectarian character, expressed the belief that by having a membership drawn equally from the Protestant and Catholic faiths, the organization had gone a long way toward ultimate success.

The membership list of the parent chapter of the organization limited to 100 men, it was explained at the dinner, of which half must represent each religious faith. To maintain the desired balance, new members will be admitted in pairs, one Protestant and one Catholic. At the monthly meetings of the association subjects concerning general public welfare will be discussed and acted upon, according to the purposes outlined at the dinner, and the United States constitution will be held as "an antidote for the evils of the day."

JURY TO PASS ON SANITY OF DOUBLE SLAYER

AURORA, Ill., Oct. 7.—Selection before night of a jury to pass on the mental condition of Warren J. Lincoln, lawyer and florist, who killed his wife, Lina, and her brother, Byron Shoup, and enclosed their heads in a concrete block, was in prospect today in the Kane county circuit court at Geneva, Ill. Eight tentative jurors were accepted yesterday.

Lincoln's sanity must be decided before the trial for the murders.

1500 CATTLE ORDERED DESTROYED IN TEXAS

HOUSTON, Texas, Oct. 7.—An additional 1500 cattle were ordered destroyed yesterday in Texas, fight against the foot and mouth disease. It is feared they had been in contact with cattle previously killed. The total ordered destroyed was raised to 4500. It was reported yesterday Mexican had embargoed all freight originating in or passing through the quarantined areas.

ANNUAL AUTUMN PARTY AND DANCE

The Knights of Columbus and their friends are expected to turn out in large numbers at the annual autumn party and dance to be held Friday evening in the Commodore ballroom. The event will mark the beginning of the indoor social season and a large crowd is expected to attend. The proceeds of the affair will be applied to the K. of C. building fund. Music will be furnished by Miner-Doyle's orchestra.

TRIAL OF POTHIER

Brig. Gen. Richards of Providence, R. I., Testifies at Tacoma, Washington

TACOMA, Wash., Oct. 7.—Brigadier-General J. J. Richards of Providence, R. I., was ready today to resume his testimony at the resumption of the trial of Roland Pothier, former sergeant-bugler in the 21st Engineers on a charge of murder, as a result of the shooting of Major Robert Cronkhite at Camp Lewis in October, 1918.

No session of court was held yesterday as the judge was called from the city.

Gen. Richards' previous testimony was that it would have been impossible for Pothier to have killed Major Cronkhite, accidentally in the manner set forth in the first of several alleged statements made by Pothier.

"Pothier told me that the shooting occurred when he endeavored to pull back the slide on his gun to get an empty shell, after both he and the major had fired at a tobacco can on a golf post," General Richards declared.

Robert Rosenbluth, former army captain, is scheduled to go on trial in the same court Oct. 22, for alleged complicity in Major Cronkhite's death.

WILL HOLD DANCE AT CHELMSFORD CENTRE

Without doubt, one of the liveliest store organizations in the city, is the Employees' Mutual Benefit Association of Fairbairn's Market, Inc. Hardly a month goes by without one or two events of importance for the members of the association. Recently they had a "light-seeing" trip to the White Mountains and now they are planning for a get-together and dance on next Monday evening, the holiday, at Chelmsford Centre.

Miss Elizabeth Conway, chairman of the general committee, in speaking of the coming affair Monday night said that nothing has been left undone to provide a great affair. The social is for employees of the market only, although they are permitted to invite their friends. Dancing will be enjoyed, many novel features introduced, and a buffet lunch will be served.

COLLEGE EXTENSION CLASSES OPENED

Last night an official of the state department of education was at the high school to register applicants for the various courses offered by the college extension department. He was very much disappointed at the attendance and was unable to form more than a couple of classes although he expects that during the week other classes will be formed. The most popular classes apparently were English composition, literature and economics. It is necessary to have from 10 to 25 students for each class in order to conduct the course successfully. The department cannot pay a teacher to come once or twice a week from Boston to accommodate a less number of students. The attendance last night did not indicate proper appreciation of the splendid opportunities offered by these extension classes.

LOWELL HISTORICAL SOCIETY

The quarterly meeting of the Lowell Historical society will be held tomorrow evening in Memorial hall at which time the officers and committees will submit their reports, applications for membership will be approved and other business transacted. Mr. Alfred B. Sawyer of the American Bar association will speak of the recent meeting held in London at which time 2000 members of the association were the guests of the British bar. His subject will be "A Week in Historic London." Members may invite friends.

ON TRIAL FOR PIRACY DUEL WITH SABRES

OF LIQUOR CARGO

MONTREAL, Oct. 7.—Testimony that he was forced, on threat of death, to act as second mate and give false statements in having the British schooner Lutten entered with the register of shipping at Bermuda, was given today by Jack M. Morris, a Montreal furrier, in the court of King's Bench, where Captain Samuel Ford is on trial for piracy of the schooner's cargo of 4300 cases of liquor.

Morris testified that he and a lawyer named Isaac had shipped as super cargoes on the schooner and that they were kept prisoners on the vessel while its cargo of liquor was being sold to rum smugglers. After the liquor had all been sold, Morris said, the Lutten sailed for Bermuda. Morris declared that he was signed as second mate and Isaac as third assistant.

Norman Adelman of Montreal testified that 3400 cases of liquor was the property of the Sydney Wine and Spirit Co. and that the remaining 1000 cases belonged to a Dr. Thom of Winnipeg.

TO PROVIDE CLOTHING FOR NEEDY CHILDREN

In an effort to raise funds with which clothing will be provided for the needy children of the city, the Children's Aid society will hold an entertainment at dance in the Girls' City club rooms on Friday evening, Oct. 24. Elaborate souvenir programs will be distributed to those attending and three grand prizes will be given the holders of the lucky tickets.

The committee in charge of the affair comprises Mrs. Johann de la Parra, Mrs. Bourke, Miss Sadie Cohen and other members of the executive committee of the organization.

The work of the society since its organization last March has been tenaciously carried on throughout the city and many needy children have been clothed and thereby greatly helped along in their struggle for proper existence. About 60 women are engaged in the work of helping the children and a room in the old high school building has been opened for use as headquarters of the society.

Sungkiang Falls, Chekiang Troops Are in Retreat

daybreak today and rained bombs on the ancient city while the surface armies of Gen. Chang Tso-Lin, Manchurian leader, and Peking government troops carried on an intensive battle for possession of the city, which is held by Peking forces.

According to private advices received here, the battle was continuing with added fury at 11 o'clock this morning. The Chang Tso-Lin airman and surface forces rained shells inside the great wall once considered an adequate barrier of defense against Manchurian and Mongolian invaders.

As the bombardment continued the Manchurian troops, attempting to take the city, were unable to withstand the fire returned by the Peking troops and were forced to retreat to new positions.

Attempt to Halt Invaders

TOKIO, Oct. 7. (By the Associated Press.)—Peking government troops in north China province are being rushed from Dolonor to the vicinity of Jehol in an attempt to prevent advances by the invading Manchurian armies of General Chang Tso-Lin, who is fighting for control of the central government of China, according to a despatch today to the Kokum News agency from Mukden, Manchuria.

Dolonor is 150 miles northwest of Jehol, near the Chihli-Manchurian border. The same agency also reported that French concerns had delivered 20 Junkers 20 airplanes and ten motor trucks ordered by General Chang prior to the opening of hostilities with the central Chinese government.

Count Tolstol, the great Russian author, always went hatless and barefooted, no matter what the weather.

MEETING OF LEGION POST AND AUXILIARY

A joint meeting of Lowell Post 27, American Legion, and American Legion Auxiliary was held last evening in the veterans' quarters in the Memorial Auditorium and was well attended by members of both organizations.

Commander Collis C. MacDonald presided and seated at his right was Mrs. Nellie Usher, president of the auxiliary. A routine business meeting of the Legion was held and upon its completion, Mrs. Usher reported on the work accomplished by the auxiliary.

A report on the national Legion convention at St. Paul was given by James P. McCready, Lowell delegate. He said that Lowell post ranks high in the list of posts throughout the country and that it should be proud of its work. He told of the hospitalities accorded by residents of St. Paul, stating that for every minute not taken up at meetings some activity was provided by the hospitality committee.

James F. Conway, of the prize committee recommended that a shield should be donated for the winner of the annual high school regimental individual drill. Chairman Cornelius Buckley of the visiting committee reported that four members were sick in hospital. A number of other committees reported and the meeting voted to adjourn.

GIFT OF $475,000 FOR HARVARD COLLEGE

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 7.—A gift of $475,000 for the division of chemistry, Harvard university, by the family of the late B. C. Converse of New York was announced today by Bishop William Lawrence of the Episcopal diocese of Massachusetts, chairman of the committee to extend the national service of the university. The gift, the announcement said, will be used for the erection of a chemical research laboratory at Harvard as a memorial to Mr. Converse and to carry his name.

"The members of the family who have contributed this gift are Mrs. E. C. Converse, his daughter, Mrs. Benjamin Strong and Madame Antoinette Converse, and his son, E. C. Converse," Bishop Lawrence said. "It is in response to the work we started last spring to extend the service which Harvard should render to the country. We stated that we needed a minimum of $10,000,000 for the Harvard Business school, the division of chemistry and the division of fine arts."

At commencement we reported the really extraordinary response to our campaign and the widespread recognition of the national need which we felt we would meet. The Converse gift encourages us to believe that the amount to complete our effort will be forthcoming."

Mr. Converse, one of the group of international financiers who founded the United States Steel corporation, prepared for Harvard but was prevented at the last moment from entering. He was general manager and later president of the National Tube Works and was influential in bringing about a consolidation of the various tube works concerns with the United States Steel corporation of which he was director for many years. He was long president of the Liberty bank of New York. Later he was one of the founders and first president of the Bankers Trust company and was subsequently chairman of the board of directors of that company.

He endowed a professorship of banking in the Harvard school of business administration. The Converse library at Amherst was a gift from Mr. Converse in memory of his brother, who was an Amherst graduate.

INTERESTING TALK ON CALIFORNIA

An entertaining talk on California was given before the Y's Men's club at their semi-monthly meeting last evening in the Y hall by Rev. Percy E. Thomas, pastor of the First Congregational church.

The talk followed an excellent dinner which was served under the direction of Mrs. Valentine Wilmet, Mrs. Murdoch McKinnon, Mrs. Thomas Combs and Mrs. Martha Branson. The addresses were by Misses Olive Cairns and Clara Sutherland. During the dinner group singing was led by Joseph Hollingsworth and a brief talk on insurance was given by Frank Daly.

Rev. Mr. Thomas was introduced by Pres. Hollingsworth. Over 100 beautiful stereoscopic views of the "Sunshine State" were shown and the speaker interestingly described the places shown in the pictures. In conclusion he compared California with New England and said the latter place was more ideal to live in than much-talked-about California and he urged the members present to boost New England on every occasion.

OPENING OF THE EVENING SCHOOLS

The opening sessions of the public evening schools were held last evening and in every branch of the work it was reported that the classes were very large. At the evening high school the registration was approximately 50 in excess of last year's opening night registration. The men's vocational school reported about the same number registered as last year, and at the women's vocational classes it was reported that in two departments, cooking and home nursing, a waiting list was formed of those who could not be admitted owing to the limited capacity of the rooms. It is believed the other classes will be filled this evening.

No figures on the registration of the elementary schools could be given but it is believed that a record will be established this year. Registrations will be accepted in all but the high school this evening. The next high school registration session will be held Wednesday at 7 p. m. in the school office.

Slowing down

It's harder than speeding up, says engineer after three million miles on the road.

By STEPHEN HANNIGAN
HOBOKEN, N. J., Oct. 4.—"Slowing down is a lot more difficult than speeding up."

So spoke Richard Trezise, 70, as he climbed into the cab of a railroad engine for his last 90-mile run as a locomotive engineer. He is being retired after 41 continuous years of service in a cab on the Lackawanna.

"You see, for years and years I have been speeding up," he explained as he climbed aboard his faithful iron horse, "and now the red flag is against me. I must make an emergency halt, get down off my engine and sit by the roadside while the world of engines goes speeding past."

It's going to be the most trying task of my life. All these years my orders have called for more speed and I've become accustomed to opening the throttle and making up lost time. Now the brakes must be applied for, according to regulations, old age has overtaken me. I am 70."

Trezise has traveled 3,000,000 miles. Of the millions of passengers entrusted to his care he has never lost a life. He is proud of his record.

"All life is like railroad engineering," he philosophized, "there is a constant rush and a fear lest one be late. Hasten becomes a mania and a habit. Every nerve is centered on going faster. The mind and body become attuned to it."

"Then suddenly age or success, or any number of reasons, brings about a slackening of pace. If you can't slow down as gradually and systematically as you have gathered speed, the result is likely to be disastrous."

"You can gather speed with reckless abandon—but the brakes must be applied cautiously. Jamming on brakes while traveling at topspeed will most likely wreck you."

"Americans are traveling life's road too rapidly. Speed is often necessary, and it is all right on its place. But always keep your engine under control in the dangerous places. Don't ever permit your mind to become pre-occupied while traveling at topspeed—remember there may be an open switch just ahead. Keep an eye open for it, and a ready hand for the brakes."

Trezise is married, the father of five children, and the grandfather of 13. He never has drunk liquor or used tobacco.

As he sat in his cab, hand on throttle, the conductor signalled him to "go ahead."

There was something pathetic about the grizzled veteran as he pressed the throttle and began his last trip as an engineer and his first trip on his new, perilous journey of "slowing down."

GIVES UP HUBBY

Old by his doctor that he had one year to live, Ralph W. Upham of Columbus asked his wife, Emily K. Upham, to release him from marriage so he could live his last year—with the woman he loved. Mrs. Upham (above) granted his request by suing for divorce, which was granted, together with $50 a month for the support of their son, age 5.

FAVOR ADOPTION OF THIRD NATIONAL RADIO NEW CONSTITUTION CONFERENCE

LYNN, Oct. 7.—Partial returns up to noon today indicate almost to a certainty that the rank and file of the Amalgamated Shoe Workers at the referendum polled by all local unions Monday, voted in favor of adoption of the new constitution recommended by the unions' recent convention.

The change in union form of government, becoming effective Jan. 1, means present general officers are to be abolished and a district council and district agent substituted to conduct the union's affairs. The district council would consist of the delegates and an alternate chosen by each local, and the district agent would be elected by the union at large. The newly adopted constitution calls for organization of the new district council by Dec. 12, but dates for nomination and election of the council members and district agent remain to be set.

Present officials, President-General Walter B. Fogarty of Rochester, N. Y.; General Secretary-Treasurer James P. Coleman of Lynn, and Charles Harris, Lynn, member of the present general council, which will be abolished, are to continue to hold office until the new plan becomes effective Jan. 1.

The change was advocated largely as an economy measure, doing away with several paid officials, and the Amalgamated becoming virtually a Lynn union instead of one making pretense to being a national organization of shoe workers. It is not believed the change will have any material effect on the shoe industry here, peace agreements with 37 Lynn firms standing until April 30, 1925.

LA FOLLETTE FORCES LOSE COURT FIGHT

BATON ROUGE, La., Oct. 7.—The La Follette-Wheeler forces last night lost their court fight to have the names of their ten electors placed on the Louisiana official ballot in the general election next month. Judge W. C. Jones of the supreme court refused to compel Secretary of State James B. Campbell to print the names on the tickets.

The disarming inaction proceedings filed by attorneys on behalf of J. J. Finerman, head of the Louisiana La Follette action in this state, Judge Jones sustained the exception of W. H. Thompson, an assistant attorney general, representing the state, who argued that the alternative writ issued against Mr. Bailey a week ago.

Mr. Bailey based his refusal to place the names of the electors on the ballot on the ground that the state law requiring 100 signatures of qualified electors had not been complied with.

NO OFFICIAL NOTICE OF WALES' VISIT

CHICAGO, Oct. 7.—No official recognition of the visit of the Prince of Wales to Chicago next Monday will be taken by the British consulate here, according to General Herbert Richards, the consul.

General Richards said he had received official notification from the British ambassador at Washington of the Prince's impending visit, but had orders to take no official notice of it.

"He has expressed an earnest desire to be treated as a private citizen on a little holiday and I shall respect his privacy to the extreme of foregoing the pleasure of paying my personal respects," he said.

The prince is coming at the invitation of Louis F. Swift, Jr., whose secretary said he would not be able to attend the prince's visit, but a reception at the Swift home or at a country club was probable.

BODY MAY BE THAT OF MISSING CASHIER

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Oct. 7.—The father and wife of Guy A. Rice of this city, missing assistant cashier of the American Thread company of Holyoke, who disappeared a month ago, went to Beverly today in an effort to identify as that of Rice a body found in North pond in that city under circumstances indicating murder.

After Rice disappeared, his wife received a letter postmarked in Boston in which he intimated he intended to do away with himself. Rice's father, A. H. Rice, sent word to the Beverly authorities yesterday asking that dissection of the body be deferred until his arrival.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Oct. 7.—Roger Nash and a small daughter were burned, the child seriously, in a fire which destroyed the Nash home early this morning. The injured child was rescued by Patrolman Johnson, who risked his life to enter the burning building to wake three sleeping children. Nash followed him and was overcome by smoke.

ALMA GLUCK COMING TO THE AUDITORIUM

When Alma Gluck sings in a smaller city when going to Boston, the people of the small city are to say, as many did in Lowell about other artists, that the small town is a "good place for a dress rehearsal." Lowell is to receive Madame Gluck before Boston does, but, then, the great singer appears in New York before she comes to Lowell. Must one conclude from that that New York is a testing ground for Lowell?

The truth of the matter is that Madame Gluck's tour is quite short, and simply and solely to her steadfast determination to be a real mother before she is anything else. That is the reason each one of her children—she is Mrs. Efram Zimbalist in reality—has cost her fully $150,000 in concert engagements because she is so caring for and nursing her babies as any old-fashioned mother would do. Mr. Zimbalist often refers to his "half million-dollar family."

Thousands of people know Alma Gluck through the Victor records she has made. Indeed, it was the insistence from the people to hear her in concert work which made her, little by little, curtail her operatic work until she was devoting what time she could spare to her children and her concert work. There is a rich, warm quality in it that thrills audiences night after night. And yet, with hundreds of cities bidding for a concert, she keeps on limiting her tours in order that she may devote more time to her family.

The Lowell concert, next Tuesday, Oct. 14, will be at the Lowell Memorial Auditorium, and tickets are available now at the local Steinert store, 130 Merrimack street. It is the first concert in the celebrated Steinert concert series.

SEN. WHEELER SPEAKS IN OREGON

WHEELER SPECIAL, En Route to Portland, Ore., Oct. 7.—Senator Wheeler, independent vice presidential candidate, took his speaking campaign into Oregon today. His schedule called for an early arrival at Portland and a departure for California on Wednesday. His California engagement promised to keep him the balance of the week in the northern half of the state and to place him in Los Angeles territory by Monday.

Yesterday at Seattle he introduced new legislation into his speaking repertoire, dealing with the conduct of the Alaskan government railroad and alleged banking transactions in Massachusetts at the time President Coolidge was governor of that state.

LADIES' NIGHT AT THE GREEN LANTERN

A ladies' night, at which the young lady friends of the Girls' City club will be the guests, will be held this evening at the Green Lantern. Gentlemen will also be welcomed this evening although they will contribute the necessary entrance fee. This evening it will be the aim of the club members to entertain their lady friends and a general good time will be enjoyed by all attending.

The dressmaking class held its first session last evening at the club rooms in Kearney square under the direction of Miss Mildred Mulquennay. Those wishing to enter this class may send in their application and will be admitted on Thursday evening at the second session.

On Oct. 15 and 16 delegates from the various Girls' clubs throughout the state will meet in Lowell to discuss club policies and programs. They will be the guests of the local club and the hospitality committee under the chairmanship of Miss Nellie Thomas, is preparing an elaborate program which will comprise a banquet, a reception at the Green Lantern and a dancing party in the clubrooms in the square.

MUNICIPAL COUNCIL MEETING TONIGHT

Short session of the city council is expected for tonight, little other than the usual mass of routine business being scheduled to come before the meeting. The special committee on Central bridge will meet prior to the council session with a view to preparing recommendations to submit tonight to the main body.

It is regarded as quite likely that the committee will recommend the immediate engagement of a district engineer of note to report on the advisability of repairing or replacing the present structure.

SEC. WORK DENIES WHEELER'S CHARGE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—Secretary Work denied knowledge today of the secret contract between J. P. Morgan's Alaska steamship company and the government-owned Alaska railroad.

Fixing division of freight rates between the two concerns on joint shipments which last night was made the basis of a campaign speech by Senator Wheeler, independent vice-presidential candidate.

"In the first place," Mr. Work said, "the senator is talking about transactions which occurred in the interior department before I entered the office. Secondly, you can be sure that I never wrote any letter asking that anything be kept secret."

TEN STRIKERS RETURN TO WORK

The agreement, which is to run two years, provides for recognition of the union, a 41-hour week, a minimum wage for the various crafts and does away with "home work."

NEW HIGH RECORD FOR BAR SILVER

ITEMS OF INTEREST IN WALL STREET

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—Net income of the Standard Milling company for the year ended August 31 shows a slight increase to $1,047,355 from $1,023,152 in the preceding year. An issue of $5,000,000 5 1/2 per cent bonds of the New York Railway company of France, due in 1930, is offered today by a group headed by J. P. Morgan and Co. at 88 1/2 to yield 7.53 per cent. A sinking fund will start in 1931 and will retire the issue by maturity. Other new offerings include $4,600,000 4 1/2 per cent bonds of the Erie Railroad, 5 1/2 per cent bonds due 1934 at 98 1/2 and interest to yield more than 6.55 per cent.

The New York stock exchange will be closed on Monday, Oct. 13, in observance of Columbus day.

September sales of G. R. Kinney amounted to $1,233,234, a slight decrease under September, 1923, but the total of $11,086,152 for nine months in 1924 was a gain of more than 17 per cent over the corresponding period last year.

MUST CUT WAGES OR CLOSE PLANT

ADAMS, Oct. 7.—Market conditions make it impossible to continue operations unless labor costs are reduced, officials of the Renfrew Mfg. Co. declare relative to notices posted in their mills of a 12 1/2 per cent wage reduction, effective Oct. 13. They state that the cut may be possible to operate the mills three or four days a week and some departments full time. In May, 1923, the company increased wages 12 1/2 per cent.

HEAD OF PARTRIDGE CO. ENDS HIS LIFE

Gov. Smith Will Not Speak Here

man C. J. Cronin of the democratic city committee and Chairman J. Joseph Hennessy and Treasurer Dr. P. J. McEgan of the O'Sullivan campaign committee waited on the Empire State governor in his suite at the Hotel Carpenter in Manchester and asked him to stop off and speak here.

The governor stated that he would not depart from the program given him by the democratic national committee nor would he deviate from his early announced intention of not making more than a single speech in any campaign made the statement that the governor would speak here by telephone to ask him to change his mind and live up to the unauthorized advertisement. The governor personally answered the phone and made it unmistakably clear that he had not changed his mind and had no intention of so doing.

WERE YOU ONE WHO FAILED TO VOTE?

Mr. and Mrs. Voter: Give serious thought to the following figures:

In 1920, 80 per cent of the eligible voters of the country voted. In 1920, 73 per cent cast their ballots. In 1920, 65 per cent voted. In 1920, 62 per cent voted. In 1920, less than 50 per cent of those eligible to vote went to the polls!

Within the last decade there has been a retrogression of civic consciousness; a failure on the part of a large number of good citizens to perform their duty of citizenship. Were you one of the 25 million who failed to vote in 1920?

Voting is a privilege as well as a duty. Election day is November 4. Vote as you please—but—vote!

afternoon. It is an action of tort in the sum of $10,000 brought by Eva H. M. Forsberg, administratrix of the estate of G. Adolf Forsberg, against E. O. Lyeth of Middlesex Village.

The plaintiff alleges in her declaration that the defendant was operating his automobile in a negligent and careless manner at the time of the accident. The defendant denies this and says in reply that Forsberg was not exercising due care in his progress along the street.

Case Was Settling

The action of contract case involving a real estate commission was settled in court this forenoon after a jury had been drawn and the plaintiff's counsel had made his opening address. The plaintiff, Max Rosengard, sought to recover $297 from Samuel Richard, for whom he claims he sold property in State street. Settlement was made by the defendant before the trial actually got underway.

LONDON STRIKE AVERTED BY AFTERNOON TEA

By MILTON BRONNER
N.E.A. Service Writer

LONDON, Oct. 7.—Not so long ago a Frenchman said he could tell the sex of women by their names. And now comes another Frenchman with the announcement that women's names suggest colors, as thus:

White—Bertha, Marie, Marguerite, Claire, Ophelia, Isult.
Blue—Eugenia, Zoe, Virginia, Elise, Celina.
Black—Diana, Rachel, Irene, Esther, Rebecca, Nathalie.
Red—Augusta, Faustine, Claudia.
Green—Bertha, Bernadine, Valeria.
Rose—Caroline, Madeleine, Laura, Alina.
Yellow—Gertrude, Francoise, Anne, Henriette, Gabrielle, Jennie, Germaine, Henriette.

Great Britain is a country where the booze flows freely, but in the last analysis it is tea rather than whisky which holds the fort. The whole blooming country suspends operations every afternoon at 4 o'clock to take its tea.

And recently a serious strike was averted by the same cup that cheers but doesn't inebriate. The girls who work at the confection plant for herrings at Grimsby declared a strike and demanded an all-round increase of five shillings a week.

The president of the Employers' association, after much argument, diplomatically suggested they adjourn for tea. In the meantime he rushed off to consult with his associates. Then he came back with the announcement that the increase would be granted.

The girls cheered him, drank his health in tea and went back to work. The King of Belgium is highly popular in Italy as a result of his last visit to that country, and you would never guess why.

Polish cigars did it. All over the peninsula smoke of the main people, when they treat themselves to a cigar, is one known as a "Tuscan." It tells for about half a nicker. It has the delicious flavor and odor of a piece of old rose that has been set on fire.

When King Albert was in Rome he was the chief guest at a big banquet offered him by one of the old nobles of Italy. The wine was being drunk and the cigars were being passed around, in honor of a king the very choicest of flavians that money can buy had been procured.

"No, thanks," said the king, "if you wish to give me pleasure, offer me a Tuscan."

There was great confusion. None of the great and near great ever smoked the common things. But the waiter assigned to the king came to the rescue. He offered the monarch his own cigar case. It contained only Tuscan cigars. The king, for once, was pleased. He cheered the king. His taste in smokes was like theirs.

VOTING AS A DUTY

The issue of the hour is the registration of voters, so that a full vote may be cast at the election on November 4. It would be a real national disgrace to have it found that not much more than half the people who are eligible to vote, show enough interest to attend to the necessary preliminaries of getting their names on the voting list, and then going to the polls on election day to exercise the proud privilege of assisting in the choice of officials to conduct the government for the ensuing year. These political slackers are numerous in Lowell as in other cities, and throughout the country a great effort is being made to arouse interest in the obligation of all citizens to vote.

It has been remarked by a political speaker that if you go through any city in the country and pick out the bums and disreputables, you will find that they are all registered. They all vote for their friends and without any thought of whether the results will bring good government or the reverse. As a rule this class does not want good government; they vote in many cases for the least worthy candidates in the running and where a few votes may decide a contest, it is seen that those who fail to vote, assume a serious responsibility. In a great many cases, they are responsible for the election of dishonest and incompetent men. Nevertheless, these same people are among the first to criticize if the government goes wrong, and if the people's money is squandered without showing adequate results.

Various committees are at work here in an effort to promote registration and the election commission has agreed to co-operate to the extent of holding sessions in various wards of the city. These should be attended by all who are eligible for registration in order that they may have the right to exercise the franchise in the coming election which will doubtless be one of the most important in our history.

It is of special importance not only because there is a formidable third party in the field, but because of the number of important issues submitted to the people for decision. Of these there are seven in all and they are such that every citizen should express his or her opinion on each and all of them.

On some, it will be right and proper to vote in the affirmative, but on others it is of the utmost importance that a negative vote be registered. If any unpopular measure be carried and saddled on the people against their will and to their detriment, the slackers who do not vote, who do not go to the polls to guard their liberties, their rights and their pocketbooks, will have to bear a large part if not the entire blame. If, for example, the referendum for a 2-cent tax on every gallon of gasoline sold in the state hereafter be carried by a few hundred votes, then the result can be laid at the door of the political slackers, thousands of whom did not think it worth while to vote on election day.

FALSE REPUBLICAN CLAIMS

Nothing is more amusing in this campaign than the persistent claim by Manager Butler and other republican leaders that the Harding-Coffidge administration has solved the problem of unemployment and that the country is enjoying an era of great industrial prosperity.

We have been wondering whether the people who have been out of work off and on for the last year can be hypnotized into believing this political bunk issued by the republican propagandists. The fifteen out of every hundred farmers who have been forced into bankruptcy during the last year and a half are not in a position to admit that the campaign claim in this respect is based upon facts; neither will wage earners who have been out of work for the greater part of the time nor even those who have been given employment at reduced wages. Nor do the merchants and bankers who have been forced into insolvency or else weathered the gale with great difficulty, believe that Mr. Butler or the republican leaders are telling the truth. There are hundreds of proofs of industrial depression that completely refute Mr. Butler's claim, and while some improvement may have taken place there is still widespread unemployment and still an anxious hope for the return of normal conditions and real prosperity such as were enjoyed under the last democratic administration.

Perhaps no single line of business suffered more than did the textile industry from the general depression. The operatives hereabouts cannot be convinced that we are in the midst of a great era of prosperity. Transportation and financial affairs usually indicate whether business prospers.

For the first six months of 1924, the gross earnings of the railroads amounted to $2,865,947,474 as compared with $3,031,934,815 during the same half of 1923, a decrease of $223,987,341. During the same periods, net earnings of the roads fell from $651,825,363 to $597,928,190, a decrease of $53,867,173.

During the first six months of 1924, there were 428 bank failures in the country, with liabilities amounting to $153,228,720. During 1923, there were 510 bank failures, with liabilities of $190,720,000, so that there have been four-fifths as many in six months of 1924 as in all of 1923, showing that conditions have been far from prosperous. During three years of the last Wilson administration, 1918, 1919 and 1920, there were only 189 failures, with liabilities of only $72,361,010. These figures prove the falsity of republican claims, but a reality the average citizen needs no proof that industrial depression and not prosperity prevail with results that have caused the people to draw upon what they had saved under the Wilson administration.

SEN. WALSH'S ADDRESS

Senator Walsh's speech at city hall yesterday noon was a rouser. With his characteristic attitude of being on a level with the people, the senator did not stand on the top step as do most other speakers, but descended several steps until he stood almost on a level with his audience. He dealt in a very forcible manner with republican mismanagement and corruption as exposed in the various investigations conducted by congress. Senator Walsh himself was the instigator of two investigations of the Disabled Veterans' bureau which were opposed by republicans in the house. The raciality of Forbes in depriving the disabled veterans of the relief for which the people's money was appropriated, was clearly exposed by the senator. He also condemned the president for vetoing the Bureau bill, as well as the bonus bill for the service men and his parsimony in also vetoing the bill that would have given the clerical class a slight increase in wages. He had it from an expert that a letter carrier with four or five children could not live comfortably on a salary less than $2500, but they now receive only $1600.

He explains how the cost of living is kept up by the unjust Fordney-McCumber tariff, and how Mellon and President Coolidge endeavored to have a tax bill passed that would benefit only the wealthy. The speaker said the progressives served the best interests of the people in helping the democrats to force through the taxation bill that would benefit the smaller income tax payers and thereby help the masses instead of the magnates of great wealth.

His exposure of the government's inaction in reference to the coal shortage illustrated his foresight. Had the government headed Senator Walsh's warning given in congress early in June, 1922, there would have been no coal famine and the people would thus have been saved hundreds of millions of dollars and much physical suffering. When the senator declared that it rested with the people whether they would retain his services or displace him by a reactionary, the sentiment of the crowd was strongly manifested in his favor. His suggested amendment to the constitution providing that in time of emergency the government shall be empowered to operate the coal mines and the railroads in order to prevent suffering among the people, struck a popular chord; and his final appeal for support of the officials who stand for the interests of the plain people brought enthusiastic cheers. If Senator Walsh can reach the people through his campaign addresses, there will be no question as to his victory.

COSTLY ELECTIONS

It is estimated that the cost to the three political parties of a presidential year will amount to $10,000,000. To some this may seem an enormous waste, but it is the price we pay for getting the people interested in politics to the extent of making a judicious decision between the candidates of the contending political parties. Sometimes they make a wise selection and sometimes very unwise. It is not an easy matter to decide right in all cases; but when the people make their choice, we have to accept it as reflecting the will of the majority and give the government our loyal support.

The republican plan of campaign is not to mention the record of the past Wilson administration, 1918, 1919 and 1920, there were only 189 failures, with liabilities of only $72,361,010. These figures prove the falsity of republican claims, but a reality the average citizen needs no proof that industrial depression and not prosperity prevail with results that have caused the people to draw upon what they had saved under the Wilson administration.

Although partisanship is not desirable in city politics, we might as well have it in reality as under various disguises. It has some advantages, but it is doubtful whether they would outweigh the disadvantages of deadlocks and continual conflicts over the offices.

"I thought you were ill yesterday, Mr. Jones," said the boss when Jones arrived next morning. "Yes, sir," "You didn't look very ill when I saw you at the races in the afternoon." "Didn't I, sir?" inquired Jones, not the least disconcerted. "You should have seen me at the finish of the third race."

Proud of Her

Mrs. Brown consented to sing a solo at church one Sunday morning. As a rule she did not take her small son Bobby, but upon learning that she was to sing, he begged so hard to go that she finally decided to take him. He agreed to sit quietly with daddy and not make any noise. Now Bobby thinks no one can sing like his mother, and all the while she was singing that morning he sat in rapt silence. As the last words of the song died away in the stillness of the church, and she was about to return to her seat in the choir loft, when she heard the chanting of a hymn, in a low voice, and the voice of Bobby, in a tone that could be heard throughout the church, exclaiming, "That was fine, mamma!"—Los Angeles Times.

Vincent was a lively little lad. Perhaps he was his exceeding liveliness that had something to do with his great dullness where lessons were concerned. Happily he was so lively that he was quite incapable of knowing when he was in disgrace. Knowing Vincent's father resolved to ask him a few questions the other evening. Calling his small son to him, he asked, "Well, are you planning your teacher at school these days?" "O, yes," replied the lad. "Teacher said he would give me a soldier if I go on as I am going on at present." "A soldier? You mean a box of soldiers, I suppose?" "I suppose that's what teacher meant," answered Vincent. "But he only said one, though I forget his name." "Whose name?" asked the puzzled parent. "The soldier's. Let me see—O, I remember now! It was Corporal Punishment!"—Chicago News.

Echo

How sweet the answer Echo makes
To music at night.
When, roused by lute or horn, she wakes,
And far away, o'er lawns and lakes,

Of horn or lute, or soft guitar,
The songs repeat.

And only that,
The sigh that's breathed for one to hear,
Is by that one, that only dear,

MAN ABOUT TOWN

Only one song in a thousand makes a hit and brings big profits to the publishers and writers, says E. C. Mills. He's chairman of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers. Many will be surprised that so few songs go over big. And yet the situation is no different than in other lines of work. For every one who succeeds, a thousand or more fail outright or at best never reach more than very mild success. Success is the exception, failure the rule. More profitable to study failures and try to figure why they failed, than to analyze the careers of the rich and famous. What not to do is quite as important as what to do. Fifteen years ago it was not unusual for a popular song to sell three million copies. Now it's a rare composition of sheet music that reaches a third that much. E. C. Mills blames this on the decline of piano and violin playing. He says that the piano and violin 50-cent record on the phonograph in turn in the radio than in practice for years and probably get nowhere. Man used to have to create his own music. Now it's cut-and-dried and served to him like nearly everything else.

The evening classes in practical arts being conducted by the various schools are being well attended this year, and in every school large registrations have been received. Although the number of pupils dwindles during the course of study, a good number remain and it is with this number that the teachers can work to advantage. The entire school year is divided into periods during which time a limited number of lessons are taught. Cooking, millinery and dressmaking are the main attractions at the schools, although home nursing and embroidery are also offered. These classes afford the working girl and the busy mother an opportunity to brush up along the lines taught, leaving plenty of time during the day for household and other duties, as the courses entail no home work.

GETS BIG RECEPTION IN NORTH CHELMSFORD

North Chelmsford turned out 600 strong early last evening to hear United States Senator David I. Walsh speak at the rally staged in Vinal square in his behalf. Red lights, a bunting decorated speakers' stand, and cheering carrying the ballyhoo signs gave the favor of old times to the rally and the fuller senator was greeted with the same enthusiasm and welcome that greeted his appearance elsewhere in the course of the day.

John E. Harrington, chairman of the democratic town committee, introduced Sen. Walsh with a few brief sentences. "His record has been clean and honorable," he said, "and we are now called upon to show our appreciation of his honest and faithful service by returning him to the office he has filled so admirably."

"There are so many issues in this campaign," said Sen. Walsh in opening, "that one hardly knows what would be most appropriate to suit this locality and the limited time which I have here. I have been your lieutenant-governor and your governor, you honored me again in 1917 by sending me as a delegate to the congressional caucus. In 1923 you sent me to the senate. Now after five years I've come back to you to ask you to vote upon my record there—scrutinize it carefully if you wish, and determine for yourself if it is of a character worthy to warrant your further aid."

"It was long ago, early in my political career, that I learned in my public life must choose one of two courses—to serve the dollar or to serve the people. The financial interests of this country have been organized and they daily make themselves known and heard. I have turned to them a deaf ear and ever tried my utmost to champion the cause which would help to lighten your burdens. I myself serving from the common people. My education was gained from the penitents and the dollars saved by my parents working in the little town of Clinton. So it is natural that your cause should be my cause. In my six years in the senate I have worked hard with your cause in mind at all times. I cannot claim perfection. But I can claim that I have given conscientious service without ever being guilty of a betrayal. I ask your inspection and your criticism of my public record. If it does not meet your approval I do not ask your vote."

"If my record does meet with your approval, I have confidence that it will, I want you to send me back to Washington. I want to watch those pitiful, I want to watch those crooks whom I have been after for these several years. The only cry you hear raised against me is not upon my record but because my opponent has sent forth to you as 'Coolidge's friend.' I would rather be the friend of the common people of Massachusetts than the friend of the president of the United States. I want to be able to oppose the president when I feel that his views do not coincide with my interpretations of the views of the voters of this commonwealth. I want to oppose him when he votes laws meaning so much to our veterans and to our letter carriers and when he approves discriminatory laws favorable to the great financial interests. If you want to send some one who will serve the dollars rather than the people you'll have to send someone else rather than me."

"I am asking you to go to the polls Nov. 4 and forget the party label. Don't vote a ticket because your grandfather did or your uncle did, but look over the past performances of the candidates before you and then pick and vote for the man who is saving the people and not the dollars."

He assailed Secretary Mellon of the treasury department and his tax reduction effort so favorable to multi-millionaires and big businesses and so costly to individuals and to small corporations and competitive business. He scored the Fordney-McCumber tariff law, stating that while the basic idea of a tariff is correct in principle it has been used by the republican par-

I've stayed with the people, I have protected them against greed, avarice, profiteering and exploitation and greed. It is a case of the interests against humanity. I know you'll send me back there. I look with confidence to Nov. 4 when you will go to the polls and settle with your mark on the ballot whether you will reward a faithful stewardship or surrender to and cry for quarter from those who exploit you to the bitter end."

AMUSEMENT NOTES

A. F. KEITH'S THEATRE

One of the best touring orchestral bands in the country is Ferdinand's Havana Orchestra, which appears at the Lowell B. F. Keith theatre this week in headline position on a commonly satisfactory program. Local theatregoers are somewhat familiar with the orchestra, having heard it only last year during a long circuit engagement. This summer it played the entire season at Pine Island park, Manchester, N. H. It is a splendid organization of musicians and the program presented is calculated to please any audience. Excellent interpretation is seen in the playing of certain selections from the opera "Pinafore" while in "Carmen," the action of the bull ring is vivid and realistic.

"Working for the Railroad" is the act of Glenn and Jenkins, black-face comedians, specializing in songs and novel dance steps. Much of their stuff is brand new this season and it is an act that cannot fail to register a most favorable impression.

Comedy, there is nothing else but.

A Stubborn Cough Loosens Right Up

This home-made remedy is a wonder for quick results. Easily and cheaply made.

Here is a home-made syrup which millions of people have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up stubborn coughs. It is cheap and simple, but very prompt in action. Under its healing, soothing influence, chest soreness goes, phlegm loosens, breathing becomes easier, tickling in throat stops and you get a good night's restful sleep. The usual throat and chest colds are conquered by it in 24 hours or less. Nothing better for bronchitis, hoarseness, croup, throat tickle, bronchial asthma or winter coughs.

To make this splendid cough syrup, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup and shake thoroughly. If you prefer, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, you get a full pint of family supply of much better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for three times the money. Keeps perfectly and children love its pleasant taste.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, known the world over for its prompt healing effect upon the membranes.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction. Money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

CORN

Lift Off—No Pain!

Doesn't hurt one bit! Drop a little "Freezone" on an aching corn. Instantly that corn stops hurting, then shortly you lift it right off with fingers.

Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of "Freezone" for a few cents; sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes and the foot callouses, without soreness or irritation.—Adv.

Beauty

35c "Dandierine" does Wonders for Any Girl's Hair

Girls! Try this! When combing and dressing your hair, just moisten your hair-brush with a little "Dandierine" and brush it through your hair. The effect is startling! You can do your hair up immediately and it will appear twice as thick and heavy—a mass of gleamy hair, sparkling with life and possessing that incomparable softness, freshness and luxuriance.

While beautifying the hair "Dandierine" is also toning and stimulating each single hair to grow thick, long and strong—its stony falling out and dandruff disappears. Get a bottle of "Dandierine" at any drug or toilet counter and just see how healthy and youthful your hair appears after this delightful, refreshing dressing.—Adv.

In the offering of Lewis and Norton, touring from "Cost to Cost." The dialogue is rapid and sustained and the pair jump from one laugh to another without missing a smile along the way.

Judson Cole is a mystifying magician and no mistake, and he injects just enough comedy to give his act a new twist that is pleasing. His model of the hand of an ancient Egyptian fortune teller makes many interesting situations.

The other two acts are Senna and Weber, dancers, and Carl and Valiska Winters, in a novel musical sketch with many odd features.

The feature, dancing pictures, this week is "The King of Wild Horses," a strong and thrilling drama of a fight for supremacy between two beautiful, untamed stallions. The weekly news film has pictures of the world series.

STRAND THEATRE

"Bread," an inspiring story from the facile pen of Charles G. Norris, is being told in picture form at the Strand now. It features no less a personage than the bright little star, Mae Busch, who plays her part in a realistic manner and gains many new friends in so doing. The story is a honest, fearless recital of events not commonly recorded. Those who have seen it on the screen acclaim it more entertaining than the book itself. Comedy, drama, and melodrama are interspersed throughout. Modern problems are unraveled and it is safe to say that no film has come so near to the life of the nation in picture form as "Bread."

Supporting Miss Busch in the play are Robert Frazer, Pat O'Malley, Wanda Lewis and others, of equal repute.

The second feature on the current bill is "The Reckless Age," a vivid dramatization of the mad, joyous whirl of society children. Reginald Denny carries the leading role, an expert fashion and is seen in various thrilling scenes. He kicked a phony ear into a kidnapping taxi, a millionaire sportsman stole a diamond necklace out of his pocket and stopped a wedding, and he cleaned up a newspaper office with his fists.

The story is an adaptation from the Saturday Evening Post feature, "Love Insurance." Mr. Denny plays the part of an insurance broker, whose task is to look after the romance of a young woman, who has taken out a policy against failure to marry an eligible bachelor. He falls in love himself and complicates the situation. The hero extricates himself from the dilemma, however, and a lively finish is in order. The play has the capable assistance of Ruth Sawyer, William Wustia and Haden Storey.

A weekly news reel and a laugh-provoking comedy complete an interesting program.

LOEW'S RIALTO

Both pictures at the Rialto the first half of the week are so good that it is a mighty difficult task to pick the best of the two. Some might say that "The Forgotten Wife" with Madge Bellamy should be the feature, while others might state that Buck Jones in "Cupid's Fireman" is the better of the two. In fact, they are both excellent and both are as good as each other.

"The Forgotten Wife," a Palmer photoplay, offers one of the biggest entertainment values the screen has ever given. In addition to mere entertainment—the sort that will transport tired business men away from care in spite of themselves—it contains pathos as well as laughter and heart-throbs as well as thrilling, amusing and fast-moving adventure. And it has all the virility and novelty one has come to expect in the Palmer productions, having been written, photographed by the screen by a trained, photo-playwright, Will Lambert. Imagine this for a novelty of plot and situation! A war hero who has lost his memory obtains, with his wife, a position as a servant in the household of which he used to be master. Fancy the complications between the wife and the household, after he had been recognized, and yet denies his identity! That's merely one of the kicks in this picture.

A powerful cast headed by such artists as Madge Bellamy, Warner Baxter, Claude Wayne, H. C. Brown and Tom Guiso interpret the roles of Mr. Lambert's story.

"Cupid's Fireman," which is the added feature, was called "Andy McGee's Chorus" when it came from the pen of Richard Harding Davis. The film has lost none of the original charm of the story but has added to it a number of thrills. Charles Jones, the husky and popular ex-cowboy of the Fox lot, felt right at home in the active role of the fireman and made the most of it every minute. Marian Nixon, the dainty, diminutive leading lady, played the chorus girl with equal enthusiasm.

There's much of humor and much of pathos running through the story. Andy first found his actress sweetheart when he was standing fire watch at the theatre where she was playing. He learned to love her only to discover that she was already married—and to a scoundrel. The way was dramatically cleared for them when the apartment house in which she lived was burned and he saved her; but failed to save her drunken husband, who perished in the flames. MERRIMACK SQUARE

Scotac, Pa.—"I never felt like working, and when I would try to do any work standing on my feet, I would just drag around all day long. At times I would have terrible pains and would be in bed three or four days. I was in this condition about a year when I saw Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised in the papers. I had heard different women say it was good for women's troubles, and my aunt thought it would help me as it had helped her. So I took the Vegetable Compound and it brought things right, and I was in good shape before I became a mother again. I believe it helps at birth, too, as with both my other babies I suffered a great deal more than with this one. I thank you a thousand times for the good your medicine has done me."

whose eight feet nine-and-a-quarter inches of stature dwarfs Lloyd's ordinary height and makes him appear but a child when the two are shown together. Asen, as well as being a giant, is also a great comedian and pairs well with Lloyd in keeping the moving picture audience laughing from the first flash on the screen until "Bills" is thrown on the silver sheet.

The scene of "Why Worry" is a make-believe South American republic where revolutions are every day occurrences and the first thing laughables when they succeed in taking a few steps on the floor is the use of the rifle.

Into this war-torn country comes "Harold van Pelham," (Harold Lloyd) who is seeking a cure for his supposedly illness-stricken body in the beautiful and reported-to-be healthy spot. He thinks he is suffering from heart trouble and takes along a nurse who will be able to send the body home for burial in case Harold is fatally stricken while sojourning under southern skies.

The sick young man and his nurse are met at the boat by a squad of soldiers who are supposedly to escort them to a hotel but in reality take them to prison. Harold is cast into a cell occupied by the wife and informed that he and the giant are to be shot at sunrise as dangerous characters.

Knowing full well that the soldiers of the nation became incensed if cheated of their sunrise shooting spree, Harold hesitates to attempt an escape but finally agrees with the giant and nurse that his own safety is

The three escaped prisoners, not content to make good their own getaway, take matters into their own hands and in a series of side-splitting affairs put down the revolution and restore the country-side to peaceful pursuits.

After peace is declared, Harold decided he isn't troubled by a weak heart and becomes engaged to his nurse. Content that the country can get along without him, he and his bride-in-to-be set sail for the United States to enjoy married life without anyone's squabbles to care for but their own.

The second feature picture on the program is "Love's Whirlpool," featuring James Kirkwood, Ella Lee and Madge Bellamy. The bill also includes a news weekly, a comedy, "Missing Man," and "Mrs. Hippo," a special feature.

LOWELL OPERA HOUSE

The Stanley Stage Players thrilled and delighted a large audience last night with "The Last Warning," a thrilling offering that will take rank as one of the premier stock offerings given here in recent years. Mr. Gerald Rowan, the leading man of the company; Miss Lillian Desmond, the leading woman; Miss Jessie Farrell and other members, particularly Franklyn Munger and Wilmer Walter stand out for their work.

To tell much of the story of the play would be to in a measure spoil one's enjoyment of it. It is a novel melodrama with trick effects and many brand new features. There is a play within a play in the third act. Anyone who sees the play will agree with that distinguished critic, Heywood Brown, who in the New York World said it "is really better than 'The Bat.' We suffered and enjoyed as terrifying a thrill as we have ever known in the theatres."

Decidedly novel, humorous, literate and ingenious, the play keeps the audience on edge. There is a murder mystery and a love story and the audience as the New York Times well said in its review of the show is kept laughing and thrilled with mocking fear.

"The Last Warning" bears the distinction of being the only play of its kind that the stage has ever known. Those who are yearning for something absolutely new, and with lots of hilarious laughter into the bargain, will be more than pleased with this week's play.

"You Can Do It Better With Gas"

NO! It Will NOT Burn Out Your Grate

Some people have asked, "Will coke burn out the grates?" Lowell Coke properly used will not burn out your grates any more than coal properly used.

Any fuel, if you run a hot fire, and allow the ashes to fill up the ash pit, will warp or burn out your grates.

Shake your heater sparingly and remove the ashes regularly—that is, do not let the ash pit fill up so there will be absolutely no danger of harm to your grates.

Lowell Coke

is a clean fuel. There is practically no smoke or soot. It burns up completely and leaves very little ash. There is no sifting.

It is lighter than coal—you can burn it in any type of heater, furnace or boiler, with real satisfaction.

WATERBURY WINS CROWN WITHOUT LEFTHANDER

By N.E.A. Service.
WATERBURY, Conn., Oct. 7.—For the first time in 10 years Waterbury won the baseball championship of the Eastern league, and the veteran "Kitty" Bransfield, well known in Pittsburgh as a first-base man, turned the trick.

Waterbury's triumph was a shock to the fans. Bransfield won with an ordinary aggregation of ball players, and one that was not especially lucky in escaping injuries. Bransfield's driving force and engaging personality inspired his men to heroic deeds.

An unusual feat to the Waterbury victory was that it was achieved without the aid of a single left-handed pitcher. It is one of the traditions of baseball that no club ever won a pennant without one left-hander. But Bransfield's five right-handers proved traditions aren't always sacred.

The star of the staff was Andy Rush, a recruit from the Muskogee club in the Southwestern league, who won 22 and lost 10.

HE HEADS NEW HOCKEY TEAM

ART ROSS

This gent might properly be called a money player. Art Ross was one of the players in the old hockey league in Cobalt, Canada, once a prosperous silver camp, and it is figured he was paid at the rate of $30 a minute. He has just been appointed vice president and manager of the Boston professional hockey team, which recently secured a franchise in the National Hockey league.

Having failed in the pinch for four successive years has caused other National league clubs to regard the Pittsburgh Pirates as lacking in courage. Some of the fans in Pittsburgh insist lack of condition is the better bluff.

Certainly the most important football clash between the Alleghenies and Rockies this season will be the game Oct. 18 between Bob Zuppke's "Fighting Illini" and Yost's men from Michigan.

Tradition, of course, invests the Yale-Harvard, Princeton-Harvard, Princeton-Yale gridiron struggles with a colorful glamor, but it is a glamor that is sometimes entirely out of proportion to the importance of these "Big Three" games as gridiron spectacles.

It is doubtful if any game in the country this season will provide more thrills than the meeting between Michigan and Illinois. Certainly none is being more widely press-agented.

In the first place, it is a game between two undefeated teams of 1923, the two teams that tied for the western conference championship. In a measure, although Michigan has lost quite a few stars through graduation and Illinois will take the field without three important cogs in its 1923 machine, it will settle, in the minds of many, an unanswered argument that holds over from last year—which team really was the best in the middle west.

In a way it is a shame that Zuppke and Yost couldn't have come to grips last year to settle once and for all the football supremacy of the Big Ten. For Illinois it is a home-coming game, the choicest morsel of the football season. It will also witness the dedication of the huge Illinois stadium. It will be a colorful clash, and both teams may be expected to "open up" for each eleven has been "pointed" for the struggle.

Michigan, to win, will have to stop Grange, a task that was too much for every Illinois opponent last year. On the other hand, the Yeatsmen, in Rockwell and Captain Stager, own a couple of threats themselves.

What gridiron luminary is destined to flash across the autumn horizon this year to dazzle the football world with his spectacular feats? There were some truly great ones last year—Blott, Mallory, Mann and Grange, to name just a few. Critics seem to be agreed that Grange provided most of the thrills. The fact that he was merely a sophomore, playing his first year of college football, certainly lent color to his achievements, and they were truly notable.

But each year seems to develop its own outstanding stars. When a Brickley fiasco, there is a Mahan; when a Locke graduates, there is a Mallory; when a Harley passes on, there is a Kipke. And so on. It is doubtful if any football player in the country, barring untimely accidents, will be more closely watched this season than Harold Grange. If he can repeat his 1923 record he has a good chance of being the country's biggest sensation two years running.

But Grange will be a marked man. Two or three men, at least, will be playing him in every game. Unless he is possessed of an extremely rare degree of football ability, he more than likely will have to share honors with some other player—now probably in obscurity.

COUPLE FREED FROM JAIL TO BE MARRIED

ST. JOHNSBURY, Vt., Oct. 7.—Edouard St. Aubin of Montreal, charged with attempting to smuggle Chinese into the United States, and his sweetheart, Emerilda Gagne, also of Montreal, charged with attempting to aid St. Aubin in escaping from jail, were given leave of absence from the Caledonia county jail yesterday to be married. It became known today that the wedding ceremony would be held at the church and later was a guest at the wedding.

St. Aubin was arrested several months ago by the border motorcycle corps. A search of his automobile, the officers said, disclosed a quantity of liquor and four Chinese, the latter concealed under the blankets. Miss Gagne was captured when she came to visit St. Aubin in the jail, officers charging that on a previous visit she had left a revolver and a sack saw.

The marriage ceremony was performed at the French Catholic church by Rev. J. H. Bastien. Later St. Aubin was taken to Rutland to await trial in federal court. The bride was held in jail here in default of $500 bail.

STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—Stock prices moved irregularly lower at the opening of today's stock market with the majority of the rails and Industrials fluctuating within a narrow trading area. Drexel Brothers and General Baking each advanced a point and National Biscuit fell back 1. St. Paul issues, which were heavily sold yesterday, opened unchanged.

A few exceptions, early price changes were unimportant and trading was relatively light. Chandler Motors sagged 1/4 to 3 1/2, a new 1924 low, and South Porto Rican Sugar, Simmons company, and Foundation company yielded 1 to 1 1/2. Fargo Express advanced 1/4 to a new top at 46 1/2 and Inland Steel preferred moved up 1/8, duplicating the year's high of 105. American Ice and General Electric advanced 1/8 and 1 point, respectively. Around the end of the first half hour prices showed a tendency to harden with Baldwin, American Can, United States Steel and United States Cast Iron Pipe improving fractionally. Foreign exchanges opened steady and quiet.

A sharp break grain prices furnished some traders with another excuse for an attack on the general list, many popular issues being driven down 1 to 3 points during the morning. Heavy liquidation of sugar shares was believed to reflect speculative disappointment over this year's earnings. Consolidated Gas of Baltimore, which has fluctuated erratically in recent sessions, broke sharply.

Investment funds dropped 2 1/2, and numerous other specialties lost a point or so. Selling of Southern Railway, which dropped 1 point to 63 1/2, was inspired by legal proceedings brought by central preferred stockholders in an attempt to get more favorable dividend action. Nickel Plate broke 3/4 points, Alchison, Delaware and Hudson and Gulf Electric and Northern preferred each fell back 1.

Call money remained at 2 1/2 per cent. Short covering in American Ice pushed it up 3/4 in the afternoon despite further indications of sagging tendencies elsewhere, particularly in investment railroad shares like Illinois Central and Lackawanna. Cluet-Penbody fell two points to 55, a new low for the year while American Water Works and Electric yielded 3/4 and Nash Motors 1/2 points.

The closing was easy. Active buying of American Can caused a rather general hardening of prices in the late trading.

State's Attorney to Ask Jefferson County Grand Jury to Return Joint Murder Indictments Against Lawrence M. Hight and Mrs. Sweeten

MOUNT VERNON, Ill., Oct. 7.—State's Attorney E. G. Thompson announced today that he would ask the Jefferson county grand jury when it convened Monday to return two joint murder indictments against Lawrence M. Hight, former inn clerk, and Mrs. Elsie Sweeten, confessed poison plotters. Hight and Mrs. Sweeten confessed they killed their mates so they could marry.

"Both deaths were due to a conspiracy entered into by Hight and Mrs. Sweeten," said the prosecutor. "The law recognizes no distinction between a man and a woman in such a case. There is no other course for the state to pursue, except to ask for a joint indictment for murder in each killing."

If joint indictments are returned, he said, he expected Attorney J. B. Smith of Benton, retained to represent Mrs. Sweeten, would seek a separate trial for her. The state's attorney said he would insist on a joint trial.

Hight has taken no steps to prepare his defense.

Immigrant Problems Discussed

President Edward Fisher of the chamber of commerce presided and President Dr. G. Forrest Martin of the Lions club and Past President H. Hutchins Parker of the Rotary club were called upon for brief talks prior to the main address. A dinner preceded the business meeting, during which a number of instrumental selections were played by the Lowell Electric Light Corp. orchestra and a group of songs were sung by the L. E. L. club, both organizations having volunteered their services for the occasion.

In opening his address, Mr. Wallis paid high tribute to the Memorial Auditorium saying that no city in this country that he has visited has a building which compares equally with the Auditorium. He then told of his appointment to the position of immigration commissioner and gave a description of Ellis Island before branching into his topic, "The Immigrant."

"There is nothing that so affects the economic conditions of our country as the foreign born and I believe the immigration problem is even greater than that of the League of Nations, yet our greatest problem is not immigration but the immigrant himself. We can treat with immigration by passing laws but we cannot control the immigrant in a like manner. He is human, flesh and blood, even as you and I," he said, "and unless we deal with him as a human being we can make him into an anarchist over night."

"We have wrong stand," he continued, "We are so prejudiced against the immigrant. We all look toward him with the wrong slant yet we all are descended from immigrants. We all have foreign blood in our veins. Immigration dates back to early Biblical days and has continued ever since. For men are always moving to new places hoping to improve the standard of living. And today we must see that the immigrant does not pull down our standard. There is room in this country for the immigrant who comes here with the right idea but we haven't standing room for those who come with preconceived ideas as to government and who, when things do not come his way, turn to socialize. On days and has continued ever since. For men are always moving to new places hoping to improve the standard of living. And today we must see that the immigrant does not pull down our standard. Jack Daw's Adventures. Chapter 19

After the two explorers had scurried up a low hanging tree and perched on branches that seemed in safety, a large, but rather thin elephant worked its way through the trees and plodded right up to where Jack and the captain had been standing. It stood there and just looked around.

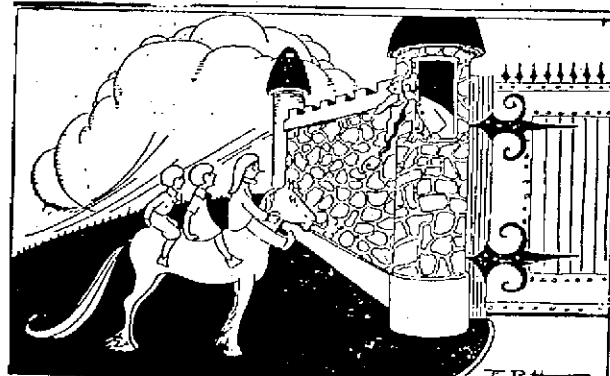

Jack kept as still as he could but, suddenly his foot slipped and, in grabbing for another foothold he made considerable noise among the tree leaves. This attracted the big elephant's attention and the beast quickly glanced right up into the tree where Jack and the captain were.

Slowly, but surely, the old animal started to raise his trunk. He bellowed a bit and then the captain shouted, "I believe he's coming after one of us with his trunk! We had better climb higher! Jack didn't need to be told twice for in an instant he was going up. (Continued.)

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

by Olive Roberts Barton

"WHO'S THERE?" ASKED THE OLD MAN STICKING HIS HEAD OUT OF A WINDOW IN THE STONE WALL BESIDE THE GATE.

The twins held tight to Snoozle on the night-mare's back. Snoozle was the oldest son of the Dream Maker Man and he was searching for Tweekanose who had stolen the sleepy sand from the Sand Man. "Giddyap!" said Snoozle, and the white night-mare went club-a-lub, club-a-lub, club-a-lub along the Milky Way straight toward Mars. And pretty soon they got there and knocked at the gate. "Rat-a-tat-tat! Rat-a-tat-tat!"

"Who's there?" asked an old man with a green beard and blue hair and a nose like a cucumber, full of bumps and ridges and very, very long. He was first cousin to the Moon Man, but nobody would have known it, he being so queer in all. But then all the people of Mars were queer and no two were alike.

"Who's there?" asked the old man sticking his head out of a window in the stone wall beside the gate. "It's said Nancy!" "Did Tweekanose the gnome come here with a sack of sand?"

"No," said the old man. "That's what I said," declared Nancy impatiently. "He's a gnome and he's a rat, too. Did you see him?" "No," said the queer old fellow again, with a shake of his head. "Leastways I didn't see him. But then I've been asleep. On Mars everybody sleeps while he works and all the guards sleep on duty. As I am on duty ninety-one hours every day, I sleep most of the time. If he was a goat climber he could get over the wall and I wouldn't see him. He may be on Mars and then again he may not be on Mars, and if he is on Mars I—"

"My goodness! What a wordy old fellow!" said Nick to Snoozle. "I'll be him." So he said "Immy Jiminy!" just like that the door in the wall

DAVIS IN NEW YORK TOUR RESISTS VOTE OF CENSURE

Continues Attack on the Premier MacDonald of Britain Not to Shrink From a Dissolution

Charges Navy Has Deteriorated in Efficiency Below 5-3 Ratio

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 7.—Driving further north and west into New York state, from Albany to Utica for a noonday address and thence to Syracuse, for an evening meeting, John W. Davis continued today his attacks against the republican party, its record during the Harding and Coolidge administrations and his appeal for support of the voters for the democratic national and state tickets in the November elections. At the same time, Mr. Davis, speaking as the democratic presidential nominee, reiterated his opposition to the administration's foreign policy, charged that the navy had deteriorated in efficiency below the 5-3 ratio fixed by the Washington armament conference and reviewed other subjects touched upon in his address here last night.

Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., came in for a passing reference in Mr. Davis' Albany speech. The republican gubernatorial candidate, Mr. Davis said, would find himself embarrassed if he continued to praise the party he represented for negotiating the naval reduction treaty and defend it for allowing the navy to fall below the 5-3 ratio which the treaty fixed. Mention also was made of Secretaries Hughes and Mellon, one hinting to the address made by the secretary of state in Ohio when Mr. Hughes said the issue of the campaign was whether Mr. Coolidge should be continued in office and the other describing the treasury secretary as a defender of the "abundant trust" cited by Mr. Davis as being one of the outstanding beneficiaries of the Fordney-McCumber tariff act.

HAVANA, Oct. 7.—(By the Associated Press).—The full force of the Zayas government was in motion today to prevent any possible recurrence of disorder in eastern Cuba where seven lives were lost Sunday night and nearly three score persons wounded in a clash at Camaguey arising out of the presidential campaign between former President Menocal and General Gerardo Machado.

It became known today. Damage was slight but the incident has aroused the mining field. No arrests have been made.

RUMMAGE SALE IS BIG SUCCESS

So much interest is being displayed in the rummage sale to be held in aid of the family welfare work being done by the Social Service league by those desiring to purchase the articles being contributed that the committee deemed it necessary this morning to ask the police department to assign one or more policemen to the old Courser-Citizen building during the sale.

Articles have just poured in during the past two or three days and the committee is assured that there are a great many bundles which will be contributed before Thursday noon.

San Lemieux, the very artistic window decorator of the Bon Marche store fixed up the window of the store yesterday in a manner that has attracted a great deal of attention. He placed in the window a fur coat, two evening gowns, some latest millinery, gloves, shoes, etc., giving the sale a tone all its own.

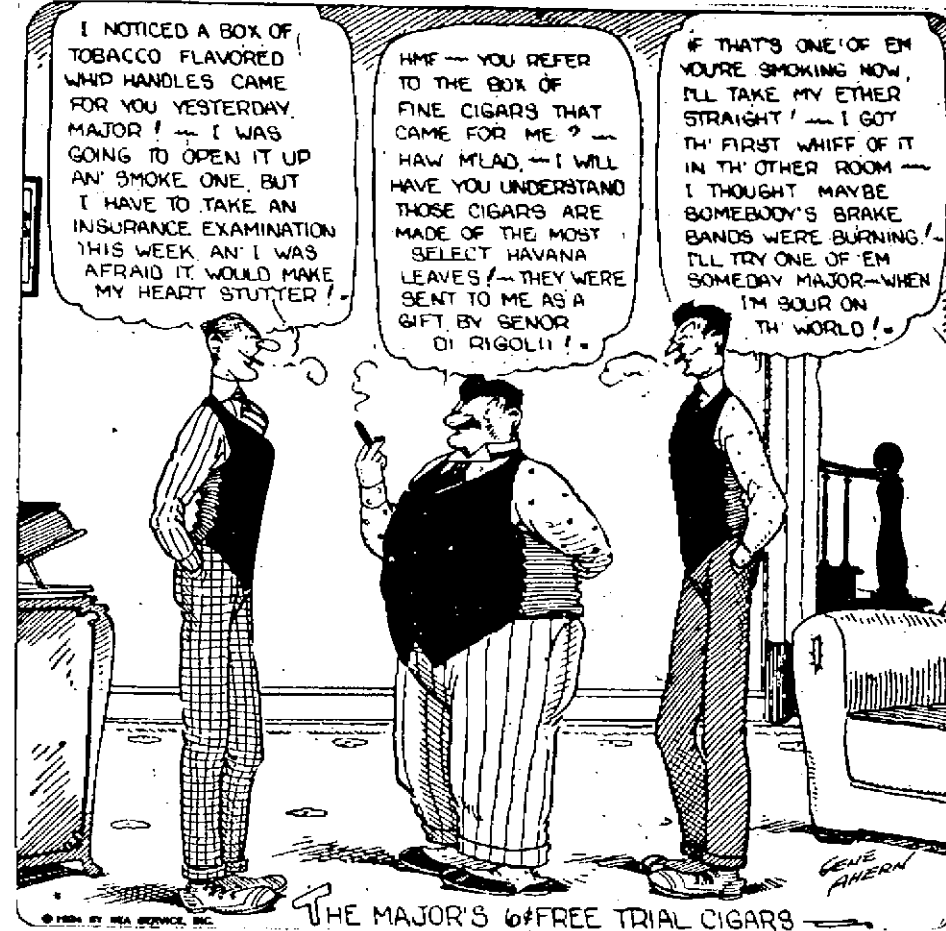

The committee is still desirous of hearing from those who have anything in the line of clothing, house furnishings, or in fact anything salable. If you have any articles packed away in the attic or closets just notify the Social Service league and someone will call for them.

LOCAL LETTER CARRIERS WINTER SEASON OPENS FOOTBALL GAME MONDAY

Large Delegation Thanked Senator Walsh for Devotion to Their Cause

During the public reception to Senator Walsh at the American House yesterday afternoon a delegation of 25 letter carriers waited upon him to express their gratitude for the unwavering devotion of the senator to the cause of the postal employees in their efforts to secure an increase in salary. The senator explained how the measure was finally defeated by republican trickery in the senate based upon a point of order that had never before been raised in 116 years. Under this point the presiding officer held that a vote could not be taken on a veto until it was formally recorded in writing on the clerk's books. The recording of the message would require about fifteen minutes but it was held back for hours in spite of the fact that he raised several points of order to inquire whether the clerk was engaged in the work, whether he would complete the job in time for a vote and finally, near the close of the session, he interrupted the proceedings to ask if the clerk had dropped dead. Needless to say, the republicans were determined that it should not be brought to a vote as many of the senators did not wish to go on record either as voting to sustain the veto or to override it. The veto is on the table and the senator assured the delegation that it would come up for action immediately after the opening of the short session in December. The spokesman of the delegation in behalf of the Lowell carriers thanked the senator very cordially for what he had done in the senate and on the public platform in behalf of the underpaid employees of the postal department. Many of the clerks were on hand to greet the senator after the meeting last night.

Middlesex Women's Club Holds Reception For Incoming Officers

Mrs. Charles H. Hobson, President, Outlines Activities and Program for Year

The opening meeting of the fall-winter season of the Middlesex Women's club was held yesterday afternoon in Colonial hall with an unusually large number of members present.

Under the direction of Mrs. E. J. Gilmore, a committee promptly arranged the hall with autumnal flowers interspersed with marginals and asparagus greens. The receiving corner was attractively arranged with palms, greenery and cut flowers, while the hostesses' table had a center of fall flowers, and orange candles.

Mrs. Charles H. Hobson, president of the organization, welcomed the members, old and new, and stated that it was the aim of the club, through its program committee, to give an extensive program, offering literary and cultural enjoyment to the members. Mrs. Hobson said in part:

"During our last season we achieved many of our ideals. In our work as an organization we have been convinced that we are not merely a band of women but an organization which is working to benefit its members and to establish the highest standards of citizenship in our city, our state and our country. It is our aim this year to radiate the spirit of cordiality. An organization of women is the highest achievement of modern life and it is through the work of our club that we can establish mutual responsibility and community interest. Solidarity and co-operation is our motto this year and in living up to this motto we will become mightier in our work. Women's clubs are avenues of education by which the life of the city, the state and the country are nourished because their existence has become of vital importance to the members of the clubs."

Mrs. Florence Wright, secretary of the State Federation of Women's Clubs, read a report of the convention held at Swampscott and dwelt interestingly on the work accomplished by the federation clubs at the annual meeting.

Following the business session a reception was tendered the incoming officers. In the receiving line were Mrs. Charles Hobson, president; Mrs. Marion Hill, Mrs. Charles Cooke and Mrs. Walter Chase, council members; Mrs. Charles French and Mrs. E. J. Gilmore, committee chairmen.

Food was served, Mrs. Freeman Hill and Mrs. Albert French being the hostesses. Assisting Mrs. Gilmore on the hospitality committee were Mrs. M. A. Rawlinson, Mrs. Robert F. Madden, Mrs. Walter Beharrell, Mrs. Edmund Talbot, Mrs. Eugene D. Blanchard, Mrs. Charles Churchill, Mrs. Gary MacIntyre, Mrs. P. F. Munn, Miss Mary Lamson, Mrs. Edward Lamson and Mrs. Herbert Horne.

Preceding the business session and during the reception, classical orchestral numbers were given by the Amphion trio.

Chicago Mayor and Famous Lawyer Amaze 1500 Democratic Leaders by Engaging in Unheralded Debate—Darrow Says Prohibition Cannot Be Enforced

CHICAGO, Oct. 7.—William E. Dever, mayor of Chicago and Clarence S. Darrow, famous trial lawyer, amazed 1500 county and state democratic leaders here last night when they engaged in an unheralded debate over the 18th amendment. The occasion was a banquet tendered Anton Gernbach, president of the Cook county board, just returned from a trip abroad.

Mr. Darrow, whose most recent step into the spotlight was through his defense of Richard Loeb and Nathan P. Leopold, Jr., for the kidnapping murder of Bobbie Franks, asserted that while the eighteenth amendment never would be repealed, "it will do because people of courage and independence will stand against it" and because it "cannot be enforced."

His declaration that "all the presidents, mayors and public officials in the country can't enforce it" came after Mayor Dever had asserted that he had no apologies to make for his campaigns against liquor law violations, and was willing to "sacrifice my party and myself if I can attain for the community what I am aiming at."

His aim, he said, was to deliver Chicago from foreign bootleggers and poisonous liquors and "to determine whether the streets were going to be safe for the people or controlled by a handful of New York corks, who were making millions of dollars by enforcing the 18th amendment was passed, he continued, "I was never known to be drier than I ought to be."

The mayor said he believed in enforcing the laws as they were on the books. "If you are not fond of the laws, tell your trouble to the congressmen and ask them to make some revision," he said.

Mayor Dever has closed approximately 2000 saloons since he assumed office.

LOWELL DISTRICT COURT BOY FELL FROM WINDOW

Edward Cote Fined $50 For Violation of Motor Law—Other Cases

Edward Cote of 657 Middlesex street, was fined $50 in district court this morning for operating an automobile after his license had been revoked.

He was arrested last night by Officers Clyde Aldrich and William Keegan, who recognized him in Appleton street as the man whose license had been taken from him about a year ago for an infraction of the motor vehicle laws. He attempted to make a getaway when he knew the officers were after him last night, but he was caught after parking his machine and darning it in an effort to escape on foot.

Robert Dune, an employee of the state infirmary in Tewksbury, was found guilty of operating an automobile without license or registration. The registration charge was filed, while a fine of $10 was imposed for his failure to have a license. Patrolman Owen Conway arrested him last night when he became suspicious of a substitute number plates on the car Dune was driving.

A third motor law violator, Nicholas Pappas, was found guilty of operating a machine without two number plates attached, and driving without a registration. He was fined $10 on each count.

The purpose of the safety zones is to keep the school exits clear so that if the buildings must be cleared quickly, children leaving the buildings will not be blocked by parked machines.

SUNGKIANG FALLS, CHEKIANG
TROOPS ARE IN RETREAT

Believed That Chekiang Defenders of Shanghai Will Be Forced to Withdraw From Hwangtu-Liuno Front
—Aircraft Over Shanhaikwan

SHANGHAI, Oct. 7. (By the Associated Press.)—Capture of Sungkiang, a city 28 miles by rail southwest of here, by the combined armies of Fukien, Kiangsu and Anh Wei provinces were threatened late tonight.

Unconfirmed dispatches from Fukien sources said the city already had fallen. The Kiangsu forces, by traveling down the Whangpoo river, pushed through the Chekiang defenses, at most encircling the walls of Sungkiang.

Late tonight the Chekiang fighters were reported on the defense, trying to keep the invaders from cutting the railway line between Sungkiang and Shanghai.

SHANGHAI, Oct. 7. (By the Associated Press.)—Sungkiang, 22 miles southwest of this city, has been captured by Gen. Sun Shung-fun, military governor of Fukien, and the Chekiang troops are retreating on Singchiang, nine miles from Shanghai, according to Fukien advices. It is believed this may compel the Chekiang defenders of Shanghai to withdraw from the Hwangtu-Liuno front.

The Kiangsu men are said to have fired on Shanghai—that is the gates through which travelers between that city and Sungkiang—travel to make impossible the escape from the main Sungkiang station, five miles away, of several Chekiang railway trains.

Lions and Commerce Chamber Hear Talk

"We haven't standing room in this country for the immigrant who comes to this land with preconceived ideas as to government and who upon his arrival here mounts the lecture platform and preaches disrespect for organized authority and the overthrow of the government, yet until a new immigration law is passed which allows the inspection and selection of immigrants over to the other side of the ocean, we cannot keep these trouble-

makers out," said Hon. Frederick A. Wallis at the joint luncheon of the chamber of commerce, Rotary club and Lions club in liberty hall this noon. Mr. Wallis is a present commissioner of correction in New York city and was formerly deputy police commissioner of the same city and commissioner of immigration at Ellis island under the Wilson administration. Victory For Senators Today
Places Teams on Even Terms
in the World Series

P.O. GROUND, NEW YORK, Oct. 7. (By the Associated Press.)—Fair weather greeted the New York Giants and the Washington Senators for the fourth game of the series here today. The promise of a bigger crowd than yesterday, when 47,888 attended, was evident when the field opened at 10 o'clock.

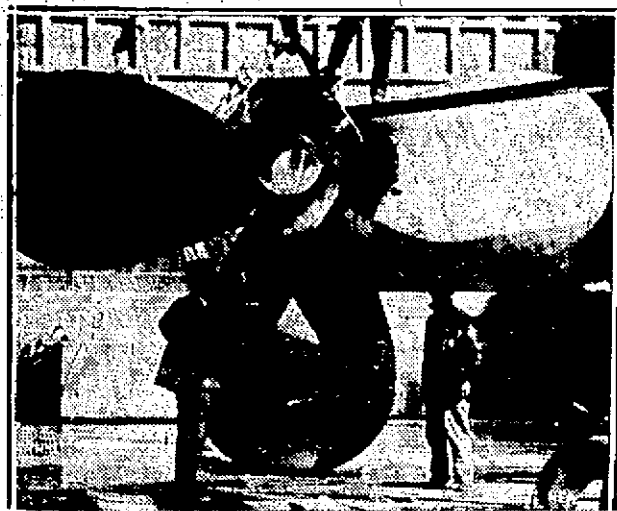

Speculation was rampant as to whom Manager Harris would send to the mound today in an endeavor to even up the series with the Giants and make another game in Washington a sure thing. Harris indicated that George Mogridge would be the Washington selection, but it is known that Mogridge has a sore arm and may not be used.

It is almost certain that John McGraw will start Virgil Barnes today as most of his array of relief talent was used yesterday.

The series now stands two games to one for the Giants. They will be in a second shift to win the honors, while the Senators must win three more if the Giants win the next two games here the series will be over without a second shift to Washington.

If the Giants win today it is a safe bet that Walter Johnson will be in the lineup in tomorrow's game, although Manager Harris would like to save him for that game in Washington if possible.

night's talk and his speech at noon from the city hall steps the senator also spoke at North Billerica and North Chelmsford in the late afternoon and at C.M.A.C. hall in the early evening. He held a reception at the American House from 2 to 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Other speakers at last night's meeting were John E. Swift, candidate for attorney general and Humphrey O'Sullivan, candidate for congress. The meeting was originally scheduled to be held in Liberty hall but the crowd was so great the hall proved too small and the main hall was pressed into service.

Mr. Swift, the nominee for attorney general, was the opening speaker of the rally last night. He attacked the insurance interests of the state, quoting freely from now famous recent letter of Motor Vehicle Registrar Frank A. Goodwin, himself a republican, and expounding as well the over-capitalization of Massachusetts textile industries. He stressed the necessity of electing the national ticket, urging that the nation needs someone else other than a sphinx in the White House.

He praised Hon. David I. Walsh for his record made at Washington, stating that "Sen. Walsh on his record deserves the vote of every man and woman in Massachusetts. Any one with a spark of the American spirit of fair play and justice will reward him. Industrious, ever ready to answer or take a stand on any question he is so rubber stamp. Send him back to Washington with a plurality of 100,000, let the nation point to him and say 'There stands Walsh of Massachusetts, his state has said Well Done, Good and Faithful Servant.'" His references to the senator met with prolonged applause.

Mr. Swift ended his speech with an emphatic declaration that there is room for the Ku Klux Klan in Massachusetts and a strong appeal for the endorsement of the entire democratic ticket.

Candidate for Congress

Humphrey O'Sullivan, candidate for congress from this district, was the next speaker called. Mr. O'Sullivan opened with an endorsement for John W. Davis, "the pride of the American bar," referred feelingly to the candidacy of the preceding speaker and briefly outlaid the cause of Sen. David I. Walsh.

"If there is any man in America I owe an obligation to it is the candidate for re-election as United States senator," said Mr. O'Sullivan, telling of how Sen. Walsh when a candidate for lieutenant governor twelve years ago spent much of his time in furthering Mr. O'Sullivan's fight for election to congress from this district.

It was at this juncture that Senator Walsh, escorted by former Mayors Dennis J. Murray and James B. Casey took his place upon the platform. The house rose at one point to welcome him and he was given a great demonstration of the popularity which is his and the esteem in which he is held here.

Sen. Walsh had just arrived from the C.M.A.C. hall where he addressed a large rally presided over by Edgar Lambert.

Mr. O'Sullivan, continuing with his speech, praised James M. Curley, mayor of Boston and candidate for gov-producer, and of course that is the only way they can solve the problem of making the farmer in the west get more for his dollar than the mechanic in the east.

"Now, then, if the farmer in the northwest has a problem what becomes of the working masses in the east? What becomes of the working masses in Lowell? What becomes of the farmers of this district and why is it that their dollar isn't given any consideration in this purchasing power? Well, the solution of that question is that you have no representative in congress to look after the interests of labor in Lowell and no one to look after the interests of the farmers in this district.

"Every operative and every farmer in New England should both the republican party and let it be known to the country that the textile business is slipping, that under the most favored tariff conditions they are unable to keep their plants running or pay normal wages to their employees. Let the farmer of New England tell the country that he also wants a dollar that will buy more, that it is unfair to ask him to buy his seeds and fertilizers and other farm necessities at retail and sell his products at wholesale.

"Someone should see to it that the farmers around here should be provided with a system of co-operative marketing, and if our present representative in congress isn't enough interested in the labor conditions and the farm conditions of this district someone should be found who would study the situation and find the solution.

"When business goes bad with the mills the first thing thought of is cut the wages. Why not give the operative a look-in at what constitutes the over-head charges in these establishments? Why not give the operatives or their representatives a chance to look at the books and introduce the help of an efficiency expert, and see if there are not some items in the over-head charges that are out of all proportion to the service rendered. If we are to have confidence in big business and contentment, a square deal and justice to the employee is necessary. I will take up other phases of this industrial situation as my campaign progresses."

Senator Walsh Introduced

In introducing Senator Walsh, Mr. Markham was brief and to the point. The audience rose to greet the senator and once the cheers had subsided he launched into a vigorous speech, urging support of the national and state tickets and then referring at length to his record as a member of the United States senate.

In opening I would first say a few words of appreciation of the efforts of the men who organized here to advance my candidacy," said Senator Walsh in starting. "Proud indeed am I that my record of achievement prompted them to voluntarily band themselves together to support me. I am pleased to come here, and speak under their auspices. I have been 12 years now in public life. Long and trying years they have been. I have grown old in your service. The gray hairs are beginning to come. I have come back to you today with a greater confidence than ever in the spirit of appreciation of the people of Massachusetts and more than ever are my feelings mingled with gratitude to you and pride in you.

"Your lieutenant, governor, your governor, your senator! (Applause) Not a living man in Massachusetts other than myself that you have bestowed these honors upon—not even my distinguished senior colleague. Neither he nor my predecessor had the distinction and the honor which was mine—that of serving as governor of the old Bay State.

"In the past I always came with a short record to place before you. Now after five years in the senate I am here again, pleading for or begging votes from no one, defying my enemies, be they political or personal, to find one act in my long stewardship that can be construed as or savor of betrayal of the trust with which you honored me. I challenge anyone to say that day in and day out my effort has been to bring a little more cheer and sunshine into the lives of those to whom I am indebted for my office.

"I come back to you with unstained hands, champion of the proper people and the proper principles. Because I have fought your battles I know that on Nov. 4 you will fight my battles. I know that you will send me back." (Prolonged applause.)

"Let me at this time make clear my advocacies in the coming election lest there might be some misconception. I am for Davis for president, one of the most brilliant men ever nominated by a political party. We have not had a democratic governor since I left the office in 1916. It is time for another one. I sincerely hope that the able, aggressive, brilliant, capable mayor of Boston is elected to that office. For lieutenant governor, Cummings. For attorney general, Swift—you have just

Enthusiastic Democratic Rally
Last Night

Attacks Coolidge—Says No
Successful Leader Can Be Silent

MANCHESTER, N. H., Oct. 7.—Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York was greeted by an audience of 21,500 last night at the Chateau, while the band played "The Sidewalks of New York," and hundreds cheered, applauded and joined in the singing of the favorite song of the governor of the empire state.

The other speakers of the evening were William J. Mealey, chairman of the democratic city committee; Ex-Mayor Charles C. Hayes, who presided and predicted the re-election of Gov. Fred H. Brown and Congressman Rogers.

Pulling a telegraph blank from his pocket, Gov. Smith said that he had received a message since his arrival from two good friends, Johnny Curran and Tom McCarthy of New York, former Manchester boys, asking him to say a good word for Sheriff O'Dowd of Hillsborough county.

"I used to be a sheriff myself," said Gov. Smith. "If O'Dowd is as good a sheriff as he was a stickler for voting for me in the Madison Square Garden convention, I'll say he's a great sheriff. If he is as persistent in serving summonses as he was in voting for me in New York he must be a big success."

G.O.P. Promised Everything
Coming down to national issues Gov. Smith said that it was all right in 1920 when the republicans "shouted from the house tops the record of the democrats and everything they could think of was charged against a democratic dying president."

"Now the republicans say it's all wrong. Coolidge is the issue. Secretary Hughes made this statement. 'There's no one to be responsible for what's the issue of a platform.' 'You all know that four years ago the republicans promised the democrats that they would give them the wool and the working men cheaper clothing. They promised the Italians that the new president would undo the industrial peace treaty. They promised the Germans that the harness of the Versailles treaty would be mitigated and they promised the Irish that the new president would recognize the Irish republic. My recollection is that the first thing he did to the Irish was to stop them from parading in Boston—in Boston," repeated Gov. Smith, while his audience yelled its delight.

"Do the republicans for a moment think that they can evade the responsibility in the Coolidge scandal? What about the Veterans' Bureau record in Washington?"

"Remember how they used to make fun of Wilson's cabinet. They used to make a target of Josephus Daniels. They don't dare mention him today. Somebody might mention Denby."

"No Leader Can Be Silent"
Speaking of the president, Gov. Smith said that leadership was essential and no successful leader can be silent.

"Washington was not silent," went on the governor and the audience roared with laughter.

"Jefferson wasn't silent. He spoke so Lincoln would hear him. His words have burned their way down through the ages."

"Cleveland wasn't silent. He made John Bull sit up and take notice. Roosevelt wasn't silent. The Lord knows."

"I'm not silent. (More laughter.) You know what would happen to me in New York if I were silent?"

"I give the people of Vermont credit for being thrifty and conserving their resources," said he, "but when they try to palm off a 17½-year-old sap bucket that's going too far. And when they change the ownership of the bucket changed hands, it became the property of another spendthrift, Henry Ford."

Cheers and hilarious laughter greeted this rally.

The governor ended his speech abruptly with an appeal for votes for Davis for president. His audience was prepared for it, and in opening his address Gov. Smith said that during four weeks he would be on the stump night and day, except Sundays, and he must save himself as much as possible.

Will Motor to Boston Today
Gov. Smith announced last evening that he had decided not to play golf at Nahant today as he had originally intended, but would go by motor to Boston direct. There he will be in the hands of Mayor Quinn of Cambridge, the democratic national committee man, George H. Van Name, public service commissioner of New York state, formerly secretary of Gov. Smith, arrived last evening and will accompany the governor on the rest of his New England tour. The governor came here from Albany accompanied only by his messenger.

One of his callers last evening before the Chateau meeting was Speaker William J. Ahearn of the New Hampshire house. Patrick H. Sullivan, one of Manchester's leading democrats, led a delegation of local party men to see Gov. Smith in his hotel suite.

Manchester's democrats said that it was one of the biggest and most enthusiastic political meetings ever held in this city.

EARTHQUAKE ROCKS ERZERUM DISTRICT

LONDON, Oct. 7.—Most of the villages in the Erzerum district of Armenia were shaken by another earthquake, the fourth within six weeks, last Thursday, says a belated Constantinople despatch. The quake, though not as severe as the preceding one, continued at intervals for 14 hours, caused some deaths and destroyed a great number of houses, several railroad stations and bridges which had withstood earlier shocks.

FUNERAL THIS MORNING OF JOHN REGAN

With simple but impressive services, the funeral of John Regan, for over half a century a prominent resident of this city, took place this morning from the home of his son, Attorney William J. Regan, 11 Tyler Park, at 9:30 o'clock and was largely attended by relatives and friends. The cortege headed by an automobile filled with flowers wound its way to St. Margaret's church where at 10 o'clock, a solemn high funeral mass was celebrated by Rev. Thomas O'Day, assisted by Rev. Cornelius J. O'Day, assistant pastor. The Rev. O'Day, Rev. Charles J. Gilligan, the pastor, as sub-deacon. Seated within the sanctuary were Rev. John J. O'Hearn of St. Paul's church, Hamilton. The choir rendered the Gregorian chant, and at the offertory James E. Donnelly rendered "Domine Jesu Christe," and after the elevation Mrs. John H. Farrell sang "O Mariam Passionis." As the casket was borne from the church, Cornelius O'Day sang the "De Profundis" in attendance at the mass were many representative citizens including Mayor John J. Donovan, city solicitor, Patrick J. Reynolds and others representing the Lowell Bar association. There was a profusion of beautiful floral tributes as well as numerous spiritual bouquets. In attendance at the funeral was a delegation representing the Holy Name society of St. Patrick's church which included John J. Sullivan, Patrick Mulligan, Patrick Smith and James O'Sullivan. The ushers at the house of prayer were Messrs. Francis Duffy and William Clark and the bearers were Messrs. Patrick Regan, Patrick J. Clark, Ambrose M. Breakfast—Cantaloupe, ready-to-serve cereal, thin cream, browned hash, tomato sauce, corn bread, butter, honey, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—Southern vegetable stew, tomato corn bread, celery, fig grraham pudding, milk, tea.

Dinner—Breaded veal cutlets, lamb chops for young children, mashed potatoes, scalloped oyster plant, cabbage and apple salad, whole wheat bread, butter, floating island with peaches, milk, coffee.

Veal is not desirable for young children, so lamb chops are suggested. Fresh sliced tomatoes might be served with the hash if convenient. However, canned tomatoes well seasoned with butter, salt, sugar and a dash of pepper may be stewed until thick and smooth in the menu planned.

Children of four years love a celery heart and may be allowed to enjoy one if frequently admonished to "chew it up fine."

SOUTHERN VEGETABLE STEW

One large sweet potato, 1 medium sized onion, 1 large green pepper, 1½ cups shredded string beans, 4 large tomatoes, 6 okra pods, 1½ cups grated corn, 3 cups boiling water, 4 tablespoons bacon fat or butter, 1 tablespoon salt, ½ teaspoon pepper, 2 teaspoons sugar.

Melt butter or bacon fat in soup kettle. Add onion peeled and minced. Remove seeds and fibre from pepper and mince. Add to onion and cook over a low fire for five minutes. Pare sweet potato and cut in small dice. Add to onion and pepper with beans and water and cook half an hour. Add tomatoes, okra pods, cut in slices, salt, pepper and sugar and cook 20 minutes. Add corn and cook 15 minutes. If the stew becomes too dry add more water. Serve in soup plates.

SCALLOPED OYSTER PLANT

Three cups cooked oyster plant, 6 tablespoons butter, ½ cup milk, 2 tablespoons salt, ½ teaspoon pepper, bread crumbs.

Rub the oyster plant through a colander. Add half the butter, milk, salt and pepper. Mix well and put in a buttered baking dish. Melt remaining butter, add coarse crumbs and stir until crumbs are well coated. Sprinkle all crumbs over oyster plant. Bake in top of prepared oyster plant with crumbs and bake 15 minutes in a hot oven. Serve very hot.

GRAHAM FIG PUDDING

Four tablespoons butter, ½ cup molasses, ½ cup sugar, ½ cup sour milk, 1 egg, 1½ cups graham flour, 4 tablespoons bread flour, ½ teaspoon soda, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 cup chopped figs.

Soften butter. Stir in sugar and molasses. Add white flour and milk well. Add egg well beaten. Add graham flour and figs. Mix thoroughly. Dissolve soda in sour milk. Stir into mixture, add salt and turn into a buttered mold. Steam three hours and serve hot with whipped cream or hard sauce. Children under school age should be served with whipped cream. SO this is the very last word on the mattress question:—

There are some just as good mattresses—but you will be hard pressed to find better at any price! As a matter of fact, it's a wide chance of ever being able to find even the just-as-good.

Prove it for yourself—use this good mattress for comparison and check against its known points of superiority:

First the all important filler—layer on layer of carefully garnetted clean, new cotton felt—no substitute materials. Then the special way this filler is built in by hand and reinforced at points of extra strain.

Next the full count of deep generous tufts—put in to stay with a strong double-locked tufting stitch, then the full hand-rolled edge making certain the mattress "box" will never break down.

Finally, the extra measure of care used in handling this good mattress to bring it to you crisp, wholesome and clean.

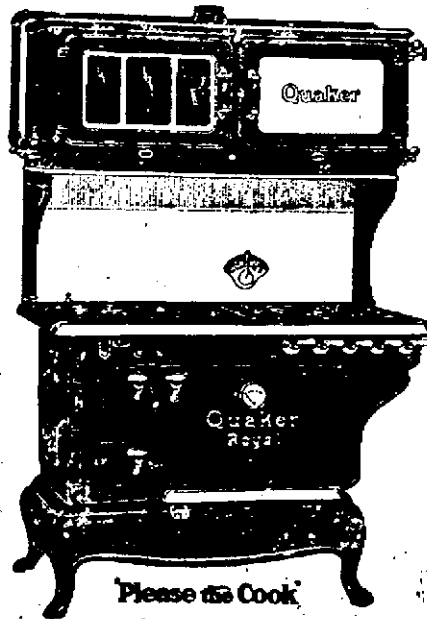

Add to all these points of plus value, the fact that you buy these good mattresses "Inside-Out"—guided and guaranteed by the sample filler cabinet as to the "contents" and before you have half finished your count of Reasons. Why you will surely choose one of these better-made

About 250 men and women voters, the most of them just getting through their day's work at the Talbot mills, heard U. S. Senator David I. Walsh speak yesterday afternoon at North Billerica. He was introduced by Wendell P. Stevens and spoke in the square in front of the postoffice.

"Most of you people, I observe," said Senator Walsh in opening, "are from the factory below here. You know what a boss is and what an employer is. I, too, have a boss. I, too, have an employer. My boss is the people of the commonwealth and I am as answerable to them for my work as you are to your bosses and employers for yours. After representing you in the national senate for five years I have come back to you to give an account of my stewardship, to ask you to scrutinize my work, and to ask you if my record, my votes, my speeches and my accomplishments meet with your approval. I don't want to go back to Washington unless I have faithfully represented your hopes, your thoughts, your aims and your desires."

"No man can vote on 2000 questions, as I have done in the past five years, and please all, not even his own party. I have been criticized for by stand on the League of Nations, and I am going to talk for the moment about that. I was called upon as your representative to make a contract with foreign nations which would bind you, your fortunes and your children for generations."

"I took the position that any phrase or clause at all dubious in meaning should be clarified so as to permit of no misunderstanding. The attitude of the United States, I held, must be made clear and fixed. Some say I should have accepted the treaty without change or reservation. Never! I don't want to be and I know you don't expect me to be—wouldn't permit me to be a rubber-stamp senator. The time to change a contract is before it is signed, not after. I didn't propose that the lives and property of the United States should be available for any people other than our own people to declare us into war and exact a financial burden and a human toll."

No super-government composed of those of other governments shall dictate the policies of this country!"

"As I stand here I notice that I am standing in a square dedicated to one of your townsmen who fell in the service of his country. It brings vividly to me the thought of the Washington scandals shown in the two investigations into the veterans' bureau, both of which I instigated, and upon both of which I served. There were 160,000 soldiers who came back after the great war physically disabled or mentally incapacitated. I found the machinery in Washington chaotic and hampered, yes, bound securely in red tape. Many were unable to get hospitalization or compensation. Many, most of them mentally incapacitated, were out in the 'contract hospitals' where the government was paying $3 a day for their care and as many as 28 men were herded in one room. No staff doctors or nurses. A profit-making institution naturally does not give its inmates the full dollar's worth of care."

"One of my first acts as a member of the senate was to investigate a probe of the veterans' bureau. My revelations astounded the country. I gave a full year to work on the senate committee straightening out that mess. Then came Forbes to take command. In a short time I had to again rise in the senate to champion those poor veterans and we had to investigate the bureau again. Money squandered, misapplied, stolen—the man at the head of the bureau a drunkard, now requiring six months to get an answer to a letter for information about their compensation—reputations of sales of government materials, graft in the creation of hospitals, secret deals with profiteering contractors, indifference towards those wounded boys trying to 'come back.' That is what we found. I know you have an affectionate realization of my work in this and I point to it with pride."

"It took 24 hours to draft those boys, yet in six years we have not a rehabilitation hospital in New England complete and operating. At a high standard of efficiency. It is a shame and a disgrace."

The senator told of the red tape which veterans encountered in getting a hearing or getting the attention which they deserved, of which many were sorely in need of. He told of his efforts for them, crowned with the success in putting over his measure providing that any veteran having tuberculosis or mental troubles developing within three years from date of discharge should be treated without question. This act alone, a bureau official told him, disposed overnight of 15,000 pending claims helplessly bound up with red tape.

"The oil scandal was bad enough; the Daugherty scandal was a black enough episode in itself, but these pale into insignificance at this abuse of the men who were willing to give their all to their country in its hour of need. No word is strong enough to condemn this record of the government. Four great departments of the government smeared with scandal in the last four years—Fall in the department of the interior; Daugherty in the department of justice; Forbes in the veterans' bureau and Denby in the navy department."

"Justice, our most sacred inheritance next to religion, made a mockery. My fellow citizens, men and women gathered here, I ask you if this republic can record its incompetency, dishonesty and maladministration in going to be endorsed. I appeal to you to forget party labels, to think of your country and yourselves, and repudiate this administration. Your day is coming on Nov. 4. If you sanction this record of the republican administration for the last four years, then vote the republican ticket, but if your heart is with your country and with your home, you will turn them down."

"You have been good to me. You have made me your lieutenant-governor, your governor, and your United States senator. It is more perhaps than I deserved. You have given me every gift within your power, and I assure you again and now of my appreciation. Four million voters in this commonwealth and they have ever stood by me because I have stood by them."

"As your governor I modified the workmen's compensation law so that the employer got a greater benefit without the cost being added to the employer. I instituted the free state educational bureau, the department of university extension which has been used by 163,000 persons in ten years. My record as senator is before you and I stand or fall with it. If I have been a good senator I want to go back. I want you to endorse my political philosophy of justice and fairness to all. That policy has given me thousands of republican votes. I want you on Nov. 4 to let the people of the nation know that Massachusetts upholds a man of the rank and file who insists on justice, upon fairness—upon a square deal for all."

"When I first went to the senate, old Senator Gore, the blind senator from Virginia, put his arm around me and said: 'Walsh, you have the six hardest years of your life before you if you would care for your people as you should.' He was right. They have been the six hardest years of my life. I want to go back there and carry on the work which I am doing for you, I want to continue to fight the dollar when it seeks to exploit the common people. Time is running short. I would say a word about coal. There is fight there which I have started and I want to continue. I will win it, and New England will have no more coal famines once we end this present way of doing things. In this connection I wish you would look at the facts as published for me today in The Lowell Sun; read them—they will give you the history of that whole question, its past and its prospects."

"I am completing my term as your ball meeting as much as does the cross of a Rockefeller or a Morgan. I know I'm going back to Washington and I thank you now for the endorsement of the causes I have espoused which I know you will give to me on election day. I ask also you cast your vote for the entire democratic ticket—for Davis for president, for James M. Curley for governor and for the entire democratic state ticket."

heard him, a man with a high conception of public service. For Congress, your fellow townsmen, Humphrey O'Sullivan. There is no branch of the government more important than the legislative. A champion of the people must be there. Honesty alone should prevail in the sanctuary of the people's liberty."

Republican Administration

"I could go on now to tell you about the dreadful scandals, the hypocrisy, the corruption, the incompetency which the republican administration has shown in high places. On every issue there is one final fight, whether the people will be represented by a man aligned with privilege, wealth, and the dollar, and with humanity and human interest. There has never at any time been any doubt as to where I have stood."

"If I had ever any doubt as to where I stood, I had but to turn back by mind to my boyhood days in Clinton, carrying dinner pails to my parents and my neighbors in the mill. It was through the sweat and blood of the members of my own family that I could go on in school and prepare to face the world better equipped than were they. I can remember as if yesterday my days at college, spent with your distinguished ex-mayor and my lifelong friend, Dennis J. Murphy, when year after year I was obliged to ask extensions on the time to pay for my tuition. Would I be worthy of this heritage if I did not fight those preying exploiters so powerful in Washington? I know them all now and I'm going back there; you'll send me back, and I'll fight them!" (Applause.)

"It is their damnable, scheming, jobbing methods, dominating at times even the pulpit, controlling newspapers, even branding men radically who oppose their desires, their grafting, their corruption, their nefarious schemes that we must fight, and please God, I will continue to fight."

Harding back to the beginning of the Harding administration, Senator Walsh pointed out that three great constructive measures were awaiting action when the late president took office, the care of disabled soldiers, the reduction of taxes levied in war-time, and the reduction of the high cost of living.

Speaking of the first, the speaker said: "Was there ever a mission or a vice than that entrusted to this administration? How have they done? So incompetent the work, so negligent the treatment, the Veterans' bureau has been twice investigated and I instigated both investigations and none of the 36 senators served on both investigation committees."

ADD WALSH:

"Top, Gillett, my present opponent, was speaker of the house of representatives at the time yet he never lifted a finger for a joint committee investigation in either instance and the senate had to go it alone. We exposed the graft, the looting, the corruption in both instances and from the second investigation Harding's man Forbes is over today under two separate indictments. I'm proud of my work in championing the poor, dying, diseased boys who fought for us in the World War."

Mellow Tax Schemes

He attacked and exposed the Mellon tax reduction schemes and the Fordney-McCumber tariff as working a hardship on the ordinary person for the benefit of a moneyed and exalted few.

"Your ancestors who rebelled against taxation without representation had no greater grievances than you have with the inequities of this tariff law," he said. "How long will the workers of the east permit this exploitation. Look at how rock-bound republican Minnesota has been in revolt! It is high time for the east to wake up."

"If anyone tells you it is too low a tariff that is responsible for this industrial slackening then call their attention to the fact that Calvin Coolidge by one stroke of the pen can increase all tariffs fifty per cent. If too low a tariff is the reason for this unemployment, these slack times, then no man in the world is to blame as much as is Calvin Coolidge."

"Let us look at another black page on the record of the republican administration—the Teapot Dome. They sold God's gift to the nation, a wartime fuel supply for our fleets. Better they had sold the White House or the capitol. We could build another White House. We could move the capitol but there is nothing we can do to replace that which has been taken from the earth."

The Coolidge Record

"Turn now to the administration record, to the Coolidge record of treatment to the World War veterans, the Civil War veterans and the letter carriers. Coolidge vetoed the soldiers' bonus and he vetoed the Bursum bill. He vetoed the false to the letter carriers and postal clerks and it was only by resort to a contemptible device that it was not passed over his veto."

"The veto came the last day of the session. The point of order was raised that it had not been recorded. This was a mean and contemptible device. In 140 years of custom the reading has always been considered the recording, yet it was held it should be recorded. Suffice to say it never was recorded before the gavel fell. They knew Coolidge's veto would be overridden and they resorted to every trick in the bag to keep this from happening."

"Regardless of your affiliations it is your duty to see that your government is preserved as a democracy," he said in closing. "November 4 is your day. Send into office those who will fight for the millions, not for the millionaires."

"I want to go back to Washington to continue my battles as the champion for your cause. I want to further warrant your confidence. I know the crooks well now and I want to get at them again. Send me back to fight and plead and work and devote myself to the cause of the great common people of America. I thank you."

Following the speech the senator shook hands with several hundred of his auditors who besieged an ante-room off the stage, later departing by auto for his home in Clinton. He speaks tonight at Boston at the big rally at which Gov. "Al" Smith of New York is to be the featured speaker.

Piles

Can't Be Cured From the Outside. External treatments seldom cure Piles.

Nor do surgical operations. The cause is inside—bad circulation. The blood is stagnant, the veins fatty.

To quickly and safely rid yourself of piles you must free the circulation—send a fresh current through stagnant pools. Internal treatment is the one safe method. Ointments and cutting won't do it.

J. S. Leonard, M. D., a specialist, set at work some years ago to find a real, internal remedy for piles. He succeeded. He cured his prescription HEM-ROID, and tried it in 1000 cases before he was satisfied. Now HEM-ROID is sold by druggists everywhere under guarantee. It is a harmless, let, easy to take, and can always be found at Green's Drug Store, which will gladly refund the purchase price to any dissatisfied customer.—Adv.

PROMOTE TOLERATION

UTICA, N. Y., Oct. 7. (By the Associated Press.)—With a view to fostering patriotic ideals and "a spirit of toleration in economics, politics and religion," 50 Protestants, nearly all Masons, and a like number of Catholics, the majority Knights of Columbus, met last night for formal organization of the Hamilton-Jefferson association, announced as a "non-sectarian, non-partisan group."

The charter members, all leading business men of Utica, heard the aims and objects of the organization outlined by leaders in each of the two fraternal bodies, and summed up in the principal address of the evening by Ellis Root, formerly United States secretary of state.

Mr. Root, who became a member of the association only after he had been assured of its non-sectarian character, expressed the belief that by having a membership drawn equally from the Protestant and Catholic faiths, the organization had gone a long way toward ultimate success.

The membership list of the parent chapter of the organization is limited to 100 men. It was explained at the dinner, of which half must represent each religious faith. To maintain the desired balance, new members will be admitted in pairs, one Protestant and one Catholic. At the monthly meetings of the association subjects concerning general public welfare will be discussed and acted upon, according to the purposes outlined at the dinner, and the United States constitution will be held as "an antidote for the evils of the day."

Lincoln, lawyer and florist, who killed his wife, Ida, and her brother, Byron Shoup, and enclosed their heads in a concrete block, was in prospect today in the Kane county circuit court at Geneva, Ill. Eight tentative jurors were accepted yesterday.

Lincoln's sanity must be decided before the trial for the murders.

It was reported yesterday that Texas has embargoed all freight originating in or passing through the quarantined area.

ANNUAL AUTUMN PARTY AND DANCE

The Knights of Columbus and their friends are expected to turn out in large numbers at the annual autumn party and dance to be held Friday evening in the Commodore ballroom. The event will mark the beginning of the indoor social season and a large crowd is expected to attend. The proceeds of the affair will be applied to the K. of C. building fund. TRIAL OF POTTER ON TRIAL FOR PIRACY

Brig. Gen. Richards of Providence, R. I., Testifies at Tacoma, Washington

TACOMA, Wash., Oct. 7.—Brigadier-General J. J. Richards of Providence, R. I., was ready today to resume his testimony at the resumption of the trial of Roland Potter, former sergeant-bugler in the 231st Engineers on a charge of murder, as a result of the shooting of Major Robert Cronkhite at Camp Lewis in October, 1918.

No session of court was held yesterday as the judge was called from the city.

Gen. Richards' previous testimony was that it would have been impossible for Potter to have killed Major Cronkhite, accidentally in the manner set forth in the first of several alleged statements made by Potter.

Potter told us that the shooting occurred when he endeavored to pull back the slide on his gun to get an empty shell, after both he and the major had fired at a tobacco can on a safe post, General Richards declared.

Robert Cronkhite, former army captain, is scheduled to go on trial in the same court Oct. 22 for alleged complicity in Major Cronkhite's death.

WILL HOLD DANCE AT CHELMSFORD CENTRE

Without doubt, one of the liveliest store organizations in the city, is the Employees' Mutual Benefit Association of Fairbairn's Market, Inc. Hardly a month goes by without one or two events of importance for the members of the association. Recently they had a "night-club" trip to the White Mountains and now they are planning for a get-together and dance on next Monday evening, the holiday, at Chelmsford Centre.

Miss Elizabeth Conway, chairman of the general committee, in speaking of the coming affair, Monday night, said that nothing has been left undone to provide for a great affair. The social is for employees of the market only, although they are permitted to invite their friends. Dancing will be enjoyed, many novel features introduced, and a buffet lunch will be served.

COLLEGE EXTENSION CLASSES OPENED

Last night an official of the state department of education was at the high school to register applicants for the various courses offered by the college extension department. He was very much disappointed at the attendance and was unable to form more than a couple of classes although he expects that during the week other classes will be formed. The most popular classes apparently were English composition, literature and economics. It is necessary to have from 30 to 35 students for each class in order to conduct the course successfully. The department cannot pay a teacher to come once a week from Boston to accommodate a less number of students. The attendance last night did not indicate proper appreciation of the splendid opportunities offered by these extension classes.

LOWELL HISTORICAL SOCIETY

The quarterly meeting of the Lowell Historical society will be held tomorrow evening in Memorial hall at which time the officers and committees will submit their reports, applications for membership will be approved and other business transacted. Mr. Alfred P. Sawyer of the American Bar association will speak of the recent meeting held in London at which time 2000 members of the association were the guests of the British bar. His subject will be "A Week in Historic London." Members may invite friends.

OF LIQUOR CARGO

MONTREAL, Oct. 7.—Testimony that he was forced, on threat of death, to act as second mate and give false statements in having the British schooner Lutten entered with the register of shipping at Bermuda, was given today by Jack M. Morris, a Montreal furrier, in the court of King's Bench, where Captain Samuel Ford is on trial for piracy of the schooner's cargo of 4300 cases of liquor.

Morris testified that he and a lawyer named Isaac had shipped as super cargoes on the schooner and that they were kept prisoners on the vessel while its cargo of liquor was being sold to rum smugglers. After the liquor had all been sold, Morris said, the Lutten sailed for Bermuda. Morris declared that he was signed as second mate and Isaac as third assistant.

Norman Adelman of Montreal testified that 3400 cases of liquor were the property of the Sydney Wine and Spirit Co. and that the remaining 1000 cases belonged to a Dr. Thom of Winnipeg.

TO PROVIDE CLOTHING FOR NEEDY CHILDREN

In an effort to raise funds with which clothing will be provided for the needy children of the city, the Children's Aid society will hold an entertainment and dance in the Girls' City club rooms Friday evening, Oct. 24. Elaborate souvenir programs will be distributed to those attending and three grand prizes will be given the holders of the lucky tickets.

The committee in charge of the affair comprises Mrs. Johnnie de la Parra, Mrs. Rourke, Miss Sadie Cohen and other members of the executive committee of the organization.

The work of the society since its organization last March has been extensively carried on throughout the city and many needy children have been clothed and thereby greatly helped along in their struggle for proper existence. About 50 women are engaged in the work of helping the children and a room in the old high school building has been opened for use as headquarters of the society.

Sungkian Falls, Chekiang Troops Are in Retreat

daybreak today and rained bombs on the ancient city, while the surface armies of Gen. Chang Tso-Lin, Manchurian leader, and Peking government troops carried on an intensive battle for possession of the city, which is held by Peking forces.

According to private advices received here, the battle was continuing with added fury at 11 o'clock this morning. The Chang Tso-Lin army and surface forces rained shells inside the great wall, once considered an adequate barrier of defense against Manchurian and Mongolian invaders.

As the bombardment continued the Manchurian troops, attempting to take the city, were unable to withstand the fire returned by the Peking troops and were forced to retreat to new positions.

TOKIO, Oct. 7. (By the Associated Press.)—Peking government troops in north China province are being rushed from Beijing to the vicinity of Jehol in an attempt to prevent advances by the invading Manchurian armies of General Chang Tso-Lin, who is fighting for control of the central government of China, according to a despatch today to the Kokusai News Agency from Mukden, Manchuria.

Dolonor is 150 miles northwest of Jehol, near the Chilian-Manchurian border. The same agency also reported that French concerns had delivered 20 Mukden 20 airplanes and ten motor trucks ordered by General Chang prior to the opening of hostilities with the central Chinese government.

DUEL WITH SABRES

Dr. Lebreton and Deputy Mollinari Wounded in Brief Encounter.

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 7. (By the Associated Press.)—Dr. Thomas Lebreton and Deputy Mollinari were both slightly wounded after a brief encounter in an affair of honor at midnight last night. The duel was fought with sabres.

Deputy Mollinari was challenged by Dr. Lebreton on account of the publication of a newspaper article which the latter in his position as minister of agriculture considered offensive. Dr. Lebreton tendered his resignation as minister to the president in order to fight the duel.

GIFT OF $475,000 FOR HARVARD COLLEGE

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 7.—A gift of $475,000 for the division of chemistry at Harvard University, in the family of the late E. C. Converse of New York was announced today by Bishop William Lawrence of the Episcopal diocese of Massachusetts, chairman of the committee to extend the national service of the university. The gift, the announced said, will be used for the erection of a chemical research laboratory at Harvard as a memorial to Mr. Converse and to carry his name.

"The members of the family who have contributed this gift are Mrs. E. C. Converse, his daughters, Mrs. Benjamin Strong and Madeline Johnston Converse, and his son, E. C. Converse," Bishop Lawrence said. "It is in response to the work we started last spring to extend the service which Harvard should render to the country. We stated that we needed a minimum of $1,000,000 for the Harvard Business school, the division of chemistry and the division of fine arts. At commencement we reported the really extraordinary response to our campaign and the widespread recognition of the national need which we felt we would meet. The Converse gift encourages us to believe that the amount to complete our effort will be forthcoming."

Mr. Converse, one of the group of international financiers who founded the United States Steel corporation, prepared Harvard but was prevented at the last moment from entering. He was general manager and later president of the National Tube Works and was influential in bringing about a consolidation of the various tube works concerns with the United States Steel corporation, of which he was director for many years. He was long president of the Liberty bank of New York. Later he was one of the founders and first president of the Bankers Trust company and was subsequently chairman of the board of directors of that company. He enjoyed a professorship of banking in the Harvard school of business administration. The Converse library at Amherst was a gift from Mr. Converse in memory of his brother, who was an Amherst graduate.

BRAZILIAN REBELS ARE CHECKED BY FEDERALS

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 7.—Fighting between the Sao Paulo forces and the Brazilian rebels, is continuing, according to advices forwarded from Rio Janeiro. Since Sept. 23 the rebels have been fighting for three weeks down the Parana river, but have been checked at the port of San Juan by the federalists who sank a rebel steamer. Another rebel vessel is aground.

INTERESTING TALK ON CALIFORNIA

An entertaining talk on California was given before the Y's Men's club at their semi-monthly meeting last evening in the "Y" hall by Rev. Percy L. Thomas, pastor of the First Congregational church.

The talk followed an excellent dinner which was served under the direction of Mrs. Valentine Wilcott, Mrs. Murdoch McKinnon, Mrs. Thomas Coombs and Mrs. Bertha Branson. The well-known speakers of the Y's Men's club, Coombs and Clara Sutherland. During the dinner group singing was led by Joseph Hollingsworth and a brief talk on insurance was given by Frank Daly.

Rev. Mr. Thomas was introduced by Pres. Hollingsworth. Over 100 beautiful stereoscopic views of the "Sunshine State" were shown and the speaker interestingly described the places shown in the pictures. In conclusion he compared California with New England and said the latter place was more ideal to live in than much-talked-about California and he urged the members of the Y's Men's club to visit New England on every occasion.

OPENING OF THE EVENING SCHOOLS

The opening sessions of the public evening schools were held last evening and in every branch of the work it was reported that the classes were very large. At the evening high school the registration was approximately 50 in excess of last year's opening night registration. The men's vocational school opened about the same number registered as last year, and at the women's vocational classes it was reported that in two departments, cooking and home nursing, a waiting list was formed of those who could not be admitted owing to the limited capacity of the rooms. It is believed the other classes will be filled this evening.

No figures on the registration of the elementary schools could be given but it is believed that a record will be established this year. Registrations will be accepted in all but the high school this evening. The next high school registration session will be held Wednesday at 7 p. m. in the school office.

MEETING OF LEGION POST AND AUXILIARY

A joint meeting of Lowell Post 87, American Legion, and American Legion Auxiliary was held last evening in the veterans' quarters in the Memorial Auditorium and was well attended by members of both organizations.

Commander Colin G. Macdonald presided and sealed at his right, Mrs. Nellie Usher, president of the auxiliary. A routine business meeting of the Legion was held and upon its completion, Mrs. Usher reported on the work accomplished by the auxiliary.

A report on the national Legion convention at St. Paul was given by James P. McCready, Lowell delegate. He said that Lowell post ranks high in the list of posts throughout the country and that it should be proud of its work. He told of the hospitality accorded by residents of St. Paul, stating that for every minute not taken up at meetings some activity was provided by the hospitality committee. James P. Conway, of the prize committee recommended that a shield should be donated for the winner of the annual high school regiment individual drill. Chairman Cornelius Buckley of the visiting committee reported that four members were sick in hospitals. A number of other committees reported and the meeting voted to present Past Commander Joseph A. Molloy, a past commander's badge at the next meeting.

VOTING AS A DUTY

The issue of the hour is the registration of voters so that a full vote may be cast at the election on November 4. It would be a real national disgrace to have it found that not much more than half the people who are eligible to vote, show enough interest to attend to the necessary preliminaries of getting their names on the voting list, and then going to the polls on election day to exercise the proud privilege of assisting in the choice of officials to conduct the government for the ensuing year. These political slackers are numerous in Lowell as in other cities, and throughout the country a great effort is being made to arouse interest in the obligation of all citizens to vote.

It has been remarked by a political speaker that if you go through any city in the country, and pick out the bums and disreputables, you will find that they are all registered. They all vote for their friends and without any thought of whether the results will bring good government or the reverse. As a rule this class does not want good government; they vote in many cases for the least worthy candidates in the running and where a few votes may decide a contest, it is seen that those who fail to vote, assume a serious responsibility. In a great many cases, they are responsible for the election of dishonest and incompetent men. Nevertheless, these same people are among the first to criticize if the government goes wrong, and if the people's money is squandered without showing adequate results.

Various committees are at work here in an effort to promote registration and the election commission has agreed to co-operate to the extent of holding sessions in various ways of the city. These should be attended by all who are eligible for registration in order that they may have the right to exercise the franchise in the coming election which will doubtless be one of the most important in our history.

It is of special importance not only because there is a formidable third party in the field, but because of the number of important issues submitted to the people for decision. Of these there are seven in all and they are such that every citizen should express his or her opinion on each and all of them.

On some, it will be right and proper to vote in the affirmative, but on others it is of the utmost importance that a negative vote be registered. If any unpopular measure be carried and saddled on the people against their will and to their detriment, the slackers who do not vote, who do not go to the polls to guard their liberties, their rights and their pocketbooks, will have to bear a large part if not the entire blame. If, for example, the referendum for a 2-cent tax on every gallon of gasoline sold in the state hereafter be carried by a few hundred votes, then the result can be laid at the door of the political slackers, thousands of whom did not think it worth while to vote on election day.

FALSE REPUBLICAN CLAIMS

Nothing is more amusing in this campaign than the persistent claim by Manager Butler and other republican leaders that the Harding-Coolidge administration has solved the problem of unemployment and that the country is enjoying an era of great industrial prosperity.

We have been wondering whether the people who have been out of work off and on for the last year can be hypnotized into believing this political bunk issued by the republican propagandists. The fifteen out of every hundred farmers who have been forced into bankruptcy during the last year and a half are not in a position to admit that the campaign claim in this respect is based upon facts; neither will wage earners who have been out of work for the greater part of the time nor even those who have been given employment at reduced wages. Nor do the merchants and bankers who have been forced into insolvency or else weathered the gale with great difficulty, believe that Mr. Butler or the republican leaders are telling the truth. There are hundreds of proofs of industrial depression that completely refute Mr. Butler's claim, and while some improvement may be noticed there is still widespread unemployment and still an anxious hope for the return of normal conditions and real prosperity such as were enjoyed under the last democratic administration.

Perhaps no single line of business suffered more than did the textile industry from the general depression. The executives hereabouts cannot be convinced that we are in the midst of a great era of prosperity. Transportation and financial affairs usually indicate whether business prospers.

For the first six months of 1924, the gross earnings of the railroads amounted to $2,866,947,474 as compared with $2,091,934,815 during the same half of 1923, a decrease of $775,012,659. During the same period, net earnings of the roads fell from $651,328,363 to $597,528,129, a decrease of $54,000,234.

During the first six months of 1924, there were 128 bank failures in the country, with liabilities amounting to $153,225,720. During 1923, there were 149 bank failures, with liabilities of $196,790,000, so that there have been four-fifths as many in six months of 1924 as in all of 1923, showing that conditions have been far from prosperous. During three years of the last Wilson administration, 1918, 1919 and 1920, there were only 130 failures, with liabilities of only $72,361,019. These figures prove the falsity of republican claims, but in reality the average citizen needs no proof that industrial depression and not prosperity prevails with results that have caused the people to draw upon what they have saved under the Wilson administration.

SEN. WALSH'S ADDRESS

Senator Walsh's speech at city hall yesterday noon was a rouser. With his characteristic attitude of being on a level with the people, the senator did not stand on the top step as do most other speakers, but descended several steps until he stood almost on a level with his audience. He dealt in a very forcible manner with republican mismanagement and corruption as exposed in the various investigations conducted by congress. Senator Walsh himself was the instigator of two investigations of the Disabled Veterans' bureau which were opposed by republicans in the house. The rascality of Forbes in depriving disabled veterans of the relief for which the people's money was appropriated, was clearly exposed by the senator. He also condemned the president for vetoing the Durum bill, as well as the bonus bill for the service men and his parsimony in also vetoing the bill that would have given the latter carriers a slight increase in wages. He had it from an expert that a letter carrier

Proud of Her
Mrs. Brown consented to sing a solo at church one Sunday morning. As a rule she did not take her small son Bobby, but upon learning that she was to sing, he begged so hard to go that she finally decided to take him. He agreed to sit quietly with daddy and not make any noise. Now, Bobby thinks no one can sing like his mother, and all the while she was singing that morning he sat in rapt silence. As the last words of the song died away in the stillness of the church, and she was about to return to her seat in the choir loft, when she heard the clapping of a small pair of hands, and the voice of Bobby, in a tone that could be heard throughout the church, exclaim: "That was fine, mamma!"—Los Angeles Times.

Vincent was a lively little lad. Perhaps it was his exceeding liveliness that had something to do with his great dullness where lessons were concerned. Happily he was so lively that he was quite incapable of knowing when he was in disgrace. One day Vincent's father resolved to ask him a few questions the other evening. Calling his small son to him, he asked: "Well, are you pleasing your teacher at school these days?" "O, yes," replied the lad. "Teacher said he would give me a soldier if I go on as I am going on at present." "A soldier? You mean a box of soldiers, I suppose?" "I suppose that's what teacher meant," answered Vincent. "But he only said one, though I forgot his name." "Whose name?" asked the puzzled parent. "The soldier's. Let me see—O, I remember now! It was Corporal Punishment!"—Chicago News.

MAN ABOUT TOWN

Only one song in a thousand makes a hit and brings big profits to the publishers and writers, says E. C. Mills. He's chairman of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers. Many will be surprised that so few songs go over big. And yet the situation is no different than in other lines of work. For every one who succeeds, a thousand or more fail outright or at best never reach more than very mild success. Success is the exception, failure the rule. More profitable to study failure and try to figure why they failed, than to analyze the careers of the rich and famous. What not to do is quite as important as what to do. Fifteen years ago it was not unusual for a popular song to sell three million copies. Now it's a rare composition that reaches a third of that much. The same thing is true of the decline of piano and violin records. It's so much easier to stick a 50 cent record on the phonograph or tune in the radio than to practice for years and probably get nowhere. Man up to the mark to create his own music. Now it's cut-and-dried and served to him like nearly everything else.

The evening classes in practical arts being conducted by the various schools are being well attended this year, and in every school large registrations have been received. Although the number of pupils desired during the course of study, a good number of students are with this number that the teachers can work to advantage. The entire school year is divided into periods during which time a limited number of lessons are taught. Cookery, millinery and dressmaking are the main attractions at the schools, although home nursing and embroidery are also offered. These classes afford the working girl and the busy mother an opportunity to brush up along the lines taught, leaving plenty of time during the day for household and other duties, as the courses entail no home work.

I am told that Bishop Delany assembly, fourth degree, K. of C. will have a splendid attendance at the annual communion in commemoration of Columbus day at St. Michael's church next Sunday. The assembly is one of the largest in New England, ranking next to the Bishop Chayerus assembly held at St. Peter's church in Boston, and hence hopes are entertained quite optimistically by the officers that the response will be very large on October 12. Sunday afternoon, the assembly is to parade in Newburyport, and on Monday morning, October 13, it will join with Lowell council's celebration at St. Peter's church.

GETS BIG RECEPTION IN NORTH CHELMSFORD

North Chelmsford turned out 500 strong early last evening to hear United States Senator David I. Walsh speak at the rally staged in Vinyl square in his behalf. Red lights, a building decorated with bunting, and arches carrying the tallhoos signs gave the flavor of old times to the rally and the junior senator was greeted with the same enthusiasm and welcome that greeted his appearance elsewhere in the course of the day.

John E. Harrington, chairman of the democratic town committee, introduced Sen. Walsh with a few brief sentences. "His record has been clean and honorable," he said, "and we are now called upon to show our appreciation of his honest and faithful service by returning him to the office he has filled so admirably."

"There are so many issues in this campaign," said Sen. Walsh in opening, "that one hardly knows what to say to show our record there. But I have been here. I have been your lieutenant-governor and your governor. You honored me again in 1917 by sending me as a delegate to the constitutional convention. In 1918 you sent me to the senate. Now after five years I've come back to you to ask you to give upon my record there. Scrutinize it carefully if you will—and determine for yourself if it is of a character worthy to warrant your further suffrage."

"It was long ago, early in my political career, that I learned a man in public life must choose one of two courses to serve the dollar or to serve the people. The financial interests of this country are the most powerful and they daily make themselves known and heard. I have turned to them a deaf ear and over tried my utmost to champion the cause which would help to lighten your burdens. I myself sprang from the common people. My education was gained from the pennies and the dollars saved by my parents working in the little town of Clinton. So it is natural that your cause should be my cause. In my six years in the senate I have worked hard with your cause in mind at all times. I cannot claim perfection. But I can claim that I have given conscientious service without ever being guilty of a betrayal. I ask your inspection and your criticism of my public record. If it does not meet your approval, I do not ask your vote."

"If my record does meet with your approval, and I have confidence that it will, I want you to send me back to Washington. I want to watch those pirates, I want to watch those crooks whom I have been after for these several years. The only cry you raised against me is not upon my record but because I am an opponent to the great financial interests. I would rather be the friend of the common people of Massachusetts than the friend of the president of the United States. I want to be able to oppose the president when I feel that his pretensions of the views of the voters of this commonwealth. I want to oppose him when he votes laws meaning so much to our veterans and to our lotter carriers and when he approves discriminatory laws favorable to the great financial interests. If you want to send some one who will serve the dollars rather than the people you'll have to send someone else rather than me."

I am asking you to go to the polls Nov. 4 and forget the party label. Don't vote a ticket because your grandfather did or your uncle did, but look over the past performance of the candidates before you and then pick and vote for the man who are serving the people and not the dollars."

He assailed Secretary Mellon of the treasury department and his tax reduction effort as favorable to multi-millionaires and big business and so costly to individuals and to small corporations and competitive businesses. He scored the Fordney-McCumber tariff law, stating that while the basic idea of a tariff is correct in principle it has been used by the republican party

F. F. KEITH'S THEATRE

One of the best touring orchestral bands in the country is Ferdinand's Havana orchestra which appears at the Lowell F. F. Keith theatre this week in headline position on an uncommonly satisfactory program. Local theatregoers are somewhat familiar with the orchestra, having heard it only last year during a long circuit engagement. This summer it played the entire season at Pine Island park, Manchester, N. H. It is splendid organization of musicians and the program presented is calculated to please any audience. Excellent interpretation is seen in the playing of certain selections from the opera "Pinafore," while in "Carmen," the action of the bull ring is vivid and realistic.

"Working for the Railroad" is the act of Glenn and Jenkins, black-face comedians, specializing in songs and novel dance steps. Much of their stuff is brand new this season and it is an act that cannot fail to register a most favorable impression.

Comedy, there is nothing else but.

A Stubborn Cough Loosens Right Up

This home-made remedy is a wonder. Get quick results. Easily and cheaply made.

Here is a home-made syrup which millions of people have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up stubborn coughs. It is cheap and simple, but very prompt in action. Under its healing, soothing influence, chest soreness goes, phlegm loosens, breathing becomes easier, tickling in throat stops and you get a good night's restful sleep. The usual throat and chest colds are conquered by it in 24 hours or less. Nothing better for bronchitis, hoarseness, croup, throat tickle, bronchial asthma or winter coughs.

To make this splendid cough syrup, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup and shake thoroughly. If you prefer, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way you get a full pint—a family supply—of much better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for three times the money. Keep it perfectly and children love its pleasant taste.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, known the world over for its prompt healing effect upon the membranes.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for 2½ ounces of Pinex in full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

CORN

Lift Off—No Pain!

Doesn't hurt one bit! Drop a little "Freezone" on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then shortly you lift it right off with fingers.

Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of "Freezone" for a few cents, sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes and the foot callouses, without soreness or irritation—Adv.

Beauty

35c "Danderine" does Wonders for Any Girl's Hair

Girls! Try this! When combing and dressing your hair, just moisten your hair-brush with a little "Danderine" and brush it through your hair. The effect is startling! You can do your hair up immediately and it will appear twice as thick and heavy—a mass of gleamy hair, sparkling with life and possessing that incomparable softness, freshness and luxuriance.

While beautifying the hair "Danderine" is also toning and stimulating each single hair to grow thick, long and strong. Hair stops falling out and dandruff disappears. Get a bottle of "Danderine" at any drug or toilet store, and just see how healthy and youthful your hair appears after this delightful, refreshing dressing—Adv.

In the offering of Lewis and Norlon, touring from "Cost to Cost," the dialogue is rapid and sustained and the pair jump from one laugh to another without missing a smile along the way.

Judson Cole is a mystifying magician and no mistake, and he injects just enough comedy to give his act a new twist that is pleasing. His model of the hand of an ancient Egyptian fortune teller makes many interesting situations.

The other two acts are Sena and Weber, dancers, and Carl and Valeska Winters, in a novel musical sketch with many odd features.

The feature motion picture this week is "The King of Wild Horses," a thrilling and dramatic of a fight for supremacy between two beautiful, untamed stallions. The weekly news film has pictures of the world series.

STRAND THEATRE

"Bread," an inspiring story from the facile pen of Charles Norris, is being told in picture form at the Strand now. It features no less a personage than the bright little star, Mae Busch, who plays her part in a realistic manner and gains many new friends in so doing. The story is an honest, fearless record of events not commonly recorded, and it has seen it on the screen acclaim it more entertaining than the book itself. Comedy, drama and melodrama are interspersed throughout. Modern problems are unraveled and it is safe to say that no film has come so near to the life of the nation in daring portrayals of every-day themes and experiences as "Bread." Supporting Miss Busch in the play are Robert Frazer, Fred Malley, Wanda Hawley and others of equal repute.

The second feature on the current bill is "The Bankers' Age," a vivid dramatization of the mad, joyous whirl of society excitement. Reginald Denny carries the leading role in expert fashion and is seen in various thrilling scenes. He kicked a playboy into a kidnapping taxi; a millionaire sportsman stole a diamond necklace out of his pocket and stopped a wedding, and he cleaned up a newspaper office with his date.

The story is an adaptation from the Saturday Evening Post feature, "Love Insurance." Mr. Denny plays the part of an "insurance shooter," whose task is to look after the romance of a no-blooming, who has taken out a policy against failure to marry an heiress. He falls in love himself and complications set in. The hero extricates himself from the difficulties, however, and a lively finish is in order. The star supporting William Wustlin and Helen Stevenson.

A weekly news reel and a laugh-provoking comedy complete an interesting program.

LOWELL'S RIALTO

Both pictures at the Rialto the first half of the week are so good that it's a mighty difficult task to pick the best of the two. Some might say that "The Forgotten Wife," with Madge Bellamy should be the feature, but in others would state that Buck Jones in "Cupid's Fireman" is the better of the two. In fact, they are both excellent and both are as good as each other.

"The Forgotten Wife," a Palmer photoplay, offers one of the biggest entertainments values in the screen has ever given. In addition to more entertainment—the sort that will transport tired business men away from care in spite of themselves—it contains pathos as well as laughter and heart-throbs as well as thrilling, amusing and fast-moving adventure. And it has all the virility and novelness that has come to expect in the Palmer productions, having been written directly for the screen by a trained photo-playwright, Will Lambert. Imagine this for a novelty of plot and situation! A war hero who has lost his memory obtains, with his wife, a place as a servant in the household of which he used to be master! Fancy the complications between the wife he has just taken and the mistress of the household, after he had been recognized, and yet denies his identity! That's merely one of the kicks in this picture.

A powerful cast headed by such artists as Madge Bellamy, Warner Baxter, Maude Wayne, Hazel Keener and Tom Gulac interpret the roles of Mr. Lambert's story.

"Cupid's Fireman," which is the added feature, was called "Andy McGee's Chorus Girl" when it came from the pen of Richard Harding Davis. The film has lost none of the original charm of the story but has added to it a number of thrills. Charles Jones, the husky and popular ex-boy of the Fox lot, fell right at home in the active role of the fireman and made the most of it every minute. Marian Nixon, the dainty, diminutive leading lady, played the chorus girl with equal enthusiasm.

There's much of humor and much of pathos running through the story. Andy first found his actress sweetheart when he was standing fire watch at the theatre where she was playing. He learned to love her only to discover that she was already married—and to a secondhand! The way was dramatically cleared for them when the apartment house in which she lived was burned and he saved her, but failed to save her drunken husband, who perished in the flames. Other pictures on the program are: Century comedy and a Fox News reel.

Tom Mix and his wonder horse, will be seen at the Rialto the last half of the week starting Thursday in a screen version of Zane Grey's "The Last Of The Duanes," Mix's latest and greatest picture! John F. Kehoe and the Rialto orchestra are in the pit.

When your child is constipated, bilious, has colic, feverish heat, coated tongue, or diarrhea, a teaspoonful of genuine "California Fig Syrup" sweetens the stomach and promptly cleans the bowels of poisons, gases, bile, souring food and waste. Never cramps or overtaxes. Contains no narcotics or soothing drugs. Children love its delicious taste.

Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has full directions for babies and children of all ages, plainly printed on bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup.

MOM'N POP

MERRIMACK SQUARE

Harold Lloyd, comedy star of international fame with his ever present bone-rimmed glasses and his smile, scores another great success in "Why Worry," showing at the Merrimack Square theatre all this week. Lloyd gained the title of leading American comedian in "Safety First," which was shown here and made a decided hit, but he is even better as the star of "Why Worry."

Assisting the inimitable Lloyd in this feature production is John Assen, whose eight feet nine-and-a-quarter inches of stature dwarfs Lloyd's ordinary height and makes him appear but a child when the two are shown together. Assen, as well as being a giant, is also a great comedian and pairs well with Lloyd in keeping the moving picture audience laughing from the first flash on the screen until "Anis" is thrown on the silver sheet.

The scene of "Why Worry" is a make-believe South American republic where revolutions are every day occurrences and the first thing taught babies when they succeed in taking a few steps on the floor is the use of the rifle.

Into this war-torn country comes "Harold van Pelham" (Harold Lloyd) who is seeking a cure for his supposedly illness stricken body, in the beautiful and reported-to-be healthy spot. He thinks he is suffering from heart trouble and takes along a nurse who will be able to send the body home for burial in case Harold is fatally stricken while enjoining under southern skies.

The sick young man and his nurse are met at the boat by a squad of soldiers who are supposedly to escort them to a hotel but in reality take them to prison. Harold is cast into a cell occupied by the giant and informed that he and the giant are to be shot at sunrise as dangerous characters.

Knowing full well that the soldiers at the nation became innamed if cheated of their sunrise shooting spree, Harold hesitates to attempt an escape but finally agrees with the giant and nurse that his own safety is of more account than the soldiers' feelings. They escape—and then follows more action than has ever before been shown moving picture fans in a release the length of Lloyd's.

The three escaped prisoners, not content to make good their own getaway, take matters into their own hands and in a series of side-splitting affairs put down the revolution and restore the country-side to peaceful pursuits.

After peace is declared, Harold decided he isn't troubled by a weak heart and becomes engaged to his nurse. Content that the country can get along without him, he and his bride-to-be set sail for the United States to enjoy married life without anyone's squabbles to care for but their own.

The second feature picture on the program is "Love's Whirlpool," featuring James Kirkwood, Lila Lee and Madge Bellamy. The bill also includes a news weekly, a comedy, "Missing Men," and "Mrs. Hippo," a special feature.

LOWELL OPERA HOUSE

The Stanley James Stock Players thrilled and delighted a large audience last night with "The Last Warning," a thrilling offering that will rank as one of the premier stock offerings given here in recent years. Mr. Gerald Rowan, the leading man of the company, Miss Lillian Desmond, the leading woman; Miss Vessie Farrell and other members, particularly Franklin J. Russell and Wilmer Walter stand out for their work.

To tell much of the story of the play would be to tell in a measure the story of the play. It is a novel melodrama with trick effects and many brand new features. There is a play within a play in the third act. Anyone who sees the play will agree with that distinguished critic, Heywood Brown, who in the New York World said it "is really better than 'The Last Warning'." "The Last Warning" bears the distinction of being the only play of its kind that the stage has ever known. Those who are yearning for something absolutely new, and with lots of hilarious laughter into the bargain, will be more than pleased with this week's play.

AT ATLANTIC CITY

The Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway company is represented at the national convention of the American Electric Railway association, in session this week at Atlantic City, by Fred J. Crowley of this city, member of the board of trustees, and Fred A. Cummings of Lynn, assistant to the chairman of the trustees. Both delegates left Boston last evening for Atlantic City.

ESPECIALLY FOR YOUNG CHILDREN

New Laxative Recommended for Infants Praised by Mothers

Laxatives suitable for older people are too harsh for infants and young children but the gentle action of Baby's Own Tablets causes no griping or pain. For this reason mothers all over the section where these tablets have been introduced are giving them hearty recommendations.

Mrs. Edmond Facteau, of No. 34 Middle street, Pawtucket, R. I., says: "Harsh laxatives did not agree with my children so I gave them Baby's Own Tablets and they liked them. The tablets do not cause any stomach disturbance but quiet the children and give them sound, healthful sleep. When the little ones take cold I always give them Baby's Own Tablets and they get well quickly. Every mother should try the tablets and save a great deal of worry."

Baby's Own Tablets are sold by all druggists or will be mailed on receipt of price, twenty-five cents per box by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y. With every package is wrapped a booklet, "The Care of the Baby in Health and Sickness"—Adv.

"You Can Do It Better With Gas"

NO!
It Will NOT Burn Out Your Grate

Some people have asked, "Will coke burn out the grates?" Lowell Coke properly used will not burn out your grates any more than coal properly used.

Any fuel, if you run a hot fire, and allow the ashes to fill up the ash pit, will warp or burn out your grates.

Shake your heater sparingly and remove the ashes regularly—that is, do not let the ash pit fill up so there will be absolutely no danger of harm to your grates.

Lowell Coke

is a clean fuel. There is practically no smoke or soot. It burns up completely and leaves very little ash. There is no sifting. It is lighter than coal—you can burn it in any type of heater, furnace or boiler, with real satisfaction.

BILLY MURPHY BEATS KENOYER

Vic Rivet Stopped—Referee, His Brother, Tried to Kick Out Towel

NASHUA, N. H., Oct. 7.—Billy Murphy of Lowell received the decision after 10 rounds of hard fighting over Henry Kenoyer of Derry, the feather-weight champion of New Hampshire, at the Olympic bouts last night in O'Donnell hall.

Kenoyer led his opponent in the first three rounds of the bout, Murphy taking it easy to get his opponent's range. The Derry lad scored repeatedly with a wide-arm right to the jaw, which however, did not carry power enough to alarm Murphy. The next four rounds were fairly even, but with the advent of the eighth the Lowell boxer began to cut down his cleverer opponent. From that time on, Kenoyer had absolutely all he could do to keep Murphy away, to say nothing of forcing any fighting. The final three rounds were Murphy's by a margin plenty wide enough to justify the decision.

Billy had a distinct advantage over Kenoyer in height and reach, and a slight advantage in weight. The match was full of pep and action all the way. Neither fighter bore a mark at the final bell, but not a spectator found any fault with the way they mixed it up while they were on the boards.

Vic Rivet of Lowell was defeated in the semi-final of eight rounds by Smiling Sammie Naylor of Nashua.

Rivet's seconds threw in the towel in the final round. Rivet's brother Pete, who was the referee, kicked the towel out only to have it thrown in again.

Jack Cooper of Lawrence refereed the main bout.

Murphy vs. Finnegan

Billy Murphy of Lowell, who added Young Kenoyer of Derry to his victory list at Nashua last night, returned to Lowell today to rest up until tomorrow when he will engage in a light training bout on an edge for his battle with Honeyboy Finnegan of Boston in the main event of the Moody club show in Crescent rink on Thursday night.

Murphy emerged from the Nashua bout without any marks of combat and the battle proved a good workout for the Finnegan battle. The Lowell boy took the easy in the opening rounds, but his flash in the latter part of the bout indicated his class. He took no chances of getting hurt or marked up, and his plan of campaign worked out successfully.

In meeting Finnegan he will face an experienced batter, one who measures up to him in height and reach, a southpaw like himself, who has been anxious to meet the Lowell boy for more than a year.

Tommy Leonard, local boy, who has set up a string of 14 consecutive victories, will try to make it 15 when he tacks Johnny McBride of Lawrence in the semi-final of eight rounds. McBride is a pretty clever "dirt" fighter, has been seen on many occasions and has always given satisfaction.

Young Stevenson and Johnny Herbert, who met here a couple of weeks ago in a slashing six round event, will renew acquaintances in one of the prelims Thursday evening. The other has not yet been announced.

ORIOLES LEAD IN THE LITTLE WORLD SERIES

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 7.—(By the Associated Press)—The Baltimore Orioles, International League champions, and the St. Paul Saints, pennant winners of the American association, are en route to St. Paul today, where on Thursday they will resume play in the little world series, after five games here.

Yesterday's game, a play-off of last Saturday's tie, resulted in a decidedly one-sided victory for the Birds, by a score of 10 to 1, and increased the lead of the International League to two games. The series count is now three games to one in Baltimore's favor, with five triumphs necessary to carry off the series.

SUN BASEBALL EXTRA

Complete Account of Games, Including Final Put Out, in Special Edition

The Sun baseball extras, issued in connection with the world series games, contain a complete, detailed account of the contests. Saturday's extra was on the street exactly seven minutes before our contemporary. Yesterday in an endeavor to "beat The Sun," our neighbor "shortchanged" the reading public and went to press with an extra, which carried the final score in the headlines, but did not carry a complete account of the game in the running story. In the ninth inning Washington had three men on bases and but one out when Miller came to bat. He went out on a foul-fly to Lindstrom, still leaving three on and only two out. Here is where our contemporary went to press. But the game was not over, as Sun readers and all others who follow the game know. Much can happen with only two out, particularly when all the bases are occupied. But chance was taken and the incomplete story was given to the public. The Sun, however, waited and gave the final and most important play. Ruel, followed Miller to the plate. He came very near breaking up the game, when he bounced a terrific grounder to Lindstrom. The Giant third sacker grabbed the ball and tagged third for a force-out, thereby terminating the game. And despite the fact that the opposition tried to put one over with its "two-out-in-the-ninth edition," The Sun extra, complete in every detail, was on the street in record time. This is but another illustration of The Sun's policy of combining thoroughness and speed, and fans who desire the full and complete account of the baseball classic are urged to watch for The Sun extra. Another edition giving in addition to the detailed story, the official box score of the day's game, follows in short order.

WHITE SOX WIN CITY CHAMPIONSHIP

CHICAGO, Oct. 7.—The White Sox finished at the bottom of the American league percentage column, three notches lower than the Cubs in the National league but took the championship of Chicago yesterday by winning 5 to 3, and making it four victories to two, made the American league triumphant for the tenth time of 13 series played.

FAIR SEX ENJOY WORLD SERIES

The fourth game of the world series was played on the Electric Wonder score board at the Crescent rink this afternoon, and again a good sized crowd turned out to enjoy the fun. The board has attracted fine attendance since the opening game. It's accurate and realistic presentation of each and every play has made a great hit with fans and fanettes. Many of the ladies who follow and enjoy the national game are taking advantage of the opportunity of "seeing" the series at home and every afternoon a good size representation of the fair sex, who are accorded every courtesy on the part of the management, are on hand to cheer their favorites. The board will operate during every game of the series, with play starting at 2 o'clock.

Eight Pitchers Used in Weird Game, Won by Giants, 6-4—Sensational Catches by Young and Rice—Home Run by Ryan—Gowdy Hits Well

FRANK FRISCH

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—(By the Associated Press)—The army of baseball writers engaged in following the world series have turned almost en masse from the Washington Senators to the New York Giants, in the world series contests.

Unless the Washington infield returns to its drum-tight perfection of the first two games, it is freely predicted that New York might accomplish its victory in straight contests which would end the series here Wednesday and make a return to the capital city unnecessary.

Mogridge, the veteran left hander, and Walter Johnson, Senator pitching ace, stand on the steep of the world's championship quarters and must be removed before the Giants can enter. McGraw has nominated Virgil Barnes to lead the National league charge in the fourth game today. Mogridge in reserve.

And if these two fail to stop the consistent advance of New York, Walter Johnson, hero of an 18-year pitching experience at Washington, will rally his mates in a last-ditch opening game in which Johnson led a crusade of hope and not a defense against despair.

His opponent, on the mound will again be Art Nehf, the veteran southpaw whose cunning and endurance outlasted Johnson's speed and enthusiasm in the opening game.

Today's battle, with uncertain hurriers in the box, may really develop into another loose contest similar to that of yesterday, in which the defensive work of New York behind its wobbling pitchers excelled that of the Senators' infield quartet behind hurling somewhat worse.

Frisch a Stone Wall

Captain Frankie Frisch of the Giants was the defensive wall against which Washington, and Goose Goslin, in particular, made futile efforts throughout the game. Ross Young contributed a diving catch and the entire Giant defense was nearly faultless.

Washington's infield, in strong contrast to its sensational play in the first two games, faltered behind its uncertainty in the second-string pitchers, who grew nervous and ineffective. The Giants got away in front and were never caught although the game was in doubt until the last man was out.

Manager Harris was responsible for the impetus which sent Marberry to his sensational victory, to defeat. A sure double play which would have retired the side in the second inning was prevented by the young manager who muffed Bluege's throw. A hit by Gowdy followed by two walks and a hit batsman by Marberry accounted for two runs.

Ryan to the Rescue

But McQuillan couldn't hold it. He grew wild in the fourth, passed three men and departed with the bases jammed and on a run. Ryan forced in the next run but settled down and, with the support of Frisch and Young, held the Senators useless until the eighth.

Goose Goslin was the particular victim of Frisch as the second baseman raced back into short center and right to make two marvellous catches and later stopped a grounder ticketed for a hit-all from the bat of Goslin.

Young staved another rally by taking Ruel's fly and somersaulting.

In the meantime Peckinbaugh had retired with a charity home. Bluege moved from third to short and Miller played third. Miller let Gowdy's stand and look through his legs and Lindstrom scored the ex-soldier with a double. Ryan added another run by hitting the only homer ever made by a National league pitcher during a world series.

Another Candidate Qualifies to Appear Against Epinard Saturday

LATONIA, Ky., Oct. 7.—Another candidate qualified yesterday for the $50,000 international special race, in which Epinard, French champion thoroughbred, will meet the pick of America's runners over a distance of a mile and a quarter Saturday.

Gallagher brothers' Chilhowee, in defeating Wise Counsellor, winner of the first international event, and Graeme, at one mile and a sixteenth, covered the distance in 1:42 4-5 after galloping the first six furlongs under restraint. The colt's time was one-fifth of a second faster than the Latonia track record, established by Astutury at the spring meeting.

Epinard was out on the track and breezed a mile in 1:42 1-8. Trainer Leigh made no effort to push the French colt, but probably was working him over the entire special distance tomorrow. Latkin, winner of the second international race, worked the full mile and a quarter in 2:05 4-5. Indications are that no less than a dozen horses will go to the post in the big event on Saturday.

MARTIN WINS OVER WOLGAST IN EIGHTH

BOSTON, Oct. 7.—Bobby Wolgast of Atlantic City and formerly of Philadelphia must have been training with a wrestler for his bout with Eddie (Cannonball) Martin last night at McManis' building. He showed the very small audience that attended the Commercial A.C. that he can qualify as a fighter but his tactics did not meet with the approval of referee Jerry Moore and the third man stepped into the contest, which was scheduled for 10 rounds, in the eighth stanza, awarding the bout to Martin.

It was Martin's 59th consecutive victory. True it wasn't a very impressive one for the Brooklyn boxer who was fighting his first engagement away from home, but the fault could hardly be laid to him.

Martin was always trying to make a light of it, but Wolgast was apparently in there only to hold and as a result of his clinging-vine impersonation look a severe punishment was meted out to him. He is aggressive, hits with both hands, and is fairly clever.

It was as an in-fighter that he excelled last night. Once in close Wolgast let both hands fly in platoon-like fashion against the Atlantic City man's midriff with telling effect. The best contest of the evening was the semi-final bout between Johnny Cuthbert of England and Tommy Murray of Philadelphia, which was awarded to the latter after eight torrid rounds.

The opener, a substitute bout, lasted but three rounds, George Bolduc of Lewiston, winning over Tommy Hart of the West End, by a knockout.

FOOTBALL

By tying the O.M.I. Cadets at Shedd park Sunday, the Kenwood Rovers sprang quite a surprise in early season football here. A head-to-headling aerial attack was the best bet used by the Rovers, who are being coached this year by Arthur Lynch, former high school star.

While that scoreless game was one of the real surprises of the season, Sunday's game was the work of the O.M.I. Cadets. In taming the vaunted La Fayette of Boston by a 8 to 9 count, cannot be overlooked. True to his statement that he would give the fans plenty of good games if evidence of support were shown, Manager Walsh's game was the best of the season, through with the proposition, feeling confident that the record crowd of 3000 persons at last Sunday's game is a vindication of the popularity of his team. The Rovers will play some fast teams yet.

The Rovers have come along as nicely as any team in the vicinity. Next Sunday the team travels to Haverhill to play the Lions of that city. The Lion A. C. is considered one of the toughest teams in the state. They recently held the Tremonts of Lawrence to a scoreless tie. A special truck has been chartered by the Rovers to convey them to the scene of battle. Among other teams which will oppose the Kenwood boys this season are the Shawmut A. A. Tremonts of Lawrence, and the St. Peter's Cadets. Other games may be arranged by calling 7276-R.

The O.M.I. Cadets, while failing to score against the Rovers, must be reckoned with in coming games. Sunday's game was their first engagement of the season and the boys need plenty of limbering up yet. The services of Danny O'Connor, who has assisted Dean McCleary, are sorely missed, but Jack Cotter has assembled a fast eleven and his waterwork is progress.

St. Peter's Cadets, and the Ponies are clever and aggressive, with the Cadets having a slight edge. Danny Cotter has taught the soldiers a lot of football and heavy tackle, and this aggregation dangerous at all times. The Ponies are light but exceptional.

Another team that will bear watching is the Indian Second. Rip McIntyre and several former Indians of old are showing the youngsters the art of forward passing, and the supporting team are counting on them to fight for the city championship.

All members of the Indian team are requested to report to practice at Fisher field at 7:30 o'clock tonight, make preparations for the game with the Parkvales of Lawrence, next Sunday. Manager Jim Terphy would like to arrange a game with the O.M.I. Cadets or St. Peter's Cadets, as there are two open dates on the Indian schedule. A business meeting will follow tonight's practice.

JACK'S BUYING PONIES NOW

WATERBURY WINS CROWN WITHOUT LEFTHANDER

By N.E.A. Service

WATERBURY, Conn., Oct. 5.—For the first time in 10 years Waterbury won the baseball championship of the Eastern league, and the veteran "Kitty" Brunsfield, well known in Pittsburgh as a first base man, turned the trick.

Waterbury's triumph was a shock to the form followers. Brunsfield won with an ordinary aggregation of ball players, and one that was not especially lucky in escaping injuries. Brunsfield's driving force and engaging personality inspired his men to heroic deeds.

An unusual angle to the Waterbury victory was that it was achieved without the aid of a single left-handed pitcher. It is one of the traditions of baseball that no club ever won a pennant without one left-hander. But Brunsfield's five right-handers proved traditionalists aren't always sacred.

The star of the staff was Andy Rush, a recruit from the Muskogee club in the Southwestern league, who won 22 and lost 10.

MANDELL BEATS BAXTER

LYNN, Oct. 7.—Tony Mandell of Worcester, won the feature eight-round bout at the Casino A. C. last night by beating Charley Baxter of Pawtucket. Al Bergeron won on a technical knockout from Dick Russell of Lynn in the fourth round. Leo Barry of Pawtucket won over Willy Harmon of Boston. Babe Adams of Lawrence, bested Charley Costello of East Boston, and Earl Roche of Everett whipped Billy Brady of Boston.

Twenty miles of thread, were used in the making of a boat shown at the recent fur exhibition in London.

THEY SURE WANTED TO SEE THE GAME

Some idea of how fans awaited the opening of the world series may be gathered from this picture showing a small section of the long line of "sleepers" who slept out all night in order to be near the front of the line when the Washington ticket window opened in the morning.

HE HEADS NEW HOCKEY TEAM

ART ROSS

This gent might properly be called a money player. Art Ross was one of the players in the old hockey league in Cobalt, Canada, once a prosperous silver camp, and it is figured he was paid at the rate of $20 a minute. He has just been appointed vice president and manager of the Boston professional hockey team, which recently secured a franchise in the National Hockey league.

Having failed in the pinch for four successive years has caused other National league clubs to regard the Pittsburgh Pirates as lacking in courage. Some of the fans in Pittsburgh insist lack of condition is the better alibi.

Certainly the most important football clash between the Alleghenies and Rockies this season will be the game Oct. 13 between Hob Zupke's "Fighting Illini" and Yost's men from Michigan.

Tradition, of course, invests the Yale-Harvard, Princeton-Harvard, Princeton-Yale gridiron struggles with a colorful glamor, but it is a glamor that is sometimes entirely out of proportion to the importance of those "Big Three" games as gridiron spectacles.

It is doubtful if any game in the country this season will provide more thrills than the meeting between Michigan and Illinois. Certainly none is being more widely press-agented.

In the first place, it is a game between two undefeated teams of 1923, the two teams that tied for the western conference championship. In a measure, although Michigan has lost quite a few stars through graduation and Illinois will ink into the field without three important cogs in its 1923 machine. It will settle, in the minds of many, an unanswered argument that holds over from last year—which team really was the best in the middle west?

In a way it is a shame that Zupke and Yost couldn't have come to grips last year to settle once and for all the football supremacy of the Big Ten.

For Illinois it is a home-come game, the choicest morsel of the football season. It will also witness the dedication of the huge Illinois stadium. It will be a colorful clash, and both teams may be expected to "open up" for each eleven has been "pointed" for the struggle.

SAV, MR. RINGLING—

Michigan, to win, will have to stop Grange, a task that was too much for every Illinois opponent last year. On the other hand, the Yostmen, in Rockwell and Captain Storer, own a couple of threats themselves.

What gridiron luminary is destined to flash across the autumn horizon this year to dazzle the football world with his spectacular feats? There were some truly great ones last year—Blott, Mallory, Pfann and Grange, to name just a few. Critics seem to be agreed that Grange provided most of the thrills. The fact that he was merely a sophomore, playing his first year of college football, certainly lent color to his achievements, and they were truly notable.

But each year seems to develop its own outstanding stars. When a Brickley fados, there is a Mahan; when a Locke graduates, there is a Mallory; when a Harley passes on, there is a Kipke. And so on. It is doubtful if any football player in the country, barring untimely accidents, will be more closely watched this season than Harold Grange. If he can repeat his 1923 record he has a good chance of being the country's biggest sensation, two years running.

But Grange will be a marked man. Two or three men, at least, will be playing him in every game. Unless he is possessed of an extremely rare degree of football ability, he more than likely will have to share honors with some other player—now probably in obscurity.

Jack Daw's Adventures. Chapter 19

After the two explorers had scurried up a low hanging tree and perched on branches that seemed in safety, a large, but rather thin elephant worked its way through the trees and plodded right out to where Jack and the captain had been standing. It stood there and just looked around.

Jack kept as still as he could but, suddenly his foot slipped and, in grabbing for another foothold he made considerable noise among the tree leaves. This attracted the big elephant's attention and the beast quickly glanced right up into the tree where Jack and the captain were.

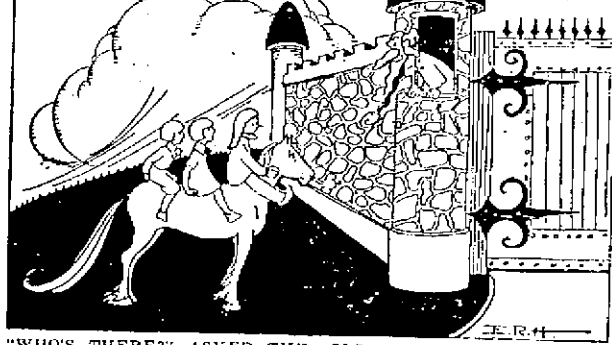

Slowly, but surely, the old animal started to rise his trunk. He bellowed a bit and then the captain shouted, "I believe he's coming after one of us with his trunk! We had better climb higher!" Jack didn't need to be told twice for in an instant he was going up. (Continued.)

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

Olive Roberts Barton

WHAT HAPPENED ON MARS

"WHO'S THERE?" ASKED THE OLD MAN STICKING HIS HEAD OUT OF A WINDOW IN THE STONE WALL BESIDE THE GATE.

The twins held tight to Snoodle in the night-mare's back. Snoodle was the oldest son of the Dream Maker Man and he was searching for Tweekanose who had stolen the sleepy sand from the Sand Man.

"Who's there?" asked an old man with a green beard and blind hair and a nose like a cucumber, full of bumps and ridges and very, very long. He was first cousin to the Moon Man, but nobody would have known it, he being so queer in all. But then all the people of Mars were queer and no two were alike.

"Who's there?" asked the old man sticking his head out of a window in the stone wall beside the gate. "Us," said Nancy. "Did Tweekanose the gnome come here with a sack of sand?"

"No," said the old man. "That's what I said," declared Nancy. "Impatiently," said the gnome and he's a rascal, too. "Did you see him?"

"No," said the queer old fellow again with a shake of his head. "Leastways I didn't see him. But then I've been asleep. On Mars everybody sleeps while he works and all the guards sleep on duty. As I am on duty ninety-one hours every day, I sleep most of the time. If he was a good climber he could get over the wall and I wouldn't see him. He may be on Mars and then again he may not be on Mars, and if he is on Mars—"

"My goodness! What a wordy old fellow!" said Nick to Snoodle. "I'll fix him." So he said "Tingy Tingy!" just like that the door in the wall

DAVIS IN NEW YORK TOUR RESISTS VOTE OF CENSURE

Continues Attack on the Harding-Coolidge Administration Charges Navy Has Deteriorated in Efficiency Below 5-5-3 Ratio.

Premier MacDonald of Britain Not to Shrink From a Dissolution Declares Responsibility For An Election Would Not Be the Labor Party's

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 7.—Driving further north and west into New York state, from Albany to Utica for a noonday address and thence to Syracuse, for an evening meeting, John W. Davis continued today his attacks against the republican party, its record during the Harding and Coolidge administrations, and his appeal for support of the voters for the democratic national and state tickets in the November elections. At the same time, Mr. Davis, speaking as the democratic presidential nominee, reiterated his opposition to the administration's foreign policy, charged that the navy had deteriorated in efficiency below the 5-5-3 ratio fixed by the Washington armament conference and reviewed other subjects touched upon in his address here last night.

Therefore, Roosevelt, in coming in for a passing reference in Mr. Davis' Albany speech. "The republican gubernatorial candidate, Mr. Davis said, would find himself embarrassed if he continued to praise the party he represented for negotiating the naval reduction treaty and defend it for allowing the navy to fall below the 5-5-3 ratio which the treaty fixed. Mention also was made of Secretaries Hughes and Mellon, one relating to the address made by the secretary of state in Ohio when Mr. Hughes said, the issue of the campaign was whether Mr. Coolidge should be continued in office and the other describing the treasury secretary as a defender of the "almshouse" and a defender of the "almshouse" trust" cited by Mr. Davis as being one of the outstanding beneficiaries of the Fordney-McCumber tariff act.

TO PREVENT DISORDERS IN EASTERN CUBA

HAVANA, Oct. 7.—(By the Associated Press.)—The full force of the Zayas government was in motion today to prevent any possible recurrence of disorder in eastern Cuba where seven lives were lost Sunday night and nearly three score persons wounded in a clash at Camaguey arising out of the presidential campaign between former President Menocal and General Gerardo Machado.

Approximately 750 troops are en route to preserve order in Camaguey and Oriente provinces. Permits for private individuals to carry arms have been suspended, while orders have gone forth holding up the sailing for Key West of two warships to take part in the San Carlos celebration there. The city of Camaguey is guarded by soldiers and the police there are under direction of a military superintendent.

American Ambassador Crowder is watching the situation closely.

GATEWAYS TO MINE IN OKLAHOMA DYNAMITED

It became known today. Damage was slight but the incident has aroused the mining field. No arrests have been made.

RUMMAGE SALE IS BIG SUCCESS

So much interest is being displayed in the rummage sale to be held in aid of the family relief fund being done by the Social Service league by those desiring to purchase the articles being contributed that the committee deemed it necessary this morning to ask the police department to assign one or more policemen to the old Courier-Citizen building during the sale.

Articles have just poured in during the past two or three days and the committee is assured that there are a great many bundles which will be contributed before Thursday noon.

Sam Lemoine, the very artistic window decorator of the Bon Marche store fixed up the window of the Social Service league in a manner that has attracted a great deal of attention. He placed in the window a fur coat, two evening gowns, some latest millinery, gloves, shoes, etc., giving the sale a tone all its own.

The committee is still desirous of having friends who have anything in the line of clothing, house furnishings, or in fact anything salable. If you have any articles packed away in the attic or closets just notify the Social Service league and someone will call for them.

Temporary Bleachers Available for Big Manchester-Lowell Battle

During the public reception to Senator Walsh at the American House yesterday afternoon a delegation of 25 letter carriers waited upon him to express their gratitude for the intervening devotion of the senator to the cause of the postal employees in their efforts to secure an increase in salary. The senator explained how the measure was finally defeated by republican trickery in the senate based upon a point of order that had never before been raised in 16 years. Under this point the presiding officer held that a vote could not be taken on a veto until it was formerly recorded. The recording of the message would require about fifteen minutes but it was held back for hours in spite of the fact that he raised several points of order to inquire whether it was being recorded, whether the clerk was engaged in the work, whether he would complete the job in time for a vote and finally, near the close of the session, he interrupted the proceedings to ask if the clerk had dropped dead. Needless to say, the republicans were determined that it should not be brought to a vote as many of the senators did not wish to go on record either as voting to sustain the veto or to override it. The vote is on the table and the senator assured the delegation that it would come up for action immediately after the opening of the short session in December. The spokesman of the delegation in behalf of the Lowell carriers thanked the senator very cordially for what he had done in the senate and on the public platform in behalf of the underpaid employees of the postal department. Many of the clerks were on hand to greet the senator after the meeting last night.

Chicago Mayor and Famous Lawyer Amaze 1500 Democratic Leaders by Engaging in Unheralded Debate—Darrow Says Prohibition Cannot Be Enforced

CHICAGO, Oct. 7.—William E. Dever, Mayor of Chicago and Clarence S. Darrow, famous trial lawyer, amazed 1500 clergy and state democratic leaders here last night when they engaged in an unheralded debate over the 18th amendment. The occasion was a banquet tendered Anton German, president of the Cook county board, just returned from a trip abroad.

Mr. Darrow, whose most recent step into the spotlight was through his defense of Richard Loeb and Nathan F. Leopold, Jr., for the kidnapping murder of Bobbie Franks, asserted that while the eighteenth amendment never would be repealed, "it will die because people of courage and independence will stand against it," and because it "cannot be enforced."

(His declaration that "all the presidents, mayors and public officials in the country can't enforce it" came after Mayor Dever had asserted that he had no apologies to make for his campaigns against liquor law violations, and was willing to "sacrifice my party and myself if I can attain for the community what I am aiming at.")

His aim, he said, was to deliver Chicago from foreign bootleggers and poisonous liquors and "to determine whether the streets were going to be safe for the people or controlled by a gang of New York crooks, who were making millions of dollars."

Before the 18th amendment was passed, he continued, "I was never known to be drier than I ought to be."

The mayor said he believed in enforcing the law as they were on the books. "If you are not fond of the law, tell your troubles to the congressmen and ask them to make some revision," he said.

Mayor Dever has closed approximately 2000 saloons since he assumed office.
